"Mad Dog" Scare.
From now until fall is the season generally accepted as "dog days." If the public would realize the fact that puppies, as a rule, are born from January to May, dogs apparently mad would be more rationally treated.

Dogs suffer as much as children from teething, which is the case of the former ex-ends, say, from four to eight months. During this stage any undue excitement will produce a fit, which is "frothing at the mouth, running around in circles, and snapping at anything within reach."

A mad dog—and I have seen one during its paroxysms for eight days—displays no such symptoms. It does not froth at the mouth; neither does it run in circles. On the other hand, it goes at a "lope," straight ahead, and never snaps unless something stands directly in its way. Its eyes glisten and are bloodshot. By comparison a mad dog is, more "rational" than one with a fit. The mad dog, in a dazed, misty way, knows what is going on. The dog with a fit is frenzied, utterly unreasonable and would go out of its way to bite. The mad dog would not.

I can think of no better simile for really mad dog than a man with acute gout. The mad dog does not want to bite—is not thinking of it. All it knows is that it is suffering acutely. Its only solace is motion. Its nervous agony is such that it can brook nothing in its way, nothing likely to touch it.

These are my observations of the only man dog I ever saw. She was observed daily—at a distance—by all the veterinarians in the district and the leading lights of the Veterinary College of London. My mother or myself, standing to one side, used to open the door where she was confined and she would brush past without the slightest indication of biting us. She, however, died in nine days, suffering terribly, and the autopsy at the veterinary college showed she suffered from acute inflammation of all the more vital parts.

Mad dogs don't go around in circles, they don't froth at the mouth, they don't snap to the right or to the left. They go straight ahead and bite only whatever is immediately in their way.

Liver spots have spoiled many pretty complexions, and nothing so completely removes them as Ramon's Tonic Regulator. Just a mite of this pleasant vegetable powder on retiring paints the bloom of health on the cheeks. Large tin box 25c.

Lynching Must Cease.
Newton C. Blanchard, recently inaugurated governor of Louisiana, in his inaugural address said that mob law would not be tolerated. Lynchings must cease. As to the negro he said: "The negro is here. He is a man and a citizen. He is useful and valuable in his sphere. Within that sphere he must be guaranteed the protection of the law, and his education along proper lines—mainly agriculture and industrial—is at once a duty and a necessity."

A Small Boy's Dairy.
There is a certain nine-year-old kid in Philadelphia who is keeping a dairy. His relatives and his father had forgotten all about it until he accidentally found the volume the other day. Curious to see what his small boy had written in it, he opened the book and found that the dairy had been faithfully kept. Here are a few of the entries:

"I am nine years old today. Looked in the glass, but whiskers ain't sproutin' yet."
"Sassed a boy. Got licked."
"Pop borried ten cents for car fair, that makes $1 15 he owes me. Wonder if I'll ever get it."
"Jimmie — stole my ball. I lickt him for it."
"Ast Pop for some money and he gave me a nickil. I want that doler."

"We feloes got up a base ball club today. I'm pitcher. If I had that doler 15 I could get a unaforn."

"Pop got paid today and giv me my money."
"Mamma borrid a doler. Dam these people anyway. A feloe can't save nothin'."

Ast Pop about banks. I want to put my money ware carfair sit so skarse."

"Got lickt again."
There was more of this, but "Pop" had read enough. As a result there was a conference, and now the arrangement is to pay 5 per cent. a week interest, and settle every pay day. The kid got his unaforn."

A Growsome Mess.
Mrs. Wolfe, the mother of the great general, kept a comprehensive cookery book, still preserved at Squerries Court, Kent. One of her recipes was for "a good water for consumption." "Take a peck of garden snails," says the prescription, "wash them in beer, put them in an oven and let them stay till they've done crying; then with a knife and fork pick the green from them and beat the snails, shells and all, in a stone mortar; then take a quart of green earth worms, slice them through the middle and straw them with salt, then wash them and beat them. The pot being first put into the still with two handfuls of angelico, a quart of rosemary flowers, then the snails and worms, then egrimony, bear's feet, reddock roots, barberry brake, biloney, wormwood, of each two handfuls; one handful of rue-tumoric and one ounce of saffron well dried and beateu; then pour in three gallons of milk; wait till morning, then put in three ounces of cloves well beateu, hartsborn grated; keep the still covered all night; this done, stir it not; distill it with a moderate fire. The patient must take two spoonfuls at a time."

Mayor McLane Kills Himself.
Baltimore, May 30—Mayor R. M. McLane, of this city, sacrificed himself at his home this afternoon in his bedroom at his residence, No. 29 West Preston street.

His bride of less than two weeks was at the time of the tragedy in an adjoining room, and was awakened by the discharge of the revolver, which Mr. McLane evidently fired while standing before the mirror of the dressing case. The bullet entered the right temple and crashed through the head in the rear of the left ear. Mrs. McLane and other members of the household rushed to the mayor's assistance, but he did not regain consciousness after he fell to the floor and expired within an hour.

A number of physicians who were immediately summoned, at once expressed the opinion that the wound was necessarily fatal.

No cause can be assigned for the act by the members of Mr. McLane's family. Since the fire of last February he has been kept assiduously at work administering the affairs of the city, besides endeavoring to direct the rehabilitation and rebuilding of the burned district. This together with criticisms by his political opponents are thought by many to have caused a temporary aberration of the mind.

Acute Rheumatism.
Deep tearing or wrenching pains, occasioned by getting wet through; worse when at rest, or on first moving the limbs and in cold or damp weather, is cured quickly by Ballard's Snow Liment. Oscar Oleson, Gibson City Ill., writes, February 16, 1902: "A year ago I was troubled with a pain in my back. It soon got so bad I could not bend over. One bottle of Ballard's Snow Liment cured me." 25c., 50c. and $1.00. Sold by The Kaufmann Drug Co.
