OVERWORK INDUCED Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless today had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HROSS, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

County vs. City Boys.

The Atlanta Journal commends an address of State School Commissioner Glenn, of Georgia, advising young men and boys in the country to stay on the farm and not to join in the rush to the cities, and in the course of its remarks the Journal says there are too many people in our cities. "It is noticeable," says the Anderson Journal, "that every now and then some such grave advice as that alluded to is given by some sage individual who does seem to view the whole situation. In the first place, it is a remarkable fact that a large proportion of the successful men in the cities have gone from the farms and villages to work out the ambitions and aspirations of their inner natures. This being a fact, why advise the ambitious youths of succeeding generations to stick to the rocky hill and risky mules and turn their backs to opportunities offered by the cities? In the second place, it is a noticeable fact that nearly all the idle surplus population of the cities is composed of those who were born and reared in the cities, where they have developed habits of indolence, extravagance and dissipation. This being a fact, why is it that no one offers to advise this idle, surplus population to get out of the cities, get to work and behave themselves? In other words, why is it that advice is always gratuitously heaped upon industrious farmers' sons, who furnish the bulk of the brain and brawn, the intelligence and integrity, of the country, while the idle, vicious surplus city population seems to be regarded as eminently qualified to take care of itself without suggestions from journalists and officeholders? These very wise city advisers, who caution the country boys to stay on the farms and not rush to the cities, are about on a par with the little bullet-headed politicians who insult the intelligence of farmers by talking to them about town people being their enemies, in the face of the fact that the leading citizens and most influential men in all the towns were themselves born and raised on the farm."

"I had chronic diarrhoea for ten years," says L. W. Kichlein, a justice of the peace at South Easton, Pa. "No remedy afforded me real relief until I was induced by Chas. T. Kilian, the druggist, to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It cured me and for a year I have had no return of the trouble." It has also cured many others, among them old soldiers who had contracted the disease in the army and given up all hope of recovery. For sale by J. E. Kauffman, Lexington. F. W. Fears of Thunder.

Electric storms are far less dangerous than the majority of people imagine. That a severe lightning storm is terrifying admits of no question, and will sometimes bring great uneasiness to the heart of the strongest man. But the real danger is slight. The chance of lightning striking a house, for example, is not one in a million. Particularly in this true in cities, strung, as most of them are, with electric wires. The great danger from electric storms is in the country, and even there the danger may be lessened if the simplest and most common-sense of precautions are exercised. The surest electric conductor is a draught, and if, when a thunder storm approaches, it is seen that all windows and doors liable to occasion a draught are kept closed, the danger is at once reduced to a minimum. If a woman is caught out in a thunder storm the safest shelter is a house; the most dangerous a tree, particularly an oak tree.

It is peculiar, but nevertheless a proven fact, that the oak is the most susceptible of all trees to a current of electricity. Over 50 per cent of trees struck by lightning storms during the summer, the government statistician tells us, were oaks, while the beech tree was the least harmed. Therefore, the worst possible place of shelter in an electrical storm is under an oak tree, while by all odds the safest place in a house and out of draught. The actual danger from an electric storm is in truth, not from the lightning nor the thunder, but from the nervous condition into which persons allow themselves to fall.

Fads in Medicine.

There are fads in medicine as in every thing else and a "new thing" frequently sells for a short time simply because it is new. But in medicine, as in nothing else, the people demand and will be satisfied only with positive, absolute merit. The fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has stood its ground against all competition, and its sales have never wavered but have remained steadily at the top, demonstrates, beyond any doubt, the intrinsic virtues of this medicine. The new things have come and gone but Hood's Sarsaparilla rests upon the solid foundation of absolute merit and its power to cure, and its sales continue to be the largest in the world.

Beaver Dam Notes.

 Please allow me space in your valuable paper for a few items from this section of the county, as I do not see anything from here.

Cotton is about all gathered and very little of it, as crops are short. The corn crop is fair.
 Syrup making is the order of the day.

Mr. Jacob D. Nichols is not doing so well. He is a good boy and we are sorry to hear that he is in bad health, but we hope to see him out again soon.

Mr. Willie Shealy returned to Newberry College on the first of October to resume his studies and we think he heard some young lady saying he will return by and by.

Mrs. Dovel of Florida, accompanied by her cousin, Miss Rosa Bell, the beautiful and charming daughter of Mr. Jacob W. Dreher, of the Fork, has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Joe Shull, of the Beaver Dam section.

Mr. John Long is putting an addition to his house. We learn that Mr. Walter Shealy is the foreman on the work now since Mr. Joe Leaphart has quit. We no that Mr. Shealy will give him good work, as he is a good workman and jovial fellow.

