

Selecting the Best Feed For Chicks.

A test by Prof. Harry R. Lewis, formerly at New Jersey State University, shows the results with dried buttermilk and semi-solid buttermilk. The semi-solid, we judge, retains more of lactic acid. Using two lots of 900 chicks each. Mr. Lewis gave a 11 chicks a standard grain ration of equal parts fine cracked corn, cracked wheat and steel-cut oats up to the fifth week, then working gradually to equal parts cracked corn, whole wheat and oats.

From the first, the mash was made up of 300 pounds of wheat bran, 200 of middlings, 100 of ground oats, 100 of gluten feed, and 100 of meat scraps. For one group there was added 100 pounds of dried buttermilk—powder. The other group had same weight of semi-solid buttermilk, fed during first week of brooding dissolved in water as drink, one part of buttermilk to eight parts of water, gradually reducing water. At broiler age it is given in paste form "smear-ed on brooder and house wall from which they eat it clean."

At the end of the ninth week males were sold as broilers, and pullets were put into laying quarters. The buttermilk lot of broilers averaged 1.45 pounds. The dry lot mortality was 9.2 per cent, and there were 362 broilers and 57 culls. The semi-solid group averaged 1.47 pounds, with 7.4 per cent mortality, 26 culls and 398 broilers. The 410 semi-solid pullets averaged 3.21 pounds and the 398 dry pullets averaged 3.17 pounds. The pullets for November gave an egg production of 14.9 per cent for semi-solid group, and 13.3 per cent for the dry group.

In feeding skim milk to young chicks, a milk-fed cockerel weighed 6½ pounds at five months, a water-fed cockerel, same breed and hatch weighed 2½ pounds.

From the above formulas, our readers can find some to fit almost any locality. When cows are kept the natural forms of milk can be used. When a home supply of milk is lacking, we advise the commercial buttermilk. We also strongly urge the use of yellow corn except where white plumaged fowls are being fitted for shows. It is far richer in vitamins and in zanthaphyll, giving better color to skin and to egg yolks.—Progressive Farmer.

Mattress Unsafe for Money.

The bank is the woman's good friend; she should keep an open account there and keep adding to it. The habit of tucking a few dollars here and there is bad. A thousand things may happen to it.

The following is taken from this morning's paper but it might just as well be about your savings as his if you keep your money at home.

"Will Jones, an industrious man, who works a farm just outside of town, and his wife, Maude, are poorer but wiser today from the loss of $810 that went up in smoke when their home burned last night.

"They had worked hard and saved their money, gradually adding a dollar or two to the pile, until quite a tidy sum had been stuffed in the old mattress, which was the only bank they trusted.

"At last they had enough for their supreme purpose—that of building another floor and remodeling their house. Today Will intended taking the money to M. G. Brown for the lumber, but providence acts in a queer and mysterious way, especially for Will and Maude, for last night a blaze took their entire savings and they now sadly regret that they had not put it in the bank where money is safe from fire, or at least where someone else is responsible."

Had Will and Maude put their money in the bank it would have grown to the amount of $150 or $200.

It would have been practically safe from fire.

Their lives would have been safer for thieves are often desperate men. It would have been a pleasant excuse to go to town to deposit the money.

It would have been an incentive to save and for others to help them.

Will and Maude would have had a little home for their declining years.

"It is a wise person who profits by the mistakes of others."—Progressive Farmer.

The Lawyer's Boy.

A certain lawyer who had always been a religious man denied all his early beliefs when his beautiful girl wife, whom he deeply loved, died in giving birth to a son. "What right had God to take her from me?" he cried again and again.

He became an atheist, a cynic who delighted in assailing the faith of others. Often in argument with guests at his home he would pooh-pooh the idea of immortality. "When you're dead," he would say, "you're dead as a doornail."

Meanwhile his soon grew up in the care of the housekeeper. Though the boy saw little of his father, he frequently overheard his conversations and arguments. One day the housekeeper asked to speak to the lawyer. The boy had learned to swear. "You must talk to him, sir," she said.

"Send him to me," replied the lawyer. A few minutes later father and son looked at each other. "How like my dead and gone Lucy the boy looks!" thought the father. He spoke sternly to the boy of his fault and then sent him away.

But the housekeeper came again and again with the same complaint. At last, seeking in desperation for some argument that would appeal to the boy, the lawyer said. "You know, my boy, that if your mother were alive she wouldn't like to hear you talk like that."

"But mother isn't alive," the boy replied glibly. "Shes' dead as a doornail."

The words struck to the heart of the embittered man; all his being seemed to surge up in protest against such words from the lips of his wife's son! He leaped to his feet. "She is not dead!" he cried. "Boy, your mother is alive and hears every word you utter!" He paused and then added, "I have been a wicked fool and have spoken what is not true. Come, my boy, we'll begin again and from now on see more of each other. Let us live in a way that is worthy of her!"—Youths' Companion.

