

Clemson College Opens With 1005 Matriculated.

Clemson College, Sept. 7.—The thirtieth session of Clemson College began this morning with the chapel assembly, all old students having returned and matriculated yesterday and new students arriving today. Assignments to classes are being made today and regular class work will begin on Thursday morning. The only other students to arrive are the members of the one-year agricultural course, who are due to come in October 2.

In his announcements at the chapel exercises today, Dr. W. M. Riggs, president of the college, gave matriculation figures showing a total of 1005, as follows: 550 old students, 325 freshmen, 30 one-year agricultural students and 100 Federal Board students. While it is entirely possible that a few of the 355 new men may not arrive, there will be others to take their places, so that the total enrollment will most likely be as great as, if not greater, than that of last session, which was 1,007.

In this connection, Dr. Riggs called attention to the fact that during the three decades since the opening of Clemson College to students in 1893, the average enrollment by decades is as follows: 1893-1901, 455; 1901-1911, 625; 1911-1921, 825. The enrollment of 1,007 for last session and the enrollment to date for this session give promise that the present decade will show average yearly enrollment much above anything in the past, and it has already become a problem of how to provide buildings, equipment and teaching forces for the constantly enlarging student body.

In his talk to the students regarding the work of the session just beginning, Dr. Riggs emphasized as one of the greatest needs and ideals toward which to work is the necessity for more independent thinking and less subjection to what might be called mass psychology. Dr. Riggs predicted that with a faculty strengthened by a number of new teachers and with some increased facilities where most needed, the session gives promise of being a successful one.

Engineering Department.

With not a single change in the faculty of 14 members of the engineering teaching force and with considerable increase and improvement in shop facilities, the engineering department begins the new session's work in fine trim, according to Prof. S. B. Earle, director of the department. In the way of increased and improved shop facilities, the department constructed during the summer vacation a new wood-shop of ample size by the erection of a second-story of the wing of the building, which has always been used as the commercial woodshop. This new woodshop provides ample space for the systematic installment of wood-working equipment, so as to greatly improve the instruction in woodwork and makes room for better arrangement of laboratories of other divisions. In the old wood-shop the mechanical and testing laboratory has been installed, and in the basement of the same wing the mechanical and hydraulic laboratory has been placed. The space occupied by the former mechanical laboratory on the ground floor of the main body of the engineering building has been rearranged and made into class rooms and instrument rooms for the civil engineering division, which is enlarging its work, especially in roads construction phases.

With the change from the three-term to the two-semester plan, there has been considerable improvement in the courses of the seven divisions of the engineering department, these divisions being as now reorganized mechanical and electrical engineering, civil engineering, architecture and drawing, forge and foundry machine shop and woodwork. Decided improvements have been made also, says Prof. Earle, in the power plant, which is managed under the engineering department, by the addition of equipment which will give additional power and provide reserve power, which heretofore has been lacking, and the addition of equipment for the pumping station to give reserve power for the supply of water to the college community.

Jokes on Prohibition to be Eliminated in Keith Theatres.

General orders sent out by the directing head to be strictly adhered to.

Orders have been received in Portland by Clifford S. Hamilton, manager Keith's Theater, that he is to see that all humorous or serious references to prohibition, whether in favor of or against, or contained in songs, jokes, gags or wheezes, or dialogues, be eliminated from all programs at the theater.

This is a general order signed by E. F. Albee and sent out to every manager on the circuit. The order states that there have been many complaints by patrons of the Keith houses regarding jokes against the Volstead Act. The order also says, in the instructions to house managers, that the humor in prohibition has been overdone and to continue its use by the artists in the Keith theaters is irritating to those who favor prohibition.

In addition to these instructions, Mr. Albee's order to his managers also says the theaters should not be used for political propaganda, giving that as still another reason why no mention of prohibition is to be permitted.

It is understood that this order will hit a great many acts, as many of them have in some way or other some reference to the Volstead Act or the prohibitory law in general. It is even stated that many headline acts use this form of joke, but those who have followed the course of events have noticed in the past few months a decided objection among patrons of the theaters to reference in any way to prohibition. The feeling seems to be among patrons that the prohibitory law has long since passed the joke stage and, aside from the ethics in the matter, such jokes are so stale that there is no longer any humor in them. It is understood that some such order was issued once before, although not so stringent as the present order, and was adhered to for a time, but for the past two seasons the use of the prohibition gags, songs and lines, and small talk, has been quite general.

