Sweet College Girls.

A Letter from the Columbia Female

To the Editor of the Dispatch: College opened on the 28th, with a very fair matriculation. The committee appointed by the college Y W. C. A. before leaving last spring to come and receive the new girls was present and appeared bright, light hearted and happy. They gave the girls a hearty welcome within the venerable walls of our college and they soon became as much at home as those who had been here before. They have not suffered from homesickness but very little and not near so much as the old girls.

The time has been spent by the new students in standing their examinations and while they are hard at work and wishing for some sympathising hand and consoling voice to cheer them during these hours, the reception committee is without making every needed preparation for a reception on Friday night to which we have gained Dr. Rice's permission to invite the Y. W. C. A., from the South Carolina College and the College for Women. We expect the announcement of the reception to be a surprise to most of the girls unless some of us become overjoyed and tell them of it.

The little fire that occurred just without our premises during vacation has proved a "blessing in disguise," since there are a number of marked improvements made, and now the college looks fresh and it fills us all with inspiration to see the windows filled with bright faces and the campus dotted here and there with familiar forms. From the appearance of everything now we all expect to have a very pleasant and profitable year.

Lexington should be represented by a larger crowd of girls and we hope for some of them to join our number before many days shall have Trouble with the Pillager Indians.

The correspondent of the Globe telegraphed from near Leech lake, Minn, dated Oct. 6th, that the Indians ambushed, trapped and annihilated the command of General Bacon, and did so in a more cowardly way than first reported. The Indians seen pretended to be friendly with the soldiers. The soldiers had un loaded, preparing to leave, when the Indians fired. When last seen the soldiers were crouching behind trees defending themselves. The pilot of the boat was injured as she left.

A special train with three companies went to reinforce Bacon this morning, and besides troops, Secty. Alger has ordered additional re-inforcements to the scene of trouble at "The trouble at Leech lake origi nated in consequence of an arrest made by a deputy United States marshal of an Indian on a warrant charged with illicit liquor traffic. The Indians overpowered the marshal and rescued the prisoner. Troops were sent here to assist the marshal in arresting the rescuers. I have been here a week doing my best to get the Indians to give themselves up and save trouble, but they would not. Today the troops and Indians had several battles. The United States marshal has asked for more troops."

Later, however, the firing was resumed and it has continued practic ally all day. This makes it certain that Gen. Bacon's command is still on earth and in fighting trim. It is now believed the soldiers are entrenched and in a position to hold out until reinforcements reach them.

It is said Maj. M. C. Wilkinson, Deputy Marshal T. J. Sheehan, five soldiers and two Indian police were killed, and several soldiers wounded. As many or more Indians were killed and wounded, although the Indians had great advantage, hidden in the thick underbush, and evidently intended a general massacre. Troops are rushing to the front and we may look for results later.

Last week Mr. Stanmore Hayes, we learn, killed two rattlesnakes under his house from two and a half to three feet long.

A few days ago Mrs. Lewie Hallman fired a gun into a flock of chattering English sparrows in the top of a maple tree, killing seven of them and a large rat-a shot hard to beat. Time and space tells it is time to stop, but I would like to tell you of a most enjoyable occasion. A fish fry picnic, at Mr. Geo. Lewis' mill, a few days ago. To the Editor of the Dispatch:

Farmers are busy gathering the fleecy staple but wear long faces on account of the low price. Several say they will try something else another year. If they will only suit their actions to their words I think it would be better for them.

There are several cases of fever around in this section but not of a serious nature.

The protracted meeting just closed at Samaria was a very interesting one. The gospel was ably preached by the Rev. Mr. Evans Hall, the pastor, assisted by Revs. T. S. Rivers, Jefcoat and Lake. Large congregations attended, especially at night.

Fourth District Republicans.

Today the Union Republicans of the Fourth congressional district are to hold a district convention at Laurens evidently for the purpose of nominating a candidate to oppose Congressman Wilson in the coming general election. This county is to be represented at the convention by N. E Lewis, county chairman, Postmaster Enso, E. W. Screven and Louis Pryor.

It is stated that many privates and non-commissioned officers in the First Regiment are so much in love with army life that they will apply for enlistment in the Second Regiment, or join the regular army.

Scrofula to Consumption.

