

St. Petersburg, Florida, the Sunshine City.

Editor Advertiser:

I am still in this beautiful city by the sea, having been here nearly two months. The Yankees are leaving by droves to their homes up North, but quite a number will remain for the summer. This is a live city.

I took a trip to Clear Water the other day, the county site of Pinellas county, situated on the banks of the Gulf of Mexico, one of the prettiest towns I have seen, with a population of 5,000 people. It is forty miles from St. Petersburg and a great resort for boating, fishing and bathing.

It is a sight to stand on the beach and look at the rolling billows as they beat against the beach. One not being used to the waves would think that they were going to wash them off, but God has set a bound. Thus far they can come and no further. From Clear Water or from the gulf on the west one can travel one hundred and fifty miles east on a brick-paved road without a jolt, and as far as the vision can reach from right to left, you see nothing but orange groves, just as you see cotton and corn fields in Carolina, and often you will see a grove from ten to forty acres laden with golden fruit. Generally the trees stand from fifteen to twenty feet apart, the limbs touching the ground. They range from seven to ten feet high and almost as round as a ball. They are the prettiest trees that grow in Florida. They are cultivated well, using the disc harrow thirteen and a half feet and go twice to the row every ten days. I was told that they could go over forty acres a day.

You see no corn fields and very few truck farms here, nothing much but tropical fruits. This is their money crop. The natives live mostly on loaf bread, rice and grits, as they call it, Irish and sweet potatoes. Beef, bacon and fish are their meats, and artesian and sulphur water their drink. Now, if you will listen, I will tell you a big fish story. I take it from the St. Petersburg Times: A king fish weighing more than 35 pounds leaped from the bay over the rail of the municipal pier, Wednesday afternoon, landing in the middle of the pier, according to a Mr. Duley, 757 Fifth street, South, driving along the pier in his automobile saw the big fish in its 30-foot leap from the water on to the pier. Its tail had been clipped off by a larger fish and was still bleeding when it landed on the pier, so said Mr. Duley. It is supposed that a big shark was telling him good morning. Early in the season a king fish jumped on the pier at the end, but Wednesday was the first time one jumped over the rail. Mr. Duley said he got the fish. Now, I did not see this fish, but the king fish is very game. I have seen them jump ten feet out of the water, but not 30 on the pier. This statement I clip from the St. Petersburg Times, and I take Mr. Duley to be a truthful man, and you know that an editor never publishes anything but what is true.

In my next I will try to give you a description of the Silver Spring and the Ochlamaha River. This is said to be the most beautiful river in all Florida. The Spring is six miles from Ocala. One has to see this Spring and the Ochlamaha river to realize its power and appreciate its beauty.

Mr. Editor, according to my thinking, the United States is the greatest republic on earth, and South Carolina is the best state in the union, and Edgefield is the best county in the state.

I say this, not that I love Caesar less, but I love Rome more.

"Sub Rosa" Frats Are Being Investigated.

Certain students of the University of South Carolina face suspension, expulsion or other punishment at the hands of the university faculty as a result of the announcement made to the student body yesterday morning by President W. S. Currell to the effect that "drastic action" would be taken by the faculty against all students found guilty of participating in the activities of Greek letter fraternities during the current collegiate year in violation of the state law.

The faculty has begun a thorough investigation of the existence of so called "sub rosa" fraternities at the institution. Dr. Currell's announcement coming as the opening gun in the campaign. Punishment, which under the by-laws of the university ranges from admonition by an official of the institution to public expulsion, will be meted out. Dr. Currell said, to all students who have been initiated into fraternities during the session and to all members of fraternities, even though they joined the fraternities at other institutions, who have in any way participated in fraternity activities on the university campus this year. A lighter sentence was promised all students involved in case they should voluntarily confess their violation of the anti-fraternity regulations, 5 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon being fixed as the last hour in which such confessions would be accepted. All students guilty of violation of the rule during the session were advised and urged to confess their wrongdoing. Dr. Currell said, adding that he did not desire to impose the "supreme penalty" unless forced to do so.

