LEXINGTON, S. C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1898.

THE COUNTY CAMPAIGN.

Last week was a red letter one for barbecues in this county and there were many homicides in the ranks of the hog and sheep communities. The first barbecue was that at Leesville given by Johns & Harman, on county campaign day last Wed nesday. There was a large crowd of electors, ladies and minors, who were enticed to leave their homes by the promise of a day of pleasure and enjoyment. The candidates were out in full force hunting for votes and were active in search of them.

Captain A. P. West, the nestor of pure and unadulterated Democracy in that section of the county, was the master of ceremonies and happily introduced the candidates.

W. H. Sharpe, Esq, candidate for the Legislature, was the first speaker to appear before the people. He opened his remarks by pleasantly telling an anecdote and then clearly stated his views on the questions of public interest. He said that while he did not wish to antagonize Clem son and Winthrop colleges, yet he was of the opinion that the appropriations for these two institutions were much too large and they should be reduced. He thought that a larger sum of money should be appropriated to the free common schools so as to improve their efficiency and make them more useful He favored the old county government system, because it was not near so cumbersome and less expensive and promised that should he be elected to the Legislature he would use his best endeavors to reduce expenses and thus lower the tax levy. He favors bi-annual sessions of the General Assembly. The above is about his platform briefly stated.

J. Brooks Wingard, candidate for the House, was then introduced and opened by saying that he was happy to meet the people of Leesville. That he was untried, but felt and knew that he was competent to meet the emergencies which might be demanded of him in the performance of his duties as Representative. He stated that the sum in round numbers of $175,000 by the State to maintain her five institutions of higher education as follows: Clemson, Winthrop, the South Carolina, the Citadel and the Colored Normal College at Orangeburg. These figures were excessive and startling. He thought it was wisdom on the part of the State to provide higher institutions of learning for the education of her sons and daughters, but we must not run wild over them. He was a friend to all high and low educational institutions, but they should be run with economy and with reasonable appropriations and if he was sent to the Legislature he would use his best efforts in that direction. He declared with Sam Jones, that whiskey's place was in hell and cuts no figure with him. He thought that sobriety should be taught at home around the fireside and believed that the State would never control the sale of whisky by sumptuary laws. If he could believe that prohibition would prohibit, he would favor prohibition. At the mention of Senator Tillman's name and when he came forward to be introduced he was greeted with applause. He opened, by saying that he could not have spoken at a more appropriate and suitable place, being on the border of Lexington and Saluda counties, the ban ners of the Reform and he was among personal and political friends He said I have advised you in many things and while in some instances have given some bad advice and made mistakes, and have felt the responsibility, but God knows he was sincere and honest. He said that he could discuss national issues, but it was unnecessary as we were all a unit on those questions. You know, he said, that it is claimed that I am the father of Winthrop and Clemson, and then gave a glowing occount of the noble work being accomplished by them. He was a friend to the common schools and all institutions of learning. He was proud of Clemson and proud of the work being done there for the farmer's sons, but it was not necessary to go over that work for it was evidenced all over the State. Before the founding of Clemson the fertilizer tax was used in purchasing fish and so on, the benefits of which were not seen nor realized. Now the farmers could see how the tax which they pay themselves, was expended in educating their sons. All the revenue from this tax was not used in paying the salaries of the professors, but a large portion was used in erecting necessary buildings and equipping the college. In the future, he thought that only $35,000 per annum would be required to support it. This institution is no common thing, but one of the grandest institutions in the South. Don't let these politicians who know nothing about it fool you and try and kill it out. Don't tear down the institution you have struggled to build. Don't let these fellows go around finding fault and fool you that you do not know what you are doing yourself. The special Federal appropriation must be expended for the purposes named in the act and for no other purpose whatever. There was a surplus of about $15,000 which is unavailable because there was no authority for its use except for the purposes named. These fellows are careful not to say anything against Winthrop, and if they do, "I want every woman in South Carolina to pull every hair out of their heads. Two years ago these fellows were going around advocating Clemson. Now they know that you want lower taxes they are crying against the appropriations for Clemson. There is no complaint of the increase of from $50,000 to $100,000 for pension of the old Confederate Veterans. They don't dare to. Don't let them bamboozle you. Tear down these institutions and where would you get your teachers for your common schools? Denominational colleges can't supply them. The rich would go abroad and bring about the impression that you are a poor, ignorant set of demagogic Reformers."

The cry once was that I would drive capital from the State, but now more factories in operation and still more are being erected. There s more money invested in various enterprises than ever before. Instead of going North to a textile school, your sons can be taught at Clemson. All kinds of factory work is being taught at Clemson. I would rather resign my seat and go home and plough than to drag these institutions down. These fellows who were once my friends, now cry out that the appropriations are too extravagant. They remind me of the fiddlers on the sea shore after the ide recedes. ["If you don't know what a fiddler is like I will tell you. It is a cross between a craw fish and crab with one claw bigger than the others"] they are going around using that big claw at poor Clemson as a vote catcher.

