A Beautiful and Impressive Ceremony at St. Stephen's.

tiful and handsome St. Stephen's church was laid yesterday, Tuesday, October 27th, 1896, with the impressive and solemn Lutheran service. In making this announcement it iner.

is proper to brifly review the heroic struggles of a noble band of Christian women upon whose shoulders was rolled the heavy burden of providing a suitable house in which to entertain "The King of kings and The Lord of lords" and to worship their God in his own tabernacle. In doing so we shall not confine ourselves to a correct and detailed history of the Society through whose efforts the Lutherans are to have a building which will not only be an ornament to our town but a credit to the denomination and an enduring monument to the zeal, faithfulness and devotion of women to the cause of their Savior. This work has been placed in abler hands and when finished will appear in these

Feeling the need of more comfortable and commodious quarters in which to pay their public devotion to him who while upon earth had for a tabernacle the pure air and the blue vault of heaven for a canopy, but who now sits upon a throne of glory so brilliant and dazzling that humans cannot look upon it and live, some of the women connected with the church formed themselves into what is known as the "Woman's Aid Society of St. Stephen's church," having for its object the building of a new church, and to this end they have untiringly and unselfishingly labored until yesterday, in the language of the brilliant, eloquent and beloved pastor, "It has cost years of prayer, toil and sacrifice to reach his occasion of rejoicing." But yesterday's rejoicing, as great as it was, will be as nothing | the above named clergyman. compared with the great overflowing thankfulness, praise and rejoicing which will well from the hearts of these women when they behold their labor of years brought to a successful completion.

The old church, in which a part of the services were held, was very tastefully and beautifully decorated with lovely and fragrant flowers and evergreens in rich profusions. The building was crowded to its utmost capacity, many persons being unable to to get inside of the building. L. Mimnaugh, of the firm of Mimnaugh & Co., authorizes us to extend to the thousands of readers of the Dispatch a cordial invitation to visit his mammoth establishment, guaranteeing them a hearty welcome, fair dealing and polite attention.

Of the many attractions provided for the entertainment of visitors to the Fair none can surpass the gorgeous and brilliant display of genuine bargains prepared by Mimnaugh for the benefit the rich and poor who have a family to provide for and in doing so want to receive the value of their money. It may be well to state right here, so that there might be no misunderstanding, that Mr. Mimnaugh does not sell goods with the view of it being the last purchase of the customer, but his object is to secure and retain a customer by dealing with him fairly and honestly, therefore instead of doing as some merchants in other cities on like occasions, run up the price of goods, he has marked them down to the lowest possible notch. In the cloak and jacket department will be exhibited one of largest and handsomest lines ever brought to the city, embracing many new and beautiiful styles and at prices that will interest every body. No use for your poor, hard working and faithful wife to go though the chilling winds of winter to attend church when so little money will get such a handsome

The verdict of the public is that Mimnaugh has one of the finest dry goods departments in the South. Low prices is the keynote of his success and he intends keeping the key note by continuing to sell at rock bottom

All of the other departments are packed and jammed with beautiful goods at rare bargains. The largest as well as the smallest bill can be filled at the shortest notice.

Country merchants will save time money by purchasing their stock at Mimnaugh's. They are large wholesale dealers and are prepared to sell as cheap as the merchants of any Verdict Reduced.

At the last term of the court Common Pleas the case of Jesse Spires vs. The South Bound Railroad, in which the plaintiff sued the defendant for damages sustained by being knocked of the railroad at Sightler's crossing by an engine, was tried and the plaintiff was given $500 by the jury. The company made a motion for a new trial alleging that the verdict was excessive. Judge Buchanan has filed his decree reducing the damages to $300. We understand that the company is willing to pay this amount.
