Go to Charleston.

A large number of our people will accompany Dixie Lodge, No. 52, I. O. O. F., to Charleston on the 13th. The present arrangement is, we believe, to couple a coach on the 1:05 a. m. train for Columbia at which place connection will be made with the train for Charleston, which is scheduled to arrive at the latter place at about 7 a. m.

Sale of Fair Stock.

Notice is hereby given that the Subscription Book of Stock in Lexington Fair Association is now open in my office, at Lexington, S. C., for the purpose of selling one hundred additional shares of stock in said association at the par value of $5 00 each.

Read and Read.

When you go shopping in Columbia put up your team in the wagon yard of Wm. Platt, then go into his dry goods, notions and millinery store and examine his stock of pretty goods in these lines that he is showing. His stock is of the first quality and will give good service. He does not claim that his goods are the cheapest but that they are the best for the money.

Death of Mr. Dan Kinsler.

Mr. Dan Kinsler, a prominent young man of Congaree township, died last Thursday. His death was unexpected and the news of it was a great surprise and a shock to his numerous friends throughout the county and in Columbia, with whom he was very popular. He was a warm hearted, impulsive and generous young man, of kindly disposition and was the only child of a doting and loving mother. He will be missed by the circle in which he moved and by the community at large in which he lived.

Tutt's Pills

After eating, persons of a bilious habit will derive great benefit by taking one of these pills. If you have been DRINKING TOO MUCH, they will promptly relieve the nausea, SICK HEADACHE and nervousness which follows, restore the appetite and remove gloomy feelings. Elegantly sugar coated. Take No Substitute.

The Ladies' Favorite. Former County Treasurer Jasper S. Derrick, of Leesville, gave us a pleasant shake Monday. "Uncle Jasper" looked as young and sprightly as a ten-year-old boy and smiles as sweetly upon the fair sex as he did in the days that have gone by, and the flower garden he wore upon the lapel of his coat was the admiration and envy of his less fortunate masculine friends.

First-class Shingle Machine. New outfit, never been used. Cuts three shingles at one motion. C. E. Leaphart, Lexington, S. C.

He Saw the Water Cure.

Washington, May 5—The senate committee on the Philippines today heard the testimony of Daniel J. Evans of Concordia, Kansas, formerly a private in Company E, Twelfth U. S. infantry, who was a witness to the water cure practiced on insurgents at Bedere in Northern Luzon by soldiers of his regiment. Evans testified that he had seen the cure given two insurgents for refusing to disclose information regarding the whereabouts of guns. The cure resulted in the securing of the desired information. He could have witnessed a number of other cases, he said, but remained away.

He said the administration of the cure to insurgents was the talk of the whole army. He admitted that Filipinos were treated humanely at all times outside the water cure. One of the men given the cure, he said, was struck forty times in the stomach by private Frank Koehler, of his company, and he thought the victim would die. He had never witnessed any cruelty inflicted by our soldiers on Filipinos with the exception of the water cure.

Dots from Savilla.

To the Editor of the Dispatch: We have very favorable weather at present. The health of our community is very good. Some of our successful farmers are about done planting, but I am afraid 9 1/2 cents cotton will make them start again.

Messrs. D. C. Harman, T. Hill, D. P. Sease and B. R. Hyler went to Lexington Saturday.

Mr. W. D. Harman, one of Savilla's most popular young men, left Thursday for Batesburg, where he has accepted the position of night watchman. We hate to see him leave, but the people of Batesburg will surely appreciate his company.

Mrs. Wesley Nichole, of Leesville, visited her son, Mr. Sidney Nichols, Saturday and Sunday.

There was no Sunday school at St. Paul's Sunday on account of the sickness of the superintendent Mr. Luther Sease. We hope he will be able to attend the next time. Mr. C. L. Harman returned home from Columbia Saturday. He will now spend the summer with his parents. Mr. D. B. Rodgers, our famous mail carrier, brought up a wagon load of mail Thursday. May 5, 1902. Bel.

The Evangelical Lutheran United Synod in the south is holding its eighth biennial convention in Charleston and will continue in session perhaps for ten days. This general body is composed of an equal number of clerical and lay delegates all of whom are chosen by their respective State synods composing the United synod.

After selling his second bale of 10 cents cotton, Mr. H. H. Harman, one of Saluda's best and most independent farmers, called yesterday and settled for his paper.

She Got a Thrifty Husband.