He then discussed the liquor ques tion. You have got whisky and what are you going to do with it? [A voice, "Drink it." The people love it and will have it in spite of the devil. Like Mr. Wingard, if I thought that prohibition would prohibit. I would vote for it. I am advising only for the good of the people and believe in the dispensary system. If all good people, the oreachers and Prohibitionists especially, would see that the law was prop erly enforced he was certain that the dispensary system would be the solution of the liquor problem. He wanted the law recognized and a Governor and other officers elected who would enforce the law. He spcks of high license as a monopoly and said that it meant a return to the old saloon system. He referred to the test of prohibition in 1894 as being a failure. We all knew the effects in l know that it will not prohibit. He sal that he had discussed these isues because they were burning ones and he had only given his views and advised as he conceived to be for the best interest of the people. The Senator was given a close and a tentive hearing and it was clear that he captivated his hearers and made many warm friends for Clemson and the dispensary; another thing was as equally clear and that is that the Senator has lost none of the influence with the people that made of the reformation. He closed by saying that as Senator I have endeavored to discharge my duties. Knowing no faction and God forbid that I should ever become so narrow minded. I may ask you to send me back, and if I do, I want you to vote for me. | cheers]

At the conclusion of the Senator's remarks dinner was announced. After dinner Messrs. Stokes and Brantley and the county candidates made speeches in the tabernacle, but on account of the rain, we did not get to hear them.

AT RISH'S.

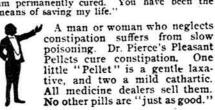

About one hundred persons, including men, women and children, met at Rish's to hear the views of the county candidates on the questions of the moment. The candidates for the House of Representatives seem to be practically agreed touching the Clemson appropriations. While not actually opposing the college they think that it is receiving too much money and they want the fertilizer tax, which goes exclusively to Clemson, abolished or greatly reduced. They are divided on the whisky question, though we believe not one of them openly advocate high licences. These two questions are the main issues being discussed. An excellent barbecue had been prepared to feed the hungry as they turned from labor to refreshments. Capt. J. F. Lyles ably and acceptably presided over the speaking and introduced the candidates in his usual happy manner. Hon. E. L. Asbill was the first one to give his views on public questions. Two years ago, he said, he received has got so that he does not sleep or eat, or rest, and the whole world looks gloomy to him, it is time for him to take medicine. Then, when he is braced up a bit, it is time enough for him to take to the bicycle. When a man's nerves have an edge on them, so that the least little disappointment rasps on his temper like a file, when his stomach and liver and nerves are deranged, and he is continually gloomy and melancholy, he should take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It makes a man as hungry as a fisherman and sees to it that all the vital elements of the food are absorbed into the blood. It braces up the liver and puts it to work in the right way. It drives all bilious impurities from the system. It fills flesh, nerves, brain cells, sinews and bones with the life-giving elements of rich, red, pure blood. It makes a man healthy and then a bicycle will make him strong. Medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing "just as good."

"Through your skillful treatment I am once "Through your skillful treatment I am once more a well man," writes J. N. Arnold. Esq., of Gandy, Logau Co., Neb. "I suffered for years with constipation and torpidity of the liver, irritation of the prostate and inflammation of the bladder. I took six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' and am permanently cured. You have been the means of saving my life."

his impetus for victory at this very place. He gave an account of his stewardship saying that his best efforts had been used in behalf of the people, briefly stating some of the measures which he favored. He was instrumental in having the telegraph and express companies put under the supervision of the railroad commissioners and giving them authoritity to fix a uniform schedule of charges. He was successful in having enacted a law to compel laborers to stick to contracts. He supported the Jim Crow Car bill forcing the railroads to provide separate coaches for the races. He thought more attention shoud be given to the common schools and every child s'ould learn to read and write. The appropriations were entirely too much for the higher educational institutions and that the strictest economy should be used in their management. The common schools were neglected in the interest of the State colleges. He asked the question could the people send their boys to Clemson; the old field school should receive some of the privilege tax money; that the tax should be reduced 21 or 3 per cent. W. H. Sharpe, Esq, was the next speaker and said that he needed no introduction to the people; he was but a farmer boy and lawyer; he would be the last person to lay ruthless hands upon Winthrop, but the appropriation was too large and should be cut down to the proper figures. He compared the salaries of the professors to those of the plowman and laborers and showed how long it would take for the salaries of the latter to reach those of the former; he had no complaint against Claffin. If elected to the Legislature, he would show which side he was on. He favored the reduction of number of magistrates by abolishing four and increasing the pay of the remaining

Mr. J. Brooks Wingard said that two years ago Mr. Asbill was unknown and today I may be the unknown quality, but it remains for the people to say whether I am worthy or not to discharge the duties of the Legislature. I have been a plowboy 34 of 42 years. We must take care his success possible in the early days of the higher educational institutions. Clemson was a noble institu tion and should be properly provided for, but when expenses were considered it was no more a poor man's college than the others. The actual expenses for nine months were $99-80 and including the tuition fee of $40, the expenses would foot up to $139,80 while at other colleges the expenses would amount to about only £100.00, Clemson received 96-000 more than you are able to stand, $63,000 of which is derived from the special fertilizer tax and the remainder comes from the United States government. Why not repeal the fertilizer tax to meet the actual expenses. If I am sent to the Legislature, I will look to your interest. I am not opposed to the bigher institutions, but the appropriations must be cut down to a sum sufficient to meet neccessary expenses. I am a friend to the South Carolina College and to Winthrop and they must he was willing to carry out the wishes of the people.