When seen upon the matter, Mr. Hamilton, the local manager, stated that he was very glad such an order had been passed; that from what he knew of the Portland people in general and his own audiences in particular, he knew that Mr. Albee's order would meet with general approval here.—Portland Evening Express.

Washington, Sept. 9.—Homage to Washington and Lincoln is being shown by more than 1,000,000 people a year. Washington's home, Mt. Vernon, the mecca of virtually all Americans and foreigners who come to Washington, is being rivalled as a shrine by the beautiful Lincoln memorial, while the Washington monument is the most popular of the three shrines.

Visitors numbering 34,112 went during July to the top of Washington monument, conveniently located a few hundred yards south of the White House. More than one-fifth of them clambered up the 898 steps in order to see the memorial tablets on the various landings inside the shaft. The remainder rode to the top in the electric elevator which has a capacity of 35 persons. More than 5,250,000 people have visited the top of the monument since it was opened for observation purposes October 9, 1888. No entrance fee is charged.

The Lincoln memorial, recently completed and opened to the public, was visited by 31,383 persons during July. Located in Potomac park directly west of the Washington monument it is rather inaccessible for pedestrians, visitors usually go there by automobile. On a recent Sunday 2,000 persons were recorded as entering the great building. It is rapidly becoming a shrine for tourists. No entrance fee is charged.

General George Washington's old home at Mount Vernon on the Potomac river in Virginia, 16 miles from Washington, long has been the mecca of pilgrims from every part of the world, who go by steamboat, electric train and automobiles. Kept as nearly in its original state as possible by the Ladies' Mount Vernon association it is a delight to all Americans. During July approximately 29,000 persons visited Mount Vernon and during the fiscal year admissions numbered 236,000. A 25-cent entrance fee helps to keep the estate in first-class condition.

The house where Abraham Lincoln died, located opposite Ford's theatre at 516 Tenth street, Northwest, this city, is another shrine visited by many tourists. It was bought by the United States in 1896 for $30,000.

Fires at Another and Kills Wife.

Perry Butler, a young negro, living on T. J. Brigg's farm in Edgefield county, about eight miles from North Augusta, was arrested on this side of the North Augusta bridge early last night by Augusta officers and is being held for Edgefield county authorities, as a result of an alleged shooting in which Mary Butler, wife of the arrested negro, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon.

The shooting took place in the Bethlehem Baptist church yard at about 4 o'clock. The negro told the officers here that the church is situated in Edgefield county at a point about ten miles from the North Augusta bridge. He did not deny having used a weapon, but said that his intentions were to shoot a racial brother with whom he had had some trouble.

"The other negro shot at me," Butler told the officers, "and I shot back at him and left in a hurry. There was a crowd of people in the churchyard, and I may have shot my wife in mistake," he said, in his story to the arresting officers.

Butler told of the difference between himself and the other negro, who shot at him, he claims. He said that he had gone to church, and that following the services, when many of the negroes were gathered in the yard, the other negro produced a revolver and shot at him.

He said that he returned fire, and after firing one shot, left the place and came toward Augusta. "I did not know whether I shot the negro or not," Butler said, "until I was nearly to the North Augusta Bridge, when I was told that I had shot and killed my wife, Mary." Butler said that he was not making any attempt to elude arrest, and declared that he was ready to answer any charges against him.

"I do not deny having shot my wife," the negro said last night, "for I did not want to see. But if I did kill her, it was by mistake, for I meant to shoot the negro man who had shot at me in the churchyard."

T. M. Butler, chief of police of North Augusta, stated last night that the negro came through that town, and upon seeing a buggy coming towards Augusta, requested the driver to carry him to Augusta. The white man driving the buggy being unaware of the shooting just a few hours before, picked the negro up and brought him to this city. Chief Butler upon learning that the negro was headed towards Augusta, notified the authorities here, and the arrest followed.

The sheriff of Edgefield county was notified last night by the local authorities, and the prisoner was turned over to him at a late hour. The sheriff carried the negro to Edgefield for investigation and trial. Augusta Chronicle.
