(©. 1922, Western Newspaper Union.) There was really no reason why Old Menuel should continue at seventyfive to pash his cart laden with cheap underwear along the streets of the East side. But the habits of a lifetime are difficult to eradicate, and Mendel had been doing it for thirtytive years.

He had come over from Poland in the prime of life, determined to make a fortune and then send for his wife, Rachel. They had been married ten years, and, though they had no children, they had always been happy together, since they first became sweethearts as a boy and girl.

Mendel had not prospered at first. It had taken him two years in a sweatshop to save up enough money to acquire a pushcart, and then the saving up for the steamship fare was a slow process. At last, however, he was able to send the money.

A letter came back inclosing it. Rachel had died of typhus about the time Mendel was buying the draft on the Warsaw bank.

She had died, fancying that he was standing beside her bed, and that same night Mendel had had such a strange dream of her.

He had dreamed he was home, but in a strange house and holding Rachel's hand, and she had told him that she could not come over immediately, but that she would come soon and all would be well.

Old Mendel was dazed by the news. For a week he did something that no self-respecting Jew would think of doing; he got drunk. Then he was found in Hester street with his pushcart again.

Time passed. The neighbors who had pitled him, began to look askance "Why doesn't Mendel get married again?" they asked. They knew he had a tidy sum put by.

Mendel did not marry again, and after a while he was accepted as a confirmed old widower. And he was growing old, so that the girls no longer looked at him. His hair whitened, he let his beard grow long.

Old Mendel had twelve thousand dollars in the bank. There was no leason why he should have continued to push his cart. But every day he was seen in the streets, calling his wares mechanically. Nobody bought of Mendel, for all his goods were out of style. They only said, "There goes Old Mendel!"

Old Mendel loved the streets, the swarming children, for whom he had a pat on the head, and sometimes a penny. He loved the sights and smells of the East side. It was his life, it was the life to which he had meant to bring Rachel. He often fancled that she was with him. Sometimes people would hear him muttering, but they did not know he was talking to They only said, "Old Mendel's getting queer."

The day was so bright and warm Old Mendel sat down on a doorstep, his pushcart standing in the road. The policeman, who knew Old Mendel, looked the other way when he saw that Old Mendel was sleeping. Gradnaily the hum of conversation, the roar of the traffic passed into a dull monotone, and Old Mendel dreamed.

It was so vivid a dream that he might have been living. He saw. Rachel standing before him with outstretched arms and such a sweet smile on her face. And it was not Rachel as she would have been, not even as she had been when they kissed each other good-by before he sailed, but Rachel as she was when he first courted her.

And the first thought that came to Old Mendel was, "I am too old. Why hasn't she changed in all these years?" But Rachel kissed him and said, "It's been a long waiting for you, my dear, but I've managed to come at last." Mendel forgot that it was a dream. "God bless you, Rachel!" he said. "I'm going to take such a nice apartment for you-four rooms and a bath. And I've got twelve thousand saved up, so we can buy our furniture outright. But I dreamed you were dead, and I've been so unhappy."

"There's no such thing as death, my dear." she answered smilingly. "Here I've been walking up and down Hester street beside you for years, trying to talk to you, and sometimes you answered me, but you were never quite sure it was I."

Mendel remembered that he had fallen asleep. "Promise me that this isn't a dream!" he pleaded. "Have you really come back to me forever?" "Forever and ever," answered Rachel softly, as she drew his head down to her breast. The policeman, returning on his patrol, glanced at Mendel again. "The old man's having a long sleep," he thought. He crossed the road and touched him lightly on the shoulder. "Hey, Mendel, wake up!" he said.

"Time to go home for supper. Y' musn't leave your cart standing in

But Mendel didn't wake up or answer him.

He Remembered.

The Japanese word for "good morning" sounds like "o-hi-o." A Japanese mentioned this fact to an American the other day. "Ah!" exclaimed the American, "that's easy to remember. It's the name of one of our states." Next morning the American met his Japanese friend. "Ah, Mr. Matzuyama," he said, "Illi-

Crude Method Employed by Ancient Pecules, but It Conveyed the Desired Information.

Practical telegraphy is not so entirely a product of modern science as many may suppose. It is tradition that Agamemnon telegraphed the fall of Troy to Greece by means of bonfires on the mountain tops. Although there may be much doubt as to whether this is not a mere legend, there can be no question that in the second century before Christ there was a system of telegraphing in Europe by which messages were sent from one place to another by means of fire, the words being spelled out letter by letter.

The letters of the alphabet were arranged in five columns, so that any letter could be designated by stating in what column it was contained and its number in that column. To convey this information to a distance two Jesus, where'er thy people meet, men, each having five torches, were stationed behind two barricades; the first, by holding up the necessary number of torches, indicated the number of the column that contained the letter he was sending, and the second indicated similarly the actual numerical place of the letter in that column. It is evident that by a series of stations messages of any length could have been sent-say from Rome to Athens.

HOLD VARIOUS BIRDS SACRED

People of Many Lands Strongly Superstitious Concerning Some of the Feathered Tribe.

Some Indian tribes will never hurt or even touch certain birds, regarding them as the abode of the animated souls of their dead chiefs. In England and Scotland, especially, the robin is regarded as sacred. Its red breast is supposed to be of that color because a drop of Christ's blood fell on a robin, and thenceforward all robins were so marked.