> ple for electing Lim and gave an account of his stewardship, and thought that with his enlarged experience he was able to serve the people better and would be pleased if they returned him. One thing he did was to liquidate the county school debt by reducing the school term one third, you have paid onethird and in two years more you will have paid the debt. He fought and help defeat the redistricting bill: was instrumental in having passed the word law for advertising legal notices

Hon. D. F. Efird thanked the peo

and defeated the bill proposing to raise the charges. He succeeded in having the number of clerks for the House Committees reduced. He favored all the State educational institutions and that direct and specific appropriations should be made for their maintenance. He thought that the fertilizer tax should go to the general fund. As to the whisky question he said he was a prohib tionist from principle, but the dispensary was the best solution and believed that the people should stand by it and enforce the law. It may not be perfect, but he honestly believed that it was best for the people. He favors the legislature meeting only once every two years which would be a saving of about $3,000, as it cost $1,000 a day. He had not been absent a day during the sitting of the Legislature and was always at his post of duty. Mr. Brantley said that he was glad to meet the people of Edisto;

was the son of a farmer and of a Confederate soldier, and not belong. ing to any faction, but a plain farmer boy and represent no one but himseif; shall recognize no rings, cliques or combinations; had not a word against his opponent, but you have honored him long enough, the time had come when the young men of the country should be pushed to the front and occupy their proper places in the council of the nation. Referred to Bryan and the silver campaign in West Virginia and stood upon the same platform favoring silver, the money of the poor; beieved in an income tax on incomes over $4,000. Spoke of the injustice of pension law in favoring the North over the South; favored a tariff for the South as well as for the North and a bounty on cotton of 1 cent per pound or $4 per bale: he thought the products of the South should be protected-that which is good for the rice and sugar planters is good for all farmers.

A letter was read by Capt. Lyles from Dr. Stokes, regretting that sickness prevented him from being

The speaking commenced at about 11 o'clock, near Mr. Goodwin's mill. In regard to the number of persons present, this meeting did not come up to our expectation, as there were not more than a hundred voters present. All the candidates spoke, some of whom gave an account of their stewardship and others definng their position, going over the same ground they had gone over at previous meetings. After our de parture, Dr. Stokes and Mr. Brantley spoke. Dr. Stokes has many warm friends and from what we earned he has lost no ground. Mr. Brantley will receive a complimentary vote. Messrs. Lybrand & Koon served a good barbecued dinner and everything passed off pleasantly, but the "tiger" began to howl.

The 'cue at Goodwin's yesterday was nicely prepared and enjoyed by the candidates. There were present about seventy-five voters and a number of ladies and children. The candidates entertained the people both before and after dinner.

From this place the salvation army took up its march for Brookland to attend the meeting last night appointed especially for the factory people and it is expected that many new converts will be added to the number of each candidate's vote. The regular campaign meeting is being held there to day.

A Wonderful Discovery.

The last quarter of a century records many wonderful discoveries in medicine, but none that have accomplished more for humanity than that sterling old household remedy, Browns' Iron Bitters. It seems to contain the very elements of good health, and neither man, woman or child can take it without deriving the greatest benefit. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

COMPLETE BUGGY EVERY 42 MINUTES AND 14 SECONDS

Just think of it. Body, seat, gear, wheels-everything-all made, painted, trimmedome open, mostly with tops-packed and shipped in Forty-two Minutes and Fourteen Seconds. Don't look reasonable, but it was our daily average from January 1st, 1898, counting every working day of 10 hours. That's the reason we can make the best buggy for the least money. Small factories are compelled to add from $ 0 to $15 per job for profits, while we can, with this capacity, live on $1 per job - the balance to be divided between our customers in the way of a better baggy for less money. That's the whole secret in a nut shell. If you don't buy a Rock Hill Buggy you don't get the best -no matter what price you pay or what you think.

"A Little Higher in Price --."

NOTE - "ROCK HILL" Buggies are made with the greatest care and from the best material obtainable, and are warranted as represented They cannot, therefore, be sold at the price of "cheap john" stuff made hurriedly, painted quick and throw together. But the advance in price is so very little above the Western trash that no sensible man will object to pay it in order to get something he knows is the best. Sold by all first class dealers in every town and city in the South. When you need a buggy insist upon your dealer supplying you with a "ROCK HILL." If he will not do it because the profit to him is nothing like what it would be on the clapp-trap stuff, write us. see you get a genuine "ROCK HILL" Baggy at the right price.
