Letter from Virginia.

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

Here we are to impose on the kindness of the Dispatch. On leaving our home at White Rock we promised legions of friends that we would let them hear from us. For the first, at least, we will ask the kind indulgence of the editor.

With William and Horace, we left Alston on the 30th of March. Mrs. Lizzie Stone, who had been visiting her people in Spring Hill during the winter, was on the train with her children. Oar trip took us by Asheville, N. C, Morristown, Tenn., Mrs. Stone's home, and Bristol, Tenn. The latter place we reached about 10:30 p. m., where we lodged for the

Many of you have seen the country to Asheville and know the fine scenery of the mountains. From here on to Morristown, the scenery is in many respects wonderful. To construct a railroad through such mountains was a remarkable feat. Our train wound around and across the French Broad river with the rough, ruggèd mountains towering almost over our heads. The river was clear as crystal and the mountains seemed to bend over to see that our dashing train did not hurt the placid stream. Unfortunately, human greed is fast defacing nature's landscape of beauty, and on every mountain the beautiful forestry is being destroyed. Every now and then you pass a little saw milkand you see logs being rolled down the mountains. Our country may pay for this in great freshets and dry seasons. The Pacolet flood is an illustration of the one, and the Russian famine of some fifteen years ago illustrates the other.

Well, we reached our new home in Rural Retreat on Thursday about 10:30 a. m, right side up with care. Many kind people met us at the train, and we soon felt that we were in the hands of friends. The rest of the family comes on next week, so we have not begun housekeeping yet. This is a high, rolling country and is very productive. Of this we expect to write later. This will suffice: Land sells for $100 an acre and can hardly be had at that. We will have a nice home with a kind and industrious people.

Greetings to all. More anon. S. C B.

To His Excellency D. C. Heyward Governor:

Columbia, S C. Hereto attached is a petition to your excellency asking that a commission be appointed to examine the now under sentence of death for murder. Upon an examination of the petition I find that the request is based upon the belief of the mother that her son could not have "committed the deed for which he is comdemned to death in his senses.' If that was the case it should have been set up as a defense and a jury of his country allowed to pass upon the issue. There were no developments at the trial of the case that would indicate that Parr had any other than "his senses" when the crime was committed or any other than "his senses" when the trial took place. On the other hand the evidence indicated that he was quite cunning in his endeavors to cover up his crime; and at his trial he stoutly denied his guilt and told as plausible a tale, in his own behalf, as could have been devised under the circum-

Those facts taken in consideration with the additional fact that he has since admitted his guilt convinces me of the legal correctness of the jury's verdict and I am constrained to say that I cannot recommend the appointment of a commission such as is asked, when there is not even a prima facie showing of the mental derangement of Parr. To make such a recommendation upon the showing made would, to my mind, be the setting of a precedent that would be harmful to the administration of justice in South Carolina.

Respectfully, George Bell Timmerman, Solicitor of 5th Judicial Circuit.

Homicide in Chester.

W. E. Perry, an operative in the Wyle Cotton Mills in Chester, shot and instantly killed Langdon L. Boozer, manager of the mill store, on March 27th. The difficulty which Mr. Joseph Frye's new dwelling led up to the killing arose over an account of $4 which Perry refused to settle. Mr. Boozer was a native Newberry county, his home being at Kinard in that county. He formerly lived this side of Prosperity. He was closely related to Mrs. Joseph Lown, who resides on the Orangeburg road near here, and is said to have been a young man of quiet, steady and industrious habits and was a general favorite with those with whom he had dealings. His remains were taken to Kinard and interred in the burying ground there. Mr. Samuel Smith is suffering Perry, his slayer, made his escape and at last accounts was still at large. A reward of $600 is offered for his capture.

School Closing.

Chapin High School will close its doors for vacation on April the 12th. The school opened on October the 3rd under the professorship of Prof. M. P. Lindler and Miss Blanche Kyzer. They are both young, but accomplished teachers.

The enrollment this year has been great, the attendance good and the best of satisfaction on both the part of the teachers and parents and the result, as is always under such circumstances, has been very good. The trustees have much ground for congratulation for their choice of teachers. The school will close with exercises on two nights. On the night of April the 11th, the intermediate will close with speeches. dialogues, drills, marches, songs and recitations. On the second night, April 12th, there will be two orations by Messrs. Olin M. Clark and J. Keith Haltiwanger, of the ninth grade. Then the metal contest, which is between five girls of the ninth grade. Prof. O. B Martin, State Superintendent of Education, will make an address and probably Hon. A F. Lever will be present on that date. All are cordially invited. A Scholar.

TAPP'S GREATER DEPARTMENT STORE, COLUMBIA, S. C.

Pre-Easter Sale of Superb Spring Styles.

This week brings to you all the grandest displays and the very best values we've yet had. The formal Millinery Opening we held nearly two weeks ago has been developed and enlarged with pattern hats as beautiful as those then shown, and an addition of innumerable new models. Truly a magnificent display of stylish Spring Millinery, which has as its background and accompaniment the most comprehensive collection of Spring goods to be found in the Carolinas. We have taken our Formal Opening as an example, studied the styles and requirements, and improved and enlarged the show to This Week's Grand Spring Opening. Now is the time every feminine mind is best on "what to wear Easter." We have been thinking in that direction for you. In keeping with the world's best and most authoritative fashions we have prepared for you a week of Special Sales with the world's best and most authoritative fashions we have prepared for the south than we offer this week in our Pre-Easter Sales. Every department has been than the caroninas. We may taken our rorman Opening as an example, studied the styles and improved and entarged the show to filled with the newest possible Spring goods. Ready-to-wear garments at the pinnacle of fashion, dressy materials that are wonderful in effect. Hats that are charming.

Leads the Carolinas in Millinery Styles. This is a fact acknowledged by those whose opinions must be considered. It appeals to us as being true from the flattering manner in which our beautiful bats have been received, admired and bought this Spring. In our Millinery Department, more than anywhere else, our watchword is "Progress and Please as we Progress." We have spared no pains to make this the largest and most fashionable Millinery Department of the Carolinas. When it was first hinted that Tapp led the Carolinas in fashionable millinery, we determined to live up to the reputation by all events, and we have. Our designers, Miss Strobuber and Madame Stedman, are artists. They are originators who spend time in the fashion centres of the world, and study the styles that are to lead. They are talented and skillful, so that their creations are perfectly charming. No handsomer hats can be found in the Carolinas than the grand array we present now. All the newest effects in the new Charlotte Corday hats. Swell Easter bonnets. Graceful, becoming Marquis models. Dainty Frency effects. Stylhis Polo hats. All the leading models in the ombre, prunella, new blues, greens and flower shades that are correct for Spring wear. You will be glad you came this week when you see all these gergeous new hats. Prices most moderate,