Your Boy Wont Live a Month

So Mr. Gilman Brown, of 34 Mills St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctor, who finally gave him up, saying: "Your boy wont live a month." He tried Dr. Kings New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use Dr. Kings New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial bottle free at Julian Kauffman's Drug store.

Struck In The Back.

The Curious Accident Which Befell an Aged Lady.

From the Press, Utica, N. Y.
 Mrs. Nancy Lappeus, the widow of the late Mr. John Lappeus, of Eden, Erie County, New York, and now residing with her son, Rev. Daniel P. Lappeus, the pastor of the Baptist Church of Brookfield, New York, is an old lady nearly seventy-seven years of age, well known in the locality where she now resides, and in Erie County, her husband having been one of the "forty-niners," or California pioneers. Several years ago she accidentally received an injury to her spine, which resulted in creeping paralysis or palsy of both hands and wrists, from which she has been cured. Her case being a remarkable one on account of her great age, Mrs. Lappeus' own statement of her cure is given:

Brookfield, New York,
 July 21, 1896.
 "My name is Nancy Lappeus, I am nearly seventy-seven years old, and the widow of John Lappeus, deceased, who died some three years ago, at Eden, New York, since which time I have resided with my son, Rev. Daniel P. Lappeus, a clergyman of the Baptist Church, and living place.

"About five years ago I was overtaken by a curious accident, through some boys who were playing on the street with boxing gloves at Eden, New York. By some means, while going into the post office, I was struck in the back by one of the boys, the blow resulting so seriously that for months I was unable to lie down, but had to take my rest in a chair, and suffered great pain from injury to the spine. I was gradually affected by creeping palsy in hands, which would become deadly white, beginning at the finger ends, the nails being blue, and the sense of touch or feeling in the affected parts suspended.

"The physicians, when these attacks appeared, would order me to immerse my hands in hot water, and this generally gave temporary relief, but the attacks became more frequent, and I knew if they were not stayed, I should entirely lose the use of my hands, if not my arms. The doctors said they could do more for me, but I determined not to leave any stone unturned that could afford me possible relief.

"At this time I learned through the newspapers some of the extraordinary cures that had been effected in all manner of diseases, by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and with my husband's full consent I began to take them. Improvement began in my condition almost immediately, and in a few months all symptoms of the palsy left me, and have never returned since. I am a firm believer in the efficacy of Pink Pills, and always shall be so.

"Nancy Lappeus."
 Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of the grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Afraid to Give Them a Chance.

New Orleans to the north bred man is a curious city with its strongly contrasted population, and not the least interesting place is the health office, where is kept an accurate record of births and deaths. From there also all marriage licenses are issued, and the men behind the long counter come face to face constantly with the sorrows and joys of the great population. A marriage license is a necessity, but the absence of it had not deterred an old African in joining in holy bonds at different times fully 10 of his color and kind. Finally, from some source or another, the old man learned that his marriages were not legal without the record and its accompanying license, and he became troubled in his mind. He appeared at length at the health office.

"Mawin," said he as he ambled in.
 "Be dis de place whar you obscure de licenses to marry?"
 "Yes, sir."
 Then with much evident mental perturbation he proceeded to state his case, and to express his desire and design to right the wrong.

"Have you no record of the marriages you have made?"
 "No, boss, I have none. Nebber thought but what I was intendin' to do Lov'd's business. But they's legal ain't they?" he continued anxiously.
 "No, I am afraid not; and the only thing for you to do will be to marry them over again."
 "Yah! No, sah! You s'pose I gwine let dem niggards know they're not married? No, sah. Why some of dem young bucks is done tired now, and if I tell 'em they're not married they'll be droppin' out jes' like tarryjumps jumpin' off a log."

The Best for Children.

"I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for children I ever used. For croup it is unequalled. It is a splendid seller with us. T. M. Eckles, Ph. G., Manager Wampum Pharmacy, Wampum, Pa." When used as soon as the first symptoms appear, that is as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. The mothers of croupy children should bear this in mind and always keep the remedy at hand. It is also the best medicine in the world for colds and whooping cough.

My Man Kicked Me Out.

I heard Col. Bein tell this story at a Chautauque assembly at Crete, Neb., and a man who sat near me whispered that that was the Colonel's favorite.

"I spent my life trying to reform drunkards," said the Kentucky orator. "Yet I am not insensitible to their funny side. They are unquestionably talented in the line of fun making."

"Take my friends Jones and Smith, for instance. They drank two much at the club one night, and fearing the interminable woe of a certain lecture, decided to stay at a up town hotel till morning.

"They were shown a room in which there were two beds. They dispensed with the formality of lighting the gas, chiefly because they couldn't find it. By accident they got into the same bed.

Smith called out excitedly: "Jones, there is a man in my bed."
 "There is man in my bed, too," answered Jones. Then Smith conceived a brilliant idea. "Let's kick 'em out," said he, "All right," said Jones.

