LEXINGTON, S. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1899. Hauled Up Short--Uncle Sam Insists on Having His Taxes Paid

Inspector Brodnax, Representing the Government, Drops in on Many of the "Tiger" Keepers and Lets them Know that the United States Must be Given its License Money or Something will Drop Right Away-Several Hundred Places are Said to be Properly Equipped with the License Card, but Many Others were Found Without the Necessary Document-Brokers and Pool

Room Keepers Receive a Visit.

Charleston News and Courier. The visit of Inspector Brodnax to Charleston was a wild surprise to hundreds of people who have more or less connection with the Federal Government. Some time ago it was printed in the News and Courier that the revenue people were hot after violators of the law, and it was hinted that wholesale raids could be expected shortly. There was a considerable amount of inspection work in the city, and the conditions existing were not found to be of the most satisfactory kind. A report to this effect is said to have gone into headquarters and Mr. Brodnax was detailed to come here and make an examination. He got to work early Monday, as announced in The News and Courier yesterday, and the business people who have been disregarding the law were jerked up with little mercy. The conditions were such, however, that the dealers were told to get licenses instantly, and by paying the penalties they escaped prosecution. Inspector Brodmax will probably have many cases made out against dealers who have not supplied themselves with the proper licenses to sell liquor. There has been an open violation of this law and as soon as the work is finished the department will decide on a plan of campaign. It was recently stated that at least three hundred shops and tigers in Charleston were selling liquor without the proper authority from the Government. This applies mostly to the corner shop keepers, who sell beer on the slv. but an examination yesterday showed many tigers of the firstclass style were licenses were not to be seen. Indictments will probably be made out in a number of cases, though no steps in this direction were taken yesterday. The matter will stand over until the inspector has completed his duties in the city, and on the nature of his report will depend the future handling of the The drug people got a glimpse of Inspector Brodnax. He called at all the drug stores and made a general inspection. In several places he found that malt was being sold without license. The dealers admitted that they had been advertising and selling this freely, and they assigned at once and to pay the penalties which will have to attach. The brokers were also caught by surprise and required to take out licenses. Owners of pool tables were re quired to show if they had paid the amounts required by the Government. In one place seven pool tables were marked and the owners required to pay five dollars on each.

The cigar manufacturing business came in for a share of the inspector's time and this business was looked into thoroughly. In fact Mr. Brodnax will examine closely into every branch of the business which comes under his supervision. He will remain here for several days, or at least until he has made the rounds of the the entire city. When this is done a full report will be prepared and cases will probably be made out against a number of people who have been
