Banks of County Agreed to Help Farmers Buy Cows.

The banks of Newberry county have agreed to help reliable and responsible farmers of Newberry county purchase cows, according to an announcement made public today by the agricultural committee of the Newberry chamber of Commerce.

This committee has conferred with all bankers of the county on the subject, and with but one exception all have agreed to do everything possible to assist the farmers in purchasing cows in order that they may be in position to furnish cream to the Newberry creamery, which enterprise is now in full operation.

The establishment of the creamery in Newberry means more than can be said in this article toward fighting the boll weevil, for if every farmer in the county will milk two or three cows and sell the cream to the creamery and feed skimmed milk to the hogs and chickens and make proper use of the natural fertilizer they get from the cows they will soon be in position to run farms on a cash and paying basis.

Every farmer in the county who is interested in buying a few cows should see his banker at once and advise them of the number of cows wanted and make necessary arrangements about paying for them. The banks of the county who have agreed to assist in this proposition are as follows: Exchange Bank of Newberry, Commercial Bank of Newberry, National Bank of Newberry, Bank of Whitmire, Farmers Bank of Chapels, Bank of Prosperity, People's National Bank of Prosperity and the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Little Mountain.

The banks absolutely will not take chances on buying a bunch of cows and sell them out just as they can; every cow must be sold before they are purchased. As soon as a sufficient number are ordered to make a car load shipment the order will be placed.

The banks who have agreed to this proposition are to be commended for their act, for indeed they are giving assistance when it is mostly needed, and as stated above, all farmers interested should see their banks without delay.—Newberry Observer.

On Weevil Control in 1922.

Clemson College, June 28.—For the purpose of summing up in convenient form the recommendations of the Extension Service regarding boll weevil control this year, Information Card No. 22, entitled "Boll Weevil Control in 1922," has been issued and may be had upon application from the Extension Service, Clemson College, S. C., or from the county agent.

This brief publication gives seven points on the matter of control of the weevil, these being restatements of the suggestions made from time to time by the Extension Service. They have to do with cultivation, picking up under stalks as early as possible in the fall, planting cover crops after cotton, and practicing clean farming to destroy boll weevil hibernation places.

Advice as to Poisoning.

The advice given on the information Card as to poisoning is quoted below:

"The following are the conditions under which poisoning may be expected to be profitable. (a) On high yielding land. (b) Where weevil infestation is heavy. (c) The use of an approved dusting machine capable of covering the acreage for the application, according to an approved plan of calcium arsenate meeting the government specifications. (d) Under reasonable favorable weather conditions.

Information in regard to machines and calcium arsenate may be obtained from the county agents.

The only profitable results so far secured in carefully conducted tests by federal and state agencies were secured by the use of calcium arsenate in dust form properly applied.

Poison only when the air is calm and the plants are moist, using from five to seven pounds per acre for each application. When weevils are abundant when fruiting of cotton begins, one application may be made at that time. Use no calcium arsenate that has not been examined by federal or state authorities and pronounced satisfactory. The next application should be made when the weevils have punctured from ten to fifteen per cent of the squares, followed by two additional applications four days apart. Infestation counts should be made frequently and can be made by any farmer who follows the simple directions furnished upon application. The object is to keep the cotton thoroughly dusted until the weevils are under control. This may require a varying number of applications of poison, depending on the season, and other conditions. If weevils should become sufficiently numerous to severely injure the young bolls, one or two more applications late in the season should be made.

In case of a heavy rain within twenty-four hours after dusting, the application should be repeated immediately. Always a carefully selected plot of cotton should be left unpoisoned for comparison with the adjoining poisoned tract. This will help to determine how much the yield was increased by poisoning.

Ten Reasons Why Hogs Should be Raised.