They began. After a vigorous contest Jones was elected.

"Jones," called out the victor.
 "What," answered Jones, rubbing the spot where he had come in contact with the corner of the wash stand.
 "I kicked my man out."
 "Hub!" said Jones, "my man kicked me out."

It is surprising to many that football players and other athletes regard a sprain or bruise of so little consequence. One reason of this is, they know how to treat such injuries so as to recover from them in a few days, while others would be laid up for two or three weeks, if not longer. Writing from Central State Normal School, Lock Haven, Pa., Mr. W. H. Losch, captain of the base ball club and gymnasium says: "I take pleasure in stating, that members of our base ball club and myself have used Chamberlain's Pain Balm with most excellent results. I unhesitatingly recommend it as the best remedy for sprains, swellings, cuts and bruises, of any that I know."

Bryan's Campaign Speeches.

Expects the Votes of Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans. Why Corporations Oppose Him.

Ladies and Gentlemen—In this capital of West Virginia, I desire to express for the very cordial welcome which has been extended to me by the members of the triple Alliance. I find here upon the platform Democrats, Republicans, Populists, members of all parties who, while differing among themselves on minor questions, are united in their determination to restore to the people of this country the gold and silver coinage of the constitution. (Applause.) I am a believer not only in the right of the people to govern themselves, but also in their ability to govern themselves. (Applause.) They may be indifferent at times, but the American people will arise to any great emergency.

We may differ in opinion upon policies suggested by various parties, but my friends, whenever any party in this nation denies the ability of the nation to have such a financial policy as the American people want to have, other questions disappear and we stand united to vindicate the right of self government. Those who have been Republicans in the past; those who have voted the Republican ticket from the time the party was organized, find ample excuse for departing from that party this year. Go back to 1888 and you will find that the Republican party declared for gold and silver as standard money, and even went so far as to denounce the Democratic party for trying to demonetize silver. (Applause.)

In 1892 the national convention of the Republican party declared that the American people from tradition and interest were in favor of bimetallism. The Republicans who believe in bimetallism are determined to punish the Republican party, and I am perfectly willing to act as the instrument in their hands of doing the punishing. (Laughter and applause.) I say we are entitled to the votes of silver Republicans. (Applause.) We are entitled to the votes of the Populists also—(a voice "and you'll get them") because a large majority of the Democrats have always been in favor of the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 and a large minority of the Republicans have been for free coinage at 16 to 1.

"Now let me call your attention to the fact that our opponents are not fighting an open battle. (Cries of "no, no.") They are not giving their real reasons for opposing the success of our ticket. You find the heads of great railroads saying that if we have free coinage of silver it is going to injure their employes and therefore they are worrying about the free coinage of silver. (Applause.) These corporations are more opposed to the income tax which would make them contribute something to support the government than they are to free silver. (Applause.) They are more opposed to that plank which demands arbitration of the differences which arise between railroads engaged in interstate commerce and their employes than they are to free silver. (Applause.) They are more opposed to that plank in their argument against our party they spend all their time worrying over 50 cent dollars and never mention the real reason for their opposition. (Great applause.)

My friends, we are willing to meet them on any ground, but the great issue in this campaign is going to be the money question, and when that question is settled and the American people have vindicated their right to attend their own business, they can take up all the other matters piece by piece and settle them. (Applause.)

A Life Saved.

Jameson, Tenn., October 15, 1891.
 My daughter tried physicians and nearly all remedies for Female irregularities, but received no relief or benefit whatever. We had nearly despaired of her recovery when we were induced by our postmaster, Mr. A. A. Gooding, to try Gerstle's Female Panacea, and after using four bottles she was entirely cured, for which I feel it my duty to let it be known to the world and suffering humanity, for I believe she owes her life to the Panacea.

Rev. Sam P. Jones is helping out the populist ticket in Georgia.

days before railroads traversed the continent in every direction, and the West was a wilderness, New Orleans was the Mecca of travelers, and the fleet ware born palaces of the inland sea carried thousands of pleasure seekers to the South. It was then that life was a carnival, and men and women gave themselves up to the most lavish enjoyments. Gaming was a custom, and courage an instinct. Men were as prone to brawls as the sparks to fly upwards. Conspicuous among the fierce and rollicking habitues of the steamers was Captain West, a noted duelist. One day he engaged in a controversy with a gentleman he met on deck, whom he accused of staring at him impudently.

"Why do you look at me so intently?" demanded the Captain.
 "I was not looking at you," calmly replied the stranger, his eyes meanwhile fixed in a stony glare upon the duelist's face.
 "But you are, sir!"
 "I am not."
 The Captain turned away, but a short time afterward he felt those stony eyes were again upon him and following all his movements with pitiless ferocity. It became unexpressibly annoying, and the Captain at last determined to make an end of it. Stepping up to the stranger, he inquired, with suppressed passion:
 "Can you fight as well as look?"
 "Perhaps so. I never tried it. Place me, however, in position, and I will do my best."