Home Town Commandments.

1. Thou shalt love thy home town above all other towns. Thou shalt be loyal to her people and her institutions.

2. Thou shalt guard thy home town from the hosts of evil that would invade and destroy her soul. Thou shalt keep the good name of thy home town clean and without stain or blemish.

3. Thou shalt elect as thy public servants men of strong character, eager to conserve the best interests of thy people. And when thou hast elected such men thou shalt stand to support and encourage them, for their temptations are many and their burdens heavy.

4. Thou shalt exalt thy public school and honor it all the days of thy life with the best of teachers, buildings and equipments, for the school is the cradle of the future. Thy children are here and they shall be the leaders of tomorrow. No training is too good for them and no preparation superfluous.

5. Thou shalt defend the health of thy home town from the death that lurks in marshes, swamps, and heaps of filth. Thou shalt exterminate the fly and mosquito, for they carry typhoid and malaria. The tubercle bacillus shalt thou drive before thee with the sun and fresh air as thy allies.

6. Thou shalt build good roads and keep them good. For by her roads is a town known for good or ill. Eternal watchfulness shall be thy motto, that thy roads may not ravel nor thy supervisor forget thee.

7. Thou shalt keep thy home town beautiful. The hills, the trees, the waters that Nature has given her thou shalt preserve in sacred trust. No hotel shalt thou permit to disfigure them. Thou shalt keep thy homes and door yards clean and cheerful. The waters shalt thou purify that they may bring thee life and strength. The future of thy town shalt thou plan with care and diligence that thy growth be not haphazard, but full of thought and loving care, as the plans of a mother for the growth of her child.

8. Thou shalt honor thy community institutions. Thou shalt work together with thy neighbors with all thy heart and strength and mind. Thou shalt work together in thy organizations and clubs for the common welfare. Thy leaders shalt thou learn to obey. Thou shalt serve on committees where thou are put and not intrude on committees where thou art not put. Thus thou shalt know one another better, thy work prosper and thy friendship multiply.

9. Thou shalt be a good neighbor to all who live in thy home town, whether they be rich or poor. Thou shalt speak ill of none and good of many. Thou shalt be a friend to strangers and a visitor to the sick in their affliction.

10. Thou shalt go to church for the honor of thy home town and for thine own good. Thou shalt not consider thyself too wise, too busy, too bad or too good, to spend an hour or two on Sunday with thy neighbors in the worship of God. Thou shalt not send thy children to church. Thou shalt bring them there. Thou shalt offer thyself to thy spiritual leader for the service of God and thy community. So shall ye win many battles together.—F. Eastman, Sandford Herald, Fla.

Krupps to "Farm" in Russia.

London.—The Krupps, who used to make the kaiser's great guns and who have "beaten their swords into plowshares," in conjunction with a big German agricultural machinery company, are going into a vast grain producing scheme in Southern Russia. Such is the information which has reached London from Russia.

This project involves a tract of 135,000 acres in the Cossack country and marks the first move on the part of the big German interests to embark upon land cultivation in Russia. The Krupp representatives and experts received the great encouragement while in Russia and it is believed by next year there may be a move to extend the cultivation of grain to a tract of 5 million acres.

It is suggested also that the Germans may be encouraged to undertake the cultivation of cotton in Turkestan, where, it is asserted, the use of modern agricultural machinery would make it possible to raise more cotton than is produced in Egypt and India combined, and would make both Russia and Germany less dependent upon American cotton.

I Am Your Town.

Make of me what you will—I shall reflect you as clearly as a mirror throws back a candle beam.

If I am pleasing to the eye of the stranger within my gates; if I am such a sight as, having seen me, he will remember me all his days as a thing of beauty, the credit is yours.

Ambition and opportunity call some of my sons and daughters to high tasks and mighty privileges, to my greater honor and to my good repute in far places, but it is not chiefly these who are my strength. My strength is in those who remain, who are content with what I can offer them, and with what they can offer me. It was the greatest of all Romans who said: "Better be first in a little Iberian village than be second in Rome."

I am more than wood, brick and stone, more even than flesh and blood—I am the composite soul of all who call me Home.

I am your town.—Exchange.

Beer and Light Wines are the Entering Wedge.

The Newberry Observer, whose editor has grown old and gray as a veteran fighter for prohibition, is undisturbed over the desperate tactics of the "wets" on the theory that no amendment to the United States Constitution has ever been repealed or amended. True, but every bad cause has a beginning.

Beer and light wines don't fool those who look below the surface; but the dust is carefully kicked into many eyes. It is the entering wedge. There is only one thing to do with that wedge—batter it to a pulp—Calhoun Times.