Any one predisposed to Scrofula can never be healthy and vigorous. This taint in the blood naturally drifts into Consumption. Being such a deep-seated blood disease, Swift's Specific is the only known cure for Scrofula, because it is the only remedy which can reach the disease.

scrofuls appeared on the head of my little grandchild when only 18 months old. Shortly after breaking out it spread rapidly all over her body. The scabs on the sores would peel off on the slightest touch, and the odor that would arise made the atmosphere of the room sickening and unbearable. The disease next attacked the eyes, and we feared she would lose her sight. Eminent physicians from the surrounding country were sonsulted, but could do hothing to relieve the lit-case was hopeless and impossible to save the child's eyesight. It was then that we decided to try Swift's Specific. That medicine at once made a speedy and complete cure. She is now a young lady, and has never had a sign of the disease to return.

Scrofula is an obstinate blood disease, and is beyond the reach of the average blood medicine. Swift's Specific

Men Who Have Foretold the Coming of Their Own End. The first symptom of approaching death with some is the strong presentiment that they are about to die. Ozanam, the mathematician, while in apparent health rejected pupils from the feeling that he was on the eve of resting from his labors, and he expired soon after of an apoplectic stroke. Fletcher, the divine, had a dream which shadowed out his impending dissolution, and believing it to be the merciful warning of heaven he sent for a sculptor and ordered his tomb. "Begin your work forthwith," he said at parting. "There is no time to lose." And unless the artist had obeyed the admonition, death would have proved the quicker workman of the two. Mozart wrote his "Requiem" under the conviction that the monument he was raising to his genius would, by the power of association prove a universal monument to his remains. When life was flesting very fast, he called for the score and musing over it said, "Did I not tell you truly that it was for myself that I composed that death chant?" Another great artist in a different department, convinced that his hand was about to lose its canning, chose a subject emblematical of the coming event. His friends inquired the nature of his coming design, and Hogarth replied, "The end of all things." "In that case," rejoined one, "there will be an end of the painter." What was uttered in jest was answered in earnest, with a solemn look and a heavy sigh. 'There will,' he said, "and the sooner my work is done the better." He commenced next day, labored upon the drawing with unremitting diligence, and when he had given it the last touch seized his palette, broke it in pieces, and said, "I have finished." The print was published in March under the title of "Finis," and in October the curious eyes which saw the manners in the face were closed in the dust. Our ancestors, who were prone to look in the air for causes which were to be found upon the earth, attributed these intimations to various supernatural agencies. John Hunter has solved the mystery, if mystery it can be called, in a single sentence. "We sometimes," he says, "feel within ourselves that we shall not live, for the living powers become weak, and the nerves communicate the intelligence to the brain."

His own case has often been quoted among the marvels of which he offered this rational explanation. He intimated, on leaving home, that if a discussion which awaited him at the hospital took an angry turn it would prove his death. A colleague gave him the lie, the coarse word verified the prophecy, and he expired almost immediately in an adjoining room. There was everything to lament in the circumstance, but nothing at which to wonder.

Circumstances which at another time would excite no attention are accepted for an omen when health is failing. The order for the requiem with Mozart, the dream with Fletcher, turned the current of their thoughts to the grave. Foote, prior to his departure for the continent, stood contemplating the picture of a brother author and exclaimed, his eyes full of tears, "Poor Weston!" In the same dejected tone he added, after a pause, "Soon others shall say, 'Poor Foote!" And to the surprise of his friends a few days proved the justice of his prognostication. The expectation of the event had a share in producing it, for a slight shock completes the destruction of prostrate energies. The case of Wolsey was singular. The morning before he died he asked of Cavendish the hour and was answered. 'Past 8." "Eight of the clock?" re plied Wolsey. "That cannot be. Eight of the clock-nay, nay, it cannot be 8 of the clock, for by 8 of the clock you shall lose your master." The day he miscalculated; the hour came true. On the following morning, as the clock struck 8, his troubled spirit passed from life. Cavendish and the bystanders thought he must have had a revelation of the time of his death, and from the way in which the fact had taken possession of his mind we suspect that he relied on astrological prediction, which had the credit of a revelation in his own esteem -Household Words.