It is deemed unlucky to kill a swallow or to destroy its nest. That is because swallows were said to have flown round the Cross of Calvary crying "Svala Svala!" which means comfort. It will be noticed that the swallow gets its name from this peculiar cry of "Svala."

The wren is another sacred bird, because, according to an old belief, it brought fire form heaven to the earth when the human race had no knowledge of how to create fire.

The thrush is a bird of luck, and to have one build in the garden of one's home is said to be a sign of coming good fortune.

Peacocks are unlucky.

Woo in Flower Language.

The language of flowers in the Near East is no simple form of speech that anyone may understand. Long and elaborate communications may be sent by bouquet if the lady is not too lazy to learn a complicated code. There is, say those Turks who claim to understand it, a direct and an indirect form of flower message.

that rhyme either with the name of Child of sorrow and of woe; the flower or with the meaning of the It will joy and comfort give you, name of the flower. They go to Take it then where'er you go. lengths in selecting and collecting posies for bouquets to be sent singly and in series that would be quite too much trouble to the average American. To the average American girl ft sounds too complicated to interest anybody but a lady shut up in a courtyard without a telephone.

Sources of Folk Songs.

Because of the harmony of its language and the beauty of its natural Falling prostrate at His feet, associations, Italy is pre-eminently King of kings in heav'n we'll the land of poetical and musical compositions, says Raoul S. Bonanno in Christian Science Monitor. To write and sing sonnets appropriate to every event is among the instincts of the masses.

Two forms of folk songs are to be distinguished: One spontaneous and plebeian in origin, the other more literary and less spontaneous. The first can be traced in Italy to the very source of the language, the second is not older than three or four centuries.

Sicily is considered the source from which all poetry, natural or cultivated, sprang and passed into the rest of Italy. Its songs, through assimilation, became essentially and commonly Italian, although to become such they had to lose their original dialectical form.

Denatured Alcohol.

Denatured alcohol is grain alcohol made unfit for use as a beverage Completely denatured alcohol is made by adding ten gallons of wood alcohol and a half gallon of benzine to 100 gallons of ethyl alcohol. This is free from government tax and may be bought by any one for use as fuel or

The denaturing must be done when the alcohol is produced and in bonded warehouses used exclusively for the purpose and for storing denatured alcohol, and is done under the supervision of the government, according to the law. The grain alcohol may be made from grain, corn, potatoes or similarly starchy products, but the conditions under which it must be produced make it impracticable except for well-equipped factories.

9 OLD FORM OF TELEGRAPHING Hymns Taken From Rev. A. T. Allen's Calendar of Last Sunday

Hymn 16

Holy and reverend is the name Of our eternal King: Thrice holy Lord! the angels cry; Thrice holy! let us sing.

The deepest reverence of the mind Pay, O my soul! to God; Lift with thy hands a holy heart, To His sublime abode.

With sacred awe pronounce His name.

Whom words nor thoughts can A broken heart shall please Him

Than noblest forms of speech.

Hymn 26

There they behold thy mercy-seat: Where'er they seek Thee Thou art found,

And every place is hallowed

For Thou, within no walls confined Inhabitest the humble mind; Such ever bring Thee where they

And going, take Thee to their

Dear Shepherd of Thy chosen few. Thy former mercies here renew; Here, to our waiting hearts, pro-

The sweetness of Thy saving name.

Hymn 85

My God, my Father-blissful

Oh, may I call Thee mine! May I with sweet assurance claim A portion so divine!

This only can my fears control, And bid my sorrows fly; What harm can ever reach my soul Beneath my Father's eye?

Whate'er Thy providence denies, I calmly would resign; For Thou art good and just and wise:

Oh, bend my will to Thine!

Vesper Verse

need Thee every hour, Most gracious Lord, No tender voice like Thine Can peace afford.

(Chorus)

I need Thee, Oh, I need Thee; Every hour I need Thee; Oh, bless me now my Saviour, I come to Thee.

Hymn 180

The indirect message goes by words Take the name of Jesus with you, Precious name, O how sweet! Hope of earth and joy of heaven! Precious name! O how sweet, Hope of earth and joy of heaven!

Take the name of Jesus ever, As a shield from every snare; If temptations round you gather Breathe that holy name in prayer. At the name of Jesus bowing, crown Him,

When our journey is complete.

Hymn 367

More like Jesus would I be, Let my Saviour dwell in me; Fill my soul with peace and love, Make me gentle as a dove; More like Jesus, while I go, Pilgrim in this world below; Poor in spirit would I be,

Let my Saviour dwell in me. If He hears the raven's cry, If His ever watchful eye Marks the sparrows when they fall, Surely He will hear my call. He will teach me how to live, All my sinful thoughts forgive; Pure in heart I still would be-

Let my Saviour dwell in me! More like Jesus when I pray, More like Jesus day by day; May I rest me by His side, Where the tranquil waters glide. Born of Him, thro' grace renewed, By His love my will subdued, Rich in faith I still would be-Let my Saviour dwell in me!

Hymn 365

I am Thine, O Lord, I have heard Thy voice. And it told Thy love to me; But I long to rise in the arms of faith, And be closer drawn to Thee.

(Chorus)

Draw me nearer, nearer blessed Lord, To the cross where Thou hast died Draw me nearer, nearer, nearer blessed Lord, To Thy precious bleeding side.

Consecrate me now to Thy service, By the power of grace divine; Let my soul look up with a steadfast hope, And my will be lost in Thine.