Dr. Currell in his short address to the student body read letters from the national officers of the four fraternities suspected of having chapters on the campus, stating that these four had no charter on the campus at present, the fraternities pledging their assistance in preventing the re-establishment of chapters until the law should be changed. Two of the fraternities reported that their charters had not been held by any men on the campus this year.—The State.

Poultry Industry Paragraphs.

The Poultry Industry is one of America's most important enterprises, producing $1,250,000,000 in wealth annually.

The Poultry industry supports many industries entirely and contributes largely to the support of others.

Imports of eggs and egg products increased from $1,577,477 in 1914 to $16,268,293 in 1920 based on import value.

It is estimated that over $600,000,000 worth of grain and grain products are consumed annually.

Present estimated number of mature poultry, 300,000,000 head.

Estimated number of poultry reared in 1919 600,000,000 head. (see note.)

Estimated number of eggs produced in 1919, 1,957,000,000 dozen. (see note.)

Note: From estimates by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The poultry producing industry is nation-wide in its scope. For many years it was an adjunct to general farming. No attention was paid to the cost of production of poultry and eggs, the housewife keeping a flock from which she derived certain moneys when fowls produced a surplus of eggs above the family needs, this season being the natural time for fowls to rear their young. For many years no account was kept of either the cost or amount of wealth produced. Poultry and eggs were then largely by-products. Poultry farming has now become an extensive and intensive commercial industry which occupies the entire time of skilled poultry men as their principal or only source of income.

The large grain growing section of the Middle West is the home of the farm flock which contributes approximately one-third of the poultry and eggs produced in this country. In many sections North, South, East and West, large commercial poultry enterprises are developed. In many specially favored sections, due to sources of food supply, marketing, and climatic conditions, the industry has developed to such a degree that it is the dominant industry of the region. One of these regions, as an example, confined within a radius of less than eight miles, produced and shipped in 1920 22,223,923 dozens of eggs having a value to the farmer of over $11,000,000, and produced and shipped over 2,000,000 head of poultry. Within this area are kept more than 2,000,000 hens.—Farm & Ranch.

R. F. Erwin Regarding His Troubles.

"A year ago last winter I had an attack of indigestion followed by biliousness and constipation. Seeing Chamberlain's Tablets so highly recommended for stomach troubles I bought a bottle of them and they helped me right away" writes R. F. Erwin, Peru, Ind. If you have any trouble with your digestion give these tablets a trial. They will do you good.

The Songs My Mother Sang.

The sweetest music that has thrilled my soul yet,

Is the songs my mother sang; Long years have passed but I shall never forget,

How the words and melody rang:

"Hush my child lie still and slumber In thy little trundle bed, Holy angels without number Hover round thy little bed."

Daily in my fancy her songs come to me,

As I wander from place to place; And as she sings once again I can see Her sweet and smiling face.

"In the sweet bye and bye, We shall meet on that beautiful shore,

In the sweet bye and bye, We shall meet on that beautiful shore."

In my dreams she sings to me, too, And again I'm a little child, Resting in her arms so kind and true Enraptured by her song and smile:

"There is rest for the weary, There is rest for the weary, There is rest for the weary, There is rest for you."

And I wonder in my awakening If she will sing to me again, When leave from earth my soul is taking,

Will I hear this sweet refrain:

"For He has this blessed promise given,

If you will be good and true You can come to me some day in heaven, But I cannot come to you."

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand ready for instant use when needed. Severe attacks of colic and cholera morbus often prove fatal before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The uniform success that has attended the use of this remedy and the prompt cures which it has effected have made it a staple article of trade.

IT'S NOT WHAT YOU MAKE BUT WHAT YOU SAVE THAT COUNTS

Copyright 1909, by C. E. Zimmerman Co. --No. 66

EVERY DOLLAR that you spend foolishly, every proportionate amount of money that you earn that it would be possible to save and do not, is only money that you have to work for again. On the other hand every dollar you put in the bank is money that is going to constantly work for you. Which is the best; money always working for you, or you always working for your money. Come in and start that bank account. Don't put it off another day.
