General Mixture.
Matrimony has spoiled many friendships. Call or send your dues to the Dispatch. Love thy neighbor as they love themselves. Any man can make his wife do anything she wants to. There is no place like the home of a young man's best girl.

One Minute Cough Cure For Coughs, Colds and Croup.
Some husbands keep their affections in the safe deposit vault. Every time a lazy man looks at the clock the day becomes longer. Successful men have no time to go back and cover up their footprints. The less a man knows about women the more he suspects they know about him. Cats may not be expert mathematicians, but it don't take long to foot up columns.

Hilton's Life for the Liver and Kidneys tones up the stomach.

Lots of men suddenly become near sighted when they start out to look for work. A homely girl always believe a man who says that pretty girls make poor wives. This is a wonderful year. The new events are even larger than the scare-heads.

There are more sufferers from constipation than from any other enemy of our race; there is a long train of annoying ills as a direct result and there is nothing so effective in its treatment as Ramon's Liver Pills and Tonic Pellets. 25c.

Most of us keep out of mischief as long as we can keep out of getting caught at it.

There are in this country about 200,000 miles of railway, or about 40 per cent. of the world's mileage.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure Digests what you eat.

The average man is kept busy criticising the faults of his neighbors that he has no time to correct his own.

The forestry of the Philippines is almost the richest in variety in the world. The hard woods are unexcelled.

When you wake up with a bad taste in your mouth, go at once to J. E. Kaufmann's drug store and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One or two doses will make you well. They also cure biliousness, sick headache and constipation.

Whether a woman's gown has seven yards of train to it or consists principally of three feathers and a bow shoulder straps she can manage to would you buy the other boy bananas, spend on it all the money she can get out of husband or father.

Hilton's Life for the Liver and Kidneys overcomes constipation.

The oldest inhabitant talks a good deal but he doesn't make half so much noise as the tooth-cutting youngest inhabitant.

It takes a whole lot of will power to love a woman enough to thank her for calling you half an hour early in the morning so you will have time to stop in on your way down town and match some silk for her.

Get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets at J. E. Kaufmann's drug store. They are easier to take and more pleasant in effect than pills. Then their use is not followed by constipation as is often the case with pills. Regular size, 25c. per box.

Willie—"Papa, if I was twins would you buy the other boy bananas too?" Papa—"Certainly, my son." Willie—"Well, papa, you certainly ain't going to cheat me out of another banana just because I'm all in one piece?"

Let our lady friends read this expression of appreciation from Mrs. Lula Frady, of Uree, N. C: "I am void of words to adequately express my appreciation of Ramon's Liver Pills and Tonic Pellets. I was a great sufferer when I began the use of this Treatment. They have completely changed my life from one of suffering to healthful enjoyment." Only 25c.

The Johnnie of Fifty Years Ago.

Fifty years ago Johnnie got up at daylight, started the fires, fed the horses, milked a dozen long-horned cows that gave barely enough milk for coffee, ate a hearty breakfast, and walked three miles to school. The Johnnie of today don't get up at all, unless he is forced to do so, eats little or no breakfast, and if the school house is over three blocks away takes a street car. The Johnnie of fifty years ago is now a hale, hearty old man. Fifty years from now the Johnnie of today will be dead and buried.

Not Doomed For Life.

"I was treated for three years by good doctors," writes W. A. Greer, McConnellsville, O., "for piles, and Fistula, but, when all failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me in two weeks." Cures Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Corns, Sores, Eruptions, Salt Rheum, Piles or no pay. 25c at J. E. Kaufmann.

The Biennial not Enough in Pennsylvania.

Abbeville Medium. Pennsylvania has biennial sessions of the legislature according to law but Governor Stone is considering the question of calling an extraordinary session on account of the strikes that are now on in that State.

A session every two years has not been sufficient to keep things straight and the only resource is to have an extra session.

Ohio is now having an extraordinary session. Mississippi and Pennsylvania are on the point of calling extra session.

