

Tribute to James Frank Scott.

How near akin to conditions during the War between the States, are the never-to-be forgotten four years of the World War, only the fast thinning line of our dear boys in Gray an fully testify from our section of these United States, and next to them a fullness of appreciation, in depth of honor and respect from the daughters of the Confederacy, as we listen to renewal of tales of War times by the dear Veterans, as we study conditions from them, and strive to learn from them how better to serve this present age. The Daughters have been for many years already keenly awake to the privilege of serving with demand those who serve their country, of alleviating their suffering, of being in a position to love them for their gift of life to serve the cause of Liberty loving humanity. For these reasons we pay tribute with bowed head and reverent heart to James Frank Scott.

Enough has been said of his age, birthplace, early serving his Master, many details of his life are known to all in this audience, it is the details of the writer to speak of the more intimate things of his disposition and character, the disposition and character that made him loved by all fortunate enough to know him well and be associated with him. He went to the service of his country gladly, bravely, inspired by the lofty ideals of making the world safe for Democracy, and Democracy safe for the world, glad to give his all, if needs must be.

It was the great privilege of this writer to sit with James Frank Scott's honored father a few days ago and see the proud flash of his eyes, hear the ring in his voice as he spoke of this well-beloved son, to be allowed to read some of his letters to his mother, father and sister, to get his intimate insight into the heart of one of our bravest and finest who enlisted in this War. No man could write the letters he did and not be a son and brother to cause hearts to swell with pride in such a one. May I quote him, listen reverently, he speaks from the dead who die in the Lord, "You have been such a good Mother to me, you have done your whole duty, you are a lover of home. I am thankful to God for such a mother as you and the way in which you brought me up. My training at home has helped me so much in the army, I could not do some things when I think of you all. I know they would reflect upon you and my sisters. I pray God to let me return to you so that I can show my appreciation of you more than ever before." Oh, mothers who hear this, could your boy say as much of you? God grant it. What a blessed mother his—she has lost him a while, but only a little while, and they will surely be reunited for eternity, and can you picture the joy of that meeting?

He wrote most affectionately to his father, saying what a dear father he was, that he would never forget that father had always tried to lead him right. If only all our boys could be safe following in their father's footsteps as this one did. What a happy father this is. To his sister he said, Sister, I am proud to claim you as my sister. You have been a chum and true sister to me, one among ten thousand, there are few girls in Georgia who have the high ideals you have. Continue to be brave and true through this war. I am thankful for Christian father and mother, sisters and brothers." How the heart of even a stranger thrills to read these words from the loyal heart that is still for his life, what a privilege for that sister to have been such a sister to him that he could say this to her. God bless her and all his family that these things are true of them. If our country were filled with souls exactly like theirs we would not have to pray, "Thy Kingdom Come," it would be here already.

Many pages might be written filled with the beautiful things this American soldier said and did, but what has been said gives some small insight into his heart and life as he said it bare to his loved ones, and I have ventured to quote him that his example might be before you, that you might be inspired with a desire to live such a life, to live close to God, who is ours as well, a life of trust and faith and service. These things are what endears him to the hearts of the loyal Daughters of the Confederacy, that he walked in the footsteps of his father many years ago, that he lived by faith and trust in God as they did, and that the victory is his, the victory of a clean, beautiful life here and eternal glory in the place prepared for God's people. His monument is his life as lived in the lives of his loved ones and the citizens and his country.

This seem so little and poorly said. It is worthy of a finer, higher tribute, but it comes from the heart of one who knows and values lives such as his, and counts it a privilege to be

A Problem to Consider.

It is a fact that no class of people in America to-day are independent of every other class. Farmers could be more nearly independent than any other class of people in this country, but many of them lack a great deal of being independent.

Farmers sell very little among themselves; they buy very little from their neighbors. They use the cities and towns as clearing houses to convert their products into cash to be used in supplying their wants. This is not all. Many attend church in town and are members of fraternal and civic organizations in cities and towns.

Our economic and social life has made cities and towns necessary for successful farming and progressive citizenship. For this reason land values near cities and towns have advanced enormously, whereas farms in remote and rural districts not connected with urban centers by good roads have not increased in value to any considerable extent.

There is a mutual interest among city people and country people. City consumers need the products of the farm; farmers need the markets of the cities and towns. All need economical production and economical marketing.

If the farmer's dollar is to keep people from starving and enable industries to meet the needs of peace, it must have a chance to buy a dollar's worth of services. The city man's responsibilities in making this possible is no less binding than the farmer's. This is a problem for all the people and one the nation might well consider.—Farm and Ranch.

Keep up Roads.

Every farmer should feel his dependence upon good roads. Whether or not one lives on a public highway he should take an interest in the nearest one to his farm or the road he must use to market his farm, orchard and garden products.

There are many times when a day's work can be spared on the road. After heavy rains the road may need certain repairs or improvements when the overseer is not ready to call out the hands. Why not individual farmers donate a day's work on the road at such times?

By keeping a road drag and dragging the road along one's land after heavy rains the road may be greatly improved. It is an easy matter to have an agreement so each farmer will drag the road in front of his farm. This would maintain the road till the regular hands could be called out at stated intervals or till the commissioner could make the necessary repairs.

The time has come when we must consider the roads an asset, indispensable to the well-being of the farmer and his family. This being true, is it not every man's duty to do all he can to keep the roads in good condition? The individual as well as the county is responsible.—Farm and Ranch.