A New Terror For Tutors. Dueling has shown a new development in Germany. The university student is no longer content with disfiguring the noses, chins and cheeks of his friends to avenge supposed insults or with gaining the glory of scarification himself. He aspires to greater enterprises and is determined no longer to stand the tyranny of his professors and examiners. The president of the Berlin university had the misfortune the other day to plow a student in an examination for the twelfth time. This candidate for academic honors resolved no longer to tolerate such repeated insults, and forthwith sent the president a challenge by a fellow student. The president, however, refused to comply with the polite request of pistols for two and coffee for one, or of swords and bolsters in the park in the early morning. But he has not sent the bloodthirsty undergraduate for a change in the country, as he might well have done. The students of Berlin have dubbed the professor a coward. But the German press thinks that his decision not to accept the challenge is, on the whole, justified. They argue it would never do for the undergraduate at a university to be able to appeal to arms if plowed in an examination. And there is certainly something from the professor's side to be said for this view. -Westminster Gazette.

"Why, paw, you can't take three from two," said the midnight speculator's little boy. "If that's all they learn you in them schools," said the parent, "you better quit. Didn't I take $3 from two dudes only last night?" - Cincinnati Enquirer.

> In a Leading Editorial in the American Journal of Health - The Highest Authority in the United States on Hygiene, Etc., Praises in Unmeasured Terms Thacher's Worm Syrup-Physicians and Druggists Can Conscientiously Recommend This Remarkable Remedy.

[The following editorial was recently pubished as above, without the solicitation or even suggestion of the Toacher Medicine Company, which has never been a patron of the American Health Journal, either an advertiser or subscriber. No higher or more genuine compliment was ever paid to any Chattanoogo concern.]

THE RECOMMENDATION OF REME-DIES WHICH REALLY CURE.

A consistently conservative pelicy has always characterized the editorial conduct of this journal. And we think this had no s call share in winning our place in the public confidence. For it is universally recognized that we only express a decided opinion after matere reflection and exhastive, impartial examination of every subject we discuss. Whenever a remedy or a novel method for the treatment of disease appears the American Journal of Health. conscions of the duty it owes its readers. first investigates and then speaks. We take nothing for granted - neither the advertisments of the remedy itself or the printed tes'imonials as to the cures it has eff cted influences our judgment Oaly when we have convinced ourselves by actual demonstration of the truth do we undertake to publish our vi ws. Then our views are positive, because they are based on knowledge, and they either praise or blame the particular remedy strictly according to its

An instance where we can bestow our praise occurs in the case of ' Dr. Thacher's Worm byrup," offered by the Thach r M-dicine Company, of Chatanooga, Tonn. We have verified the record of this remedy as an infallible specific for worms. We satisfied ourselves of the genuineness of this specific; we intrusted the matter to a medical man of long and varied experience, and for many years connected vith this journal in an editorial capacity. His report sconclusive proof that here we have a remedy which is not a palitative simply, but a cure. In saying this we are aware tout we assert a great deal, but we are also confilent that we are not asserting too much. The truth is that in many instances the so called cures afford only temporary relief; frequen'ly they do not even accomp'ish that Bat in "Dr. Thacher's Worm result. Syrup" suff-rers have found, and we are satisfied will find, that permanent benefit which it is the prime purpose of medical skiil to bestow.

Every circumstance connected with the subject of our inquiry was investigated by us. No pains were spared to render the inquiry full and complete. We can, therefore, address our readers in positive language regarding this remedy. What the sufferers from this disease hopefully seeks is semething that will care. There are innumerable remedies which will andoubtdeed, which cure. And a vast d.fferance exists between the two terms-one means a temporary relief, the other complete emancipation from the bonds of disase. Science is progressive and constantly endeavoring to accomplish new things. The old methods must yield when they are outclassed by fresh discoveries. And medical science especially, while conservative, is not so to a degree which prohibits its recognition of the demonstrated worth of a successful advance upon the older methods. "Dr Thatcher's Worm Syrup" really represents an advance in the medical treatment of disease and consequently deserves cur endorsement. Anything which mitigates suffering is gladly welcomed as a ble-sing; the remedy which can core is hailed as a divine dispensation. While recommending to our readers, in the most unqualified erms, the indisputable merits, of "Dr Thacher's Worm Syrup," we would also address ourselves to the pharmacist, because it is desirable that he should know exactly what he can guarantee to the public as a cure with the certainty that his clients will have no cause to accuse him of his misrepresentation.
