

Horse Sense.

Winnsboro News and Herald.

Our exchanges these days are filled with much advice on a very important matter about which we must confess that we are wholly ignorant—the time to sell cotton. Some advise that farmers sell as rapidly as they gather it, and others say hold it till later in the season. So far as our observation in the matter goes, we are inclined to think that the man who sells his cotton year in and year out as soon as it is gathered is the man that gets the most for his crop. But be that as it may, there is one thing that we are entirely sure about, and that is the man who doesn't depend entirely upon cotton for money with which to pay for those things that he cannot raise and also for those things that he should raise is the man that is getting the best returns for his labor on the farm. It matters not what the price of cotton is, there is no money to the farmer in raising only cotton if he has to pay two or three prices for the other products which he could so easily raise on the farm. It is with farming as with every other business, it is not the gross sales that determine the success of a business, but the net profits are the thing that counts. There is another fact that we think a great many real good business men as farmers forget, and that is that the direct results are not the only thing to be taken into consideration. For instance: even if a farmer some years should gain by having planted largely of cotton, it should not be forgotten that he has forgotten that he has suffered an indirect loss by not improving his land. In other words it must be lost sight of that that system of farming that brings not only its direct returns in the way of ready cash, but also brings its indirect returns in the way of improving the lands on which one lives and in laying the foundation for even larger returns on the outlay. Whatever the price of cotton this fall (and every indication is that it will be good), it is to be hoped from every standpoint that it will not have the effect of causing the farmers to lose sight of giving more and more of their attention to the little industries that have possibilities within them that have never been possible with cotton.

Boy's Composition on Parents.

Parents are things most boys have to look out after them. Most girls also have parents. Parents consists of Mas and Pas. Pas talk a great deal about what they are going to do, but it's mostly Mas. that makes you mind. Sometimes it is different tho Once a boy came home from college on vacation. His parents lived on a farm. There was work to be done on the farm. Work on the farm always has to be done early in the morning. This boy didn't get up. His sister goes to the stairway and calls: "Willis, 'tis a beautiful morning. Rise and list to the lark." The boy didn't say anything. Then Ma calls: "William, it is time to get up. Your breakfast is growing cold." The boy kept right on, not saying anything. Then his Pa puts his head in the stairway, and says he: "Bill!" "Coming, sir!" says the boy. I know a boy that hasn't got any parents. He goes in swimming whenever he pleases. But I am going to stick to my parents. However, I don't tell them so 'cause they might get it into their heads that I couldn't get along without them. Says this boy to me: "Parents are a nuisance; they aren't what they're cracked up to be." Says I to him: "Just the same I find 'em handy to have. Parents have their failings, of course, like all of us, but on the whole I approve of 'em, and I hope good boys will continue to have 'em."

After the Rascals.

Manila, Sept. 11—Customs Inspector Thomas P. Coates and Lieut. Osborne, constabulary supply officer, both stationed at San Fernando, who were arrested recently on the charge of misappropriating government funds, have been tried and convicted. Lieut. Osborne has been sentenced to ten years and Inspector Coates to eight years imprisonment. Dean Tompkins, treasurer of the province of La Union, has also been convicted of forgery, but sentence has been reserved. The minimum penalty for the crime is imprisonment for 12 years.

Distress After Eating Cured.

Judge W. T. Holland, of Greensburg, La., who is well and favorably known, says: "Two years ago I suffered greatly from indigestion. Now my sleep is refreshing and digestion perfect." Sold by all druggists.

Chicago, Sept. 9—Co-operation saked by $100,000,000 capital is the plan proposed by a joint meeting of farmers and their representatives by which the producers of the country are to protect their interests. An association having this as its basic principle is in process of organization here. Farmers and representatives from producers' associations in nine states are in conference. Three societies are to be amalgamated as the foundation for a monster exchange by which the producers of the country expect to control the markets, build elevators, establish packing houses, organize banks, maintain schools and improve the highways. These associations are the Producers and Consumers' Union of Tennessee and of New York, with 400,000 members; The American Society of North America, with 60,000 members; and the Farmers' National Co-operative Exchange Company, with a membership of 20,000.

A Lesson in Punctuation.

A Philadelphia school girl said to her father the other night: "Daddy, I've got a sentence I'd like to have you punctuate. You know something about punctuation, don't you?" "Yes, a little," said her cautious father as he took the slip of paper she handed him. This is what he read: "A five dollar bill flew around the corner." He studied it carefully, and finally said: "Well, I'd simply put a period after it, like this." "I wouldn't," said the high school girl. "I'd make a dash after it."

The metes and bounds of these stations were established by representatives of the United States and Cuba, acting conjointly in accordance with the treaty between the two governments. FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
Cures Colds; Prevents Pneumonia

Reflections of an Old Maid.

Many a time when a man wishes he had never married, his wife wishes it more than he does.

The man who complains that his wife scolds the children all day, can't stay with them half an hour without scolding more than she does.

When a man spends his time pitying himself it is time for other people to pity his wife.

A model husband is easier to find than a model wife, but only a model wife will acknowledge it.

When a man marries he gives up his freedom. When a woman marries she gives up both freedom and independence.

The only time a husband should feel obliged to say something pleasant to his wife is when she is in a bad humor.

A good way for a woman to teach her husband that she does do a little work occasionally is to let him do it for her.

The woman who can keep children and servants in a good humor without getting tired of it is the woman who should marry.

The only time an old maid is really glad she never married is when she has to take charge of three or four of somebody else's children.

A woman should teach her daughters to sew, cook and nurse. It is the only solid foundation for their education.

Married women who bravely determine to make the best of a bad bargain often have to look for the best every day of their lives and then it is hard to find.

The girl who expects to marry should ask her father for money and should never learn to make money herself.

If parents would be as particular about the company their boys keep as they are about the company their girls keep, there would be fewer ruined lives and more happy homes.

The girl who wishes to reform a man should reform him first and then—let some other girl marry him.

There are many blessings which the Lord conveys to the children through human instrumentalities. He expects all of us to be helpers one of another.

A woman will not believe a saint if he tells her what she does not want to believe; she will believe the blackest villain if he tells her what she wants to believe.

Foley's Kidney Cure makes the disease kidneys sound so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. The Kaufmann Drug Co.

The greatest trotting feat in the history of the world was performed at Reidville, Mass., on Monday by a mare named "Lou Dillon," making a mile in two minutes.