Fortune Favors A Texan.

"Having distressing pains in head, back and stomach, and being without appetite, I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills," writes W. P. Whitehead, of Kennedale, Tex., "and soon felt like a new man." Infallible in stomach and liver troubles. Only 25c at J. E. Kaufmann's drug store.

WHEN THE CROPS ARE IN.

THERE'S a kind of happy feelin' creeps down in a feller when He's got his punkins gathered and the haymow's full agen; There's hope in all the breezes that come blowin' from the hill. And you git to thinkin' God is up there somewhere still; What a purty sight the wheat is as it's piled up in the bin! Oh, it's good to be a farmer when the crops

Are In!
It's lively in the city, and it's very quiet here; There's the hurry and the racket keeps a-goin' all the year; There most every day's excitin', and they keep it up at night;

Every way a person gazes there is some uncommon sight, And I s'pose it's never lonesome livin' round the haunts of sin; But the city people never have their crops All In.

There's many a day of toillin', and there's many an ache and pain, And there's lots and lots of frettin' at the dryness of the rain; There's the weeds and worms and insects that the farmer has to fight, But the good Lord doesn't often fail to pull 'im through all right, And the sweetest satisfaction that a mortal man can win Sort of hovers round the farmer when the crops

Are In.

Lingering Summer Colds.

Don't let a cold run at this season. Summer colds are the hardest kind to cure and if neglected may linger along for months. A long siege like this will pull down the strongest constitution. One Minute Cough Cure will break up the attack at once. Safe, sure, acts at once. Cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, all throat and lung troubles. The children like it. J. E. Kaufmann.

No Trouble to Help Search.

A woman stopped at a cloth counter in one of the large department stores recently and asked to be shown some dress patterns suitable for early autumn wear. The salesman began on the lowest row of shelved compartments and pulled out and opened box after box until the counter on either side of him was piled as high as his head with goods. Three times he climbed a ladder to the upper rows and staggered down under a weight of box patterns until, when the woman took a survey of the shelves, but two patterns remained unopened. Then she said, very sweetly: "I don't think I'll buy any today. I'm sorry to have troubled you, but you see I only came in to look for a friend."

"No trouble whatever, madam," he replied politely. "Indeed, if you think your friend is in either of the remaining two boxes, I don't mind opening them too."—Philadelphia Times.

Stage Effect.

"Evadne," exclaimed the impassioned young man, bending over her, while his voice trembled with eagerness and his great eyes grew luminous with hope, "look at me! Can you not read my heart? Oh, Evadne, the hour of my fate has come! I love you! I love you!" "Gerald," whispered the golden haired beauty while the audience applauded rapturously, "you got that off in splendid style. Are you going to ruin it all now with a mere stage kiss?"—Chicago Tribune.

No Place For Powder.

"I'm surprised," said Psyche, "that you don't lay aside your old bow and arrows for a modern rifle." "Impossible," replied Cupid. "Most of my work is at the seashore resorts and a good deal of my shooting is done in the water."—Philadelphia Press.

THE VIEWS OF AN EXPERT.

What Has Been Done in Development of Dairying and Stocking Raising.

Mr. L. A. Ransom, who is well known in the South on account of his conspicuous work in agricultural matters and his connection with the South Carolina department of agriculture, and now with the Southern Cotton Oil Company, as District Manager, at Atlanta, Ga., in writing about the influence of cotton seed products on the development of dairying in the South, says:

"About 1850, a few wealthy and enterprising Southern planters imported some Devon cattle from England. These were turned loose in canebrakes with the native scrubs and allowed to roam over large areas of wooded country, picking up a precarious living on the scant pasturage afforded by the woods freshly burned over by the forest fires in the spring. Although widely scattered and a few in number, the prepotency of this breed was so great that in many sections the evidence of this infusion of good blood is still visible in the stock.