Clemson College, July 3.—There are ten good reasons why South Carolina farmers should grow more hogs as a part of their general farming scheme, according to E. G. Godbey, Assistant Professor of Animal Husbandry. They are as follows:

1. Hogs are prolific. They will raise two litters per year and six or more pigs per litter.
2. Returns come very quickly. The sows will produce a litter at 12 months of age, and the pigs can be most profitably marketed at 8 to 10 months.
3. No other farm animal will produce meat for a given amount of feed.
4. A smaller amount of capital is required for stock and equipment than with other classes of farm animals.
5. Hogs can find a place in any system of farming.
6. Pork is more easily cured than are other meats.
7. Pork is the most nutritious meat. It has a high protein and energy value, and the United States Department of Agriculture has recently determined that it is high in those essential food factors called Vitamins.
8. A large part of the hog ration can be made from waste products as kitchen slops and spoiled grains. They furnish a very profitable method of marketing skimmilk and buttermilk.
9. Hogs help to establish and maintain a fertile soil. Approximately 80 per cent of the fertilizing value of their feed is returned to the soil.
10. Hog production, if properly managed, is a profitable business.

Sir Conan Doyle Won to Prohibition.

Just before setting sail for England, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle who has been on a speaking tour in the United States, told a representative of the New York Times that he was returning to England a convert to Prohibition, and added that he will advocate the policy for England although he can not spare the time to engage in public meetings and active propaganda. Sir Arthur said:

I go back a convert to Prohibition. I am a man who takes wine but nevertheless I think this generation might do a great thing to give up its comforts if by so doing it might save

Resolutions Adopted by Stevens Creek Church.

Whereas, a committee was appointed, by the members of Stevens Creek Baptist church and charged with the delicate and grave responsibility more than two years ago to find a preacher whom they believed would meet the need of the membership of this church, and

Whereas, after prayer and due consideration they were led to recommend Rev. W. P. Brooke, believing that he was the choice of the church at that time, and

Whereas, the growth in every interest of the church has been highly gratifying to the entire membership of this church, now therefore be it resolved

1st. That we believe in the good providence of God in that we have been blessed by his Godly and intelligent ministry.

2nd. Not only as a minister of the Gospel in the pulpit, but as a man of God, everywhere, we have been highly pleased with the way he has conducted himself.

3rd. While he has moved on the broadest plane endearing himself most to the hearts of those who knew him best;

4th. While we deeply regret his decision to leave us, we do not in the least question his motive nor doubt his love for us, but we believe that he sees the call of God in the field to which he has consented to go, while we give him up with great sorrow we bid him God-speed, and for the work at his new field, peace and prosperity under his humble, holy, consecrated and intelligent leadership;

5th. That a copy of these resolutions be recorded in our minutes, a copy be sent the churches to which he goes and a copy be sent the Baptist Courier, the Religious Herald and the Edgefield Advertiser for publication.

Respectfully submitted by your committee in church conference, June 25th, 1922.

In Civilized America, 1922

The following extract is from the Associated Press account of the mine riots at Herrin, Illinois:

"Out in a road near the mine, six men, tied together and all wounded by bullets and blows, lay in a scorching sun, while hundreds of men and women laughed at their pleas for water away.

"When the man begged again for water, 'for God's sake,' a young woman with a baby in her arms placed her foot on the mangled body and said: 'I'll see you in hell before you get any water.'

"The men apparently had been dragged down a rock road behind an automobile. Their clothes were torn and pieces of gravel were imbedded in their mangled flesh.

"A miner told the Associated Press correspondent that he had seen 15 bodies thrown into a pond with rocks around their necks, Thursday. About 20 imported workers are missing."

Strictly Business

Cooperative Marketing of Tobacco is the FARMERS' OWN MOVEMENT in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, which began with the 1920 collapse of prices for tobacco, and has made a growth within two years from small beginnings to an Association of 75,000 Tobacco Growers—the largest Cooperative Marketing Association in America.

It is a movement of the farmer, by the farmer, for the farmer. Its Directors are elected by the farmers. Of the 25 Directors, 22 are tobacco farmers, picked from the most successful planters, bankers and business men of three States.

The Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association is not a promotion scheme. It is strictly a business organization of farmers for the benefit of each and every member.

Each and every individual farmer owes it not only to himself, but to his family, his neighbor and his State to help.

As this is a common problem, with a common product, it must have the concerted support of all Tobacco Growers.

Why should any group of farmers desire to WAIT AND SEE, when for many years they have seen "the auction system," which has been tried and found wanting?
