Shredded Corn--Its Value.

From the Southern Cultivator.

The Georgia Experiment Station places the value of constalks in Georgia at about one and a half million (1,500,000) dollars per year. At least 95 per cent, of this is wasted by being left in the field to rot, without materially benefiting the soil as a fertilizer, yet very much in the way while cultivating the crop the following year. While this waste is going on the poor man's stock is left almost to perish upon dead grass during the winter months and the wealthy man's cattle feed upon cotton seed hulls and meal, sometimes to eat timothy hay, raised, cured, baled and shipped from some other State, the same costing from $15 to $20 per ton. Last September I bought an interest in a Shredder, cut, shocked and shredded eighteen acres of corn, having sufficient to winter sixteen cows and two mules, using no other forage, besides having to feed cows through an unusually long winter. I wintered four other cows (not my own) upon cotton seed hulls and meal at a cost of from $2 to $2 50 per month.

Comparing cost on the above; half dozen hands can cut and shock eighteen acres of corn in a day. Six hands could with difficulty pull fodder from about one-third as much ground, and fodder curing is generally accompanied with a great deal of risk. The corn, if well shocked, will not injure if rained upon for two weeks, for it should be shocked as fast as cut.

From The Cultivator I see that hoes are used to cut the corn. My plan is to break the hook from an old scythe blade, batter down the hook end and bind with padding for handle. This will be found to have the right length and weight and serves the purpose much better than a hoe, as the corn may in this matter be laid in straight piles, and gathered easily for shocking. A careful hand should start the shock by placing two armfuls of the cut corn together with the butts placed firmly on the ground and the tops placed well together. The shock thus started resemble the letter A. Afterward the other hands may gether up the corn lying near and place equally on

In bottom or very big corn, a ladder of three or four risers may be used in order to reach the top to tie securely.

In four to six weeks shocks with two to three hundred stalks in them will be ready for the shredder. In case the shredding cannot be done at the expiration of the curing period three or four shocks at a small cost may be combined, and then the shredding may be postponed indefi nitely. This corn will not injure if the tops are well pressed together and the shock shaped to shed the

Be sure the corn is well cured be fore shredding, and use a good shredder. With a machine, run by a six-horse power engine, I shredded from two to three tons per hour at the small cost of 75 cents per ton, including hauling.

Try shredded corn one year and you will continue shredding. I doubted the expediency (others will) at first but was convinced that shredding is more profitable. The same amount of corn is heavier than corn harvested in the usual way from which the fodder has been pulled. Cattle will fare better upon it and fatten faster than when fed upon meal and hulls.

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved,-that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers boils and running sores. # That Full Dinner Pail.

Columbus, Ohio, September 14-The Ohio Democrats opened their campaign here today with a meeting in the afternoon at Goodale park, and in the evening at Goodale auditorium. W. J Bryan made speeches at both meetings and there was large attendance of Democratic leaders from all parts of the State.

loss of sleep last night. His audience numbered many thousand persons, and they gave close attention as well as frequent applause. The speech was a general review of the present situation, and it was evidently intended to set the pace for the campaign in Ohio. Mr. Bryan said:

"Measured by the principles for which the party stands, there is every reason why the people of this State should support our ticket, and if any feel like being restrained by a matter of State pride, you should remember that you have had Presidents enough for this State to satisfy reasonable pride, and then one term is long enough if a man does what he ought to, and if he does not it is too

'If the laboring man wants arbitration as a means of settling differences between labor and capital he is told by the Republican party that as long as he has a full meal he does not need anything else. If the laboring man protests against government by injunction the only answer he gets is 'a full dinner pail.'

"My friends, if the Republican party want to make its full dinner pail argument let it go into the an thracite coal region where the operatives gets less than $250 a year This morning's paper contains the statement that the wages paid to miners will in some instances average less than $250 a year. Why, my friends, that will not give the laboring man one full dinner pail a day, and he ought to have three. (Applause.) I am afraid that when the Republican party was not looking the lid of that dinner pail flew off and some coal got into the bucket, and I understand it is coal that weighs nearly twice as much as the law requires, and the Republican party, when it goes to blow it out, will have to do it with powder that is sold to the miners at $2.75 a keg when it is only worth $1 50.

At the same time the sore began to spread and eat into the flesh, and gave me intense pain. I tried everything I could hear of, but nothing did me any good. I then began the use of S. THEY BUILT THE ROAD.

And Gould Knew Where to Get the Rails to Do It.

Jay Gould once wanted to build short line to a certain place and found rivals in the field. To Sylvester T. Smith he gave imperative orders, "Get out as big a force as possible, and complete the road before the other fellows get wind of it, and we'll head 'em off." Smith reported presently, "Mr. Gould, we can get all the ties, fishplates, bolts, nuts and spikes we want, out we can't get the rails." "Telegraph to every mill in the country, and pay any price," said Gould. "I have done so, and there is no chance for a delivery under 12 months." "Then," said the little wizard, "go somewhere and tear up something. We've got to have rails." He indicated the road to destroy, a branch or feeder of the

Smith soon had the old road torn up and the new one laid down. Then came war. Stockholders of the Union Pacific learned of the enterprise and haled Smith to court to answer for tearing up a railroad that belonged to hem. Frequently she wakes me up in the night and asks me to see if it is open. If I don't she nags at me until morning. A night or two ago I resolved to give her a hard scare. I alled up a lot of old newspapers into long bundle and laid the package down by the window. Of course she was asleep and didn't hear me. Then opened the window a little ways and crept into bed. Some time after midnight she nudged me and said: 'Jim. I'm sure you didn't open that window. It's like a bake oven in the room. Get up and see.' So I got up, went to the window and threw the sash as high as it would go. As I did so I gave a little shriek and then flung my bundle down to the walk below. It struck with a dull thud, and I dodged behind the curtain to await developments. The room was very dark, and I couldn't see my wife, but heard her raise herself to a sitting posture. Then she spoke. 'Poor old Jim,' she quietly said, 'he's tumbled out of the window in his raggedest nightshirt. What a spectacle he'll be Then she lay down again and went