"No well-to-do planter at that time considered that he had milch cows enough to supply the wants of his family unless he owned at least twenty-five or thirty head. These droves of half-wild and half-famished animals were located towards nightfall by the ringing of a bell hung around the neck of the leader. They were driven to the cow-pen, sometimes miles from where they were found in the woods, a spasmodic effort was made to extract milk from them, penned up over night, and a second attempt made upon them the next morning. The 'average yield' was about one quart per cow.

"The idea of increasing this production by judicious feeding was not thought of. This was the rule, but of course there were notable exceptions. People who did not own unlimited acres of land, and who appreciated milk and butter, took better care of their cows, fed them regularly, and allowed them to pasture during the day on their neighbors' land. This pasturing was more to give them proper exercise, and keep them healthy than to afford them any means of subsistence. To such an extent had the cattle interests of South Carolina in 1880 depreciated that the repairs to the farm fence cost more than the value of the cattle in the State, and the probability is that the same was equally true of nearly all the Southern States."

Then came the "No Fence Law," which compelled the owners to fence the cattle instead of the crops. This forced the farmers to own good milch cows, or none at all, as it became too expensive to feed poor stock. About this time, or perhaps a little earlier, appeared the "Jersey" on the scene, a breed of cattle as suited to the needs of those who were "too poor to own a cow," and too proud to milk a goat." But this beautiful little animal soon demonstrated that she was not a "quitter," and, furthermore, that she "filled a long felt want," and, with proper attention, gave rich returns on her cost and keep, and, like the Irishman's pig that he raised in the cabin with his children, she "paid the rent" as well as the freight. As compared with the Devon, she was smaller in stature and gave less milk, but the proportion of cream to water in what she did give, far exceeded that of the Devon, the Durham, and Holstein, and she promptly became the prime favorite of small families and butter-makers. But she could not live without feed, and butter could not be produced profitably on corn meal, wheatbran, or sorghum diet, nor could it be produced at all on what the Jersey could pick up in the pastures.

Nature, always lavish, but provident, hid away coal in the earth for ages, only to be uncovered when the world needed it most, pointed the way to the gold fields only when this precious metal was absolutely required for the world's commerce, and covered from sight the phosphate rock of the Carolinas until provident man had destroyed the fertility of the fields, likewise she held back the material required to make dairying in the South possible and profitable, until conditions were favorable for its use.

The advent of the Jersey cow created a demand for a cheap and rich food, which the oil mills supplied with hulls and meal. In a list of fifty of the leading feed materials of the United States, the National Department of Agriculture ranks cotton seed meal first, in feeding value and places the value of cotton seed hulls for the same purpose above the best timothy hay. The use of these products has sustained the department's reports, and dairy farming is fast becoming an industry of importance, and this has been largely the result of the liberal policy of the Southern Cotton Oil Co. of the Carolinas and Georgia, which has headquarters at Columbia, S. C., Atlanta, Ga., Savannah, Ga., and Charlotte, N. C., Goldsboro, N. C., and Augusta, Ga.

Around the large cities in the South, dairies are successfully operated, supplying the people with wholesome milk, and rich golden butter from cows fed on hulls and meal. The country mills have accomplished the same thing for the farms and small towns. Around the factory towns the small mills make dairy products as profitable as the demand from the operatives is sufficient to consume all the milk and butter that can be produced, and the use of meal for fertilizing the land, which is sold reasonably by the Southern Cotton Oil Company, has greatly enlarged the area devoted to truck farming of all kinds.

Without oil mill products dairying would be impossible in many sections of the South. The abundance, cheapness and convenience of the products has already developed the business to an interesting extent and it is only in its infancy, and its growth will increase rapidly each year with the steady improvement in the grade of milch cows. Oleomargarine contains about forty per cent. milk, and the compound is a wholesome product. The establishment of co-operative factories for its manufacture in the vicinity of oil mills where refined oil can be had would give a tremendous impetus to dairying in the South.