The singular conduct of the stranger had by this time attracted universal attention, and whispered conferences regarding his remarkable appearance agitated little groups of persons all over the boat. In a short time, however, the vessel rounded to at a landing for wood, and then the parties to the impromptu duel went ashore. The stranger was led off by a negro servant, who seemingly picked his way. Indeed, from the intense interest he was manifesting in the encounter, the colored servant was apparently more deeply interested in the affair than his master.

But the time allotted for preliminaries was brief, and the men were speedily put in position, and pistols put in their hands.
 The word was given, and two ringing reports flashed out on the air. Captain West fell pierced to the heart. The stranger stood erect, calm and dignified. His second rushed up to him:
 "Are you hurt, sir?"
 "No; how is it with my antagonist?"
 "Can't you see? You have killed him."
 "No; I am unable to see."
 "You can't see?"
 "No; I am blind."

And he was. The tragedy was a nine day's wonder, and all sorts of rumors were rife as to the identity of the fatal stranger. But who he was and whether he went was a mystery never sold. The circumstance went to make up an incident in the dark and bloody memories which made famous the olden time.

Leeville Notes.

To the Editor of the Dispatch.
 Everybody is wishing for rain. The College has resumed its duties under very favorable auspices. Quite a number of the old students returned together with a goodly number of new ones.

Mr. B. N. Bodie has been quite sick for a few days but we are glad to note that he is improving.

The annual meeting of the Holiness Association will convene here on October 13th and continue for a few days. Quite a number of visitors are expected.

Cotton continues to come from quite a distance. The farmers here found Leeville a good market this season, as the merchants pay Augusta prices.

Miss Mattie Jean Adams leaves us today to attend the South Carolina college. We wish her a happy and successful school year.

Prof. Thornwell Haynes spent a few days in town last week. We think we will likely see the Prof. soon again.

Mr. S. M. Pearson has moved in the Smithfield house and will spend the winter with us.

Legislative Positions.

Some of the Candidates and Those Who are Safe.

Columbia Register.
 When the Legislature meets in January, in addition to the election of a United States Senator and Circuit Judges, the Speaker and two clerks of the House and a President pro tem. and two clerks of the Senate, will have to be chosen. For the Speakership no opposition has developed to Speaker Gary of the last House, so far as can be learned, and following precedents, he will likely be elected again.

For the Clerkship of the House General J. Walter Gray, the present incumbent, and Mr. J. T. Austin of Greenville, will be candidates. No others have been mentioned, and these two will likely be the only ones. No opposition has been developed as yet to Reading Clerk Withers of Chester. The other clerkships of the House are in the gift of the Speaker and there is no reason to believe that any changes will be made.

In the Senate a President pro tem will be chosen in the place of Senator Harrison, who ran for Governor, and was succeeded in the Senate by Mr. A. H. Dean. The office is one of dignity and honor, but no extra pay attaches to it, consequently there is never a scramble for the place, the Senators generally selected some good parliamentary men.

General R. R. Hemphill has held the Clerkship for several terms and will again be a candidate. He is so competent and thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office, that it is probable that any change will be made. Indeed, up to date, no one has been announced as a candidate against him.

Reading Clerk Stewart seems to be free of opposition also, and the other clerks will have to be appointed by Lieutenant Governor McSweeney. He has had a large number of applications, but it is not known what his action will be.

Be Kindly.

If only men would give to the living some of that which they bestow so lavishly upon them when they are dead, what a different world this would be! Even a little of that which is sculptured on the cold marble would, if breathed from the warm lip, made many a one happy for life. One of the superstitions of the Seneca Indians is that they can send their love by a bird to their dead ones. When a young maiden dies they imprison a young bird until it first begins to sing. Then they load it with kisses and caresses, and set it at liberty over the grave of the maiden who had died, believing that it will not fold its wings nor close its eyes, until it has flown to the spirit land and delivered its precious burden of affection to the loved and lost; and it is not uncommon for twenty or thirty birds to be loosed over the same grave. Many and many a husband and wife, many a brother and sister, would give all they have if only they could send to their dead ones an expression of love which might have been so easily made in life. And how many sons and daughters would now send messages unsaying many things which should never have been said, and saying many things which were, alas! left unsaid. Let the song birds of soft looks, of soft words, fly now. Now we know that they can reach, and we shall have this great advantage—the song birds will fly back to us again.

Confusion as to the choice of a blood purifier unnecessary. There is but one best Sarsaparilla, and that is Ayer's. This important fact was recognized at the World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, being the only blood-purifier admitted to be placed on exhibition.