Mrs. Smith—I reckon our Jane has got a first rate husband. Mrs. Brown—Well, you ought to be thankful. Mrs. Smith—I hope I am, Gusty. Of course he isn't much to look at, and he ain't oversmart, but there's one thing, and that is he's saving. Why, the very first day after the marriage he told Jane she'd better let him take the engagement ring back and get the money returned. He said there was no longer any use for her to wear it now that she was married.—Boston Transcript.

Out of Place.

Grocer—What have you been doing in the cellar so long? Grocer's Apprentice—I have been cleaning out the sirup measure. It was so choked up that it didn't hold more'n half a quart. Grocer—Oh, that's what you've been doing? Well, you take your hat and go home and tell your father to put you into the tract distributing business. You ain't fitted for the grocery trade.—London Answers.

The Appropriate Vehicle.

"She seems to be a stickler for doing everything appropriately." "I should say so. She always does her marketing in a basket phaeton."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

"It's the Cut."

An aged country rector who had an old tailor as his clerk, returning from his church one Sunday with the latter, thus addressed him: "Thomas, I cannot think how it is that our church should be getting thinner and thinner, for I am sure I preach as well as ever I did and ought to have far more experience than I had when I first came among you." "Indeed," replied Thomas. "I'll tell you what; old parsons nowadays are just like old tailors, for I'm sure I sew as well as ever I did in my life, and the cloth is the same, but it's the cut, sir, ah! it's the new cut."—Pearson's.

TWO MEN AND A MORAL.

An Incident That Supplies Considerable Food For Thought. These ought ye to do and not to leave the others undone. A pale young man sat down on a bench in the park. He put a torn bag of tools under the bench. A small, red faced man came behind him. He stooped to steal the bag. The pale man turned and said in a slow, tired way: "Drop that. It ain't worth stealing." The ruddy man said, "Not if you're lookin'." The pale man set the bag at his feet and said: "It's a poor business you're in." "You don't look as if yours was any better." He sat down. "What's your callin'?" "I'm an ironworker; bridge work." "Don't look strong enough." "That's so. I'm just out of the hospital; got hurt three months ago." "I'm just out of hospital, too," he grinned. "What hospital?" "Sing Sing." "What? Jail?" "Yes; not bad in winter, either. There's a society helps a fellow after you quit that hospital. Gives you good clothes too." "Clothes? Is that so?" "Gets you work!" "Work—good God! I wish they'd get me some." "You ain't had enough. Go and grab somethin'. Get a short sentence; first crime. Come out and get looked after by nice ladies." "My God!" "Didn't they do nothin' for you when you got out of that hospital?" "No! Why the devil should they? I'm only an honest mechanic. Are you goin'?" "Yes. I've got to go after that job. It'll give me time to look about me. Gosh, but you look bad! Goodby." The ruddy man rose, looked back, jingled the few coins in his pocket, hesitated and walked away whistling. The pale man sat still on the bench, staring down at the ragged bag of tools at his feet.—Dr. Weir Mitchell in Century.

SOME WRITERS.

Buffon wrote in lace ruffles and Alexandre Dumas in shirt sleeves. Milton composed his "Paradise Lost" on a large armchair, with his head thrown back. Bret Harte's first literary success was a little book called "Condensed Novels," in which he parodied some prominent novelists of the day. Austin Dobson, the poet, wanted in early life to be an engineer and was preparing for that profession when his parents persuaded him to enter the civil service. When Fox had eaten heartily, he would retire to his study, envelop his head in a napkin soaked in vinegar and water and work sometimes ten hours in succession. Allison is said to have consumed twenty-four years in the preparation of his "History of Europe," but many important literary enterprises were also carried on by him during this time. It is related of Hall Caine, the novelist, that he once worked in the Laxey lead mines, in the Manx mountains, in place of a young man who was ill to keep the young fellow's position for him. Mrs. Bolton, the Indiana composer of the once popular song "Paddle Your Own Canoe," received the inspiration to write while sewing and fitting the first carpets for the old statehouse of Indiana. A College Man and a Quotation. Some one once said, "A Harvard man knows all literature but the Bible," a startlingly sweeping generality, but not without truth so far as the Bible is concerned. A case in point came to light the other day. Two Harvard men were reading together some famous modern orations, one of them a eulogy. The eulogy closed with the words: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" "What a beautiful close!" exclaimed one of the students enthusiastically. "The man who wrote such a sentence as that proves that the grand style in prose did not die with the eighteenth century." It should be added in fairness that the other student was a churchman and said nothing.—New York Tribune. Gossip is unfair. It is more persistent about a man under suspicion than it is about a man well known to be tough.—Atchison Globe.