About Rheumatism.

People are learning that it is only a waste of time and money to take medicine internally for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and about ninety-nine out of a hundred cases are one or the other of these varieties. All that is really necessary to afford relief is to apply Chamberlain's Liniment freely. Try it. It costs but 35 cents per bottle. Large size 60 cents.

Mrs. Deborah Knox Livingston in Edgefield.

Sunday evening in the Baptist church Mrs. Deborah Livingston of Providence, R. I., addressed perhaps the largest congregation ever assembled for an evening service in the Baptist church. Her coming had been largely advertised and everybody desired to be present to enjoy the occasion. Many persons interested in the great cause of temperance and prohibition from the surrounding country were present.

Rev. Mr. Lee, pastor of the church presided over the service and introduced Mrs. Livingstone, saying that she was a descendant of John Knox of Scotland who said "Give me Scotland or I die."

Little Margaret Lyon sang very sweetly, "In the Garden" with piano accompaniment by her sister, Miss Gladys Lyon.

Mitchell Wells gave his gold medal winning selection, "The Challenge of Patriotism," and under the inspiration of the large and sympathetic audience, he surpassed any of his former efforts, as good as they have been.

The Jubilee song was given by a chorus and the double quartette sang "There will dawn a golden morn'g by and by."

Mrs. Livingston's address was well received as she discussed the alcohol question from many viewpoints.

She is charming on the platform or in private conversation being a woman of broad culture and travel, and of wonderful mind and heart.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has many women of similar attainments throughout the nation and the world, which accounts largely for the mysterious elimination of the drink habit in our nation.

Mrs. Livingston was the guest of Mrs. Tillman while in Edgefield.

County W. C. T. U. Meeting at Johnston on Monday.

An all day conference was held on Monday at Johnston in the interests of the W. C. T. U. at which Mrs. Livingston was present and gave wonderful inspiration.

Mrs. T. R. Denny led the devotions and reports from unions were heard. Representatives from Edgefield, Saluda, Johnston and Trenton were present.

At the afternoon session the following officers were elected. President, Mrs. T. R. Denny; Vice-President, Mrs. J. D. Mathis; Recording and Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. J. A. Lott; Treasurer, Mrs. Mary Culum. The superintendents will be appointed later by the General officers.

At the recess hour a very dainty and abundant luncheon was served by the Johnston Union.

Candidate for Cotton Weigher.

Having just returned from France, and receiving my discharge from the U. S. Army, where I have been since September 1917, at the solicitation of a number of my friends, I hereby announce myself as candidate for Cotton Weigher for the town of Edgefield, S. C. If elected, I promise to give faithful service to all parties in the performance of my duties.

METHODISTS OF SOUTH RALLY TO THE FLAG

FROM ONE END OF COUNTRY TO THE OTHER THEY WILL GATHER UNDER BANNER OF CROSS IN CAMPAIGN, MAY 18-25.

Methodists of the South will unite May 18-25 in conducting the greatest denominational campaign ever undertaken in the history of the world. During the week every member of the church will rally to the flag of the cross through the call of Methodism and given of their time, energy and pocketbooks to the raising of a fund of $35,000,000. Every dollar of the money raised will be spent in missionary work, both at home and abroad, ten million being turned back into the upbuilding of churches, schools and hospitals in the South. A large part of this sum will go towards increasing the salaries of the ministers of the rural churches, particularly those who have been working against great difficulties in the matter of taking care of circuits containing a number of churches.

The Centenary movement of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, not only means increased salaries for the pastors in the rural districts but also the establishment of mission schools in many inaccessible and needy communities of the country. Especial effort will be made to awaken the laymen of the church everywhere so that in those churches where a minister cannot preach every Sunday, there will be a service just the same. Because of the loyalty which Methodists everywhere have towards their church it is believed that, even though $35,000,000 is a large sum, it will be raised.

Grow Your Own Feed.

Clemson College, May 12.—Hay at $38.00 a ton, corn at $2.00 per bushel, and feed oats at .95 cents per bushel do not look good to the farmer who must buy these feeds for his live-stock, however good they may look to the farmer who has them to sell. Yet these are prices which some must pay to get feeds. Men who have cattle cannot afford not to raise plenty of feed.

It is not too late to put in corn, sorghum, cow peas, and sudan grass to make hay or silage or grain for your live-stock. Velvet beans can also be used to fine advantage, especially for grazing without harvesting.

The successful live-stock man must indeed be also a successful grower of feeds. GROW YOUR OWN FEEDS.

Card From Rev. G. W. Bussey.

To The Edgefield Advertiser: Dear Old Friend:

On my return from my Carnesville church this morning I found your paper awaiting me. But my heart was made sad at the reading of the death of two of my old friends, Abner Mims ("Buck" as we called him) and Amos Eubanks. They were both true men. Abner was a true soldier, both during the war and the trying days of the Red Shirts. Then, he was a true soldier of Christ. His light shown steady and bright. I knew more of him than of Mr. Eubanks, but both were true men.

The ranks of we old soldiers are getting thin. All I crave is to be faithful to the end.

By the kindness and liberality of my churches, both wife and I will be able to attend the Southern Baptist Convention in Atlanta this week. We are glad to say that both of us are enjoying good health. The Lord has followed us with loving kindness all our days. Blessed be His name.

As ever your friend and brother,
G. W. BUSSEY.

Martin, Ga.
