

"CUT IT OUT"

says the doctor to many of his lady patients, because he doesn't know of any medicinal treatment that will positively cure womb or ovarian troubles, except the surgeon's knife. That such a medicine exists, however, has been proved by the wonderful cures performed on diseased women, in thousands of cases, by

WINE OF CARDUI IT CURES WOMB DISEASE.

It has saved the lives of thousands of weak, sick women, and has rescued thousands of others from a melancholy lifetime of chronic invalidism. It will cure you, if you will only give it a chance. Try it.
Sold at every drug store in $1.00 bottles.

GAVE UP SUPPORTER.
"I wore a supporter for four years, to keep up my womb, which had crowded everything down before it," writes Mrs. S. J. Chapman, of Manassas, Va. "My doctor told me no medicine would help me. I suffered untold misery, and could hardly walk. After taking two bottles of Cardui I gave up my supporter. Now I am taking my fifth bottle, have no bad feelings as formerly, and can be on my feet half a day at a time. I strongly recommend Cardui to every suffering woman."

Letter from Italy.
The land of Galileo, Dante and Tasso, of Michel Angelo, the architect of St. Peter's in Rome that was 100 years in construction. The land of those terrible volcanoes Vesuvius, Etna and Stromboli, that have carried death and destruction and buried towns and cities in their mad fury. They are sleeping now, but an outbreak from either one is not unexpected at any time. The Italian government has an observatory on the top of Etna that is the highest human habitation on the continent of Europe. The land of the silk worm that produces over 100,000,000 pounds of raw silk in one year; the land of refinement and culture of art and sculpture and painting of the hand organ and the monkey of poverty and dirt; the land of romance and song of grief and dancing; the birth place of "Home Sweet Home." John Howard Paine in his rambles in Italy heard a peasant girl humming the tune and composed the words of "Home Sweet Home," whose melody is heard where ever the English language is spoken, for there is no other tongue that knows the meaning of home as an Englishman and when I say English, as a matter of course, I include America.

John Howard Paine's remains were disinterred several years ago and conveyed to Washington, D. C., and a monument erected to his memory by that patriotic liberal hearted American, Col. Cochrane. All honor to his name for with John Howard Paine his name is linked with "Home Sweet Home." I hope some of the fair ladies of old Lexington county when they read this will play one stanza for me of "Home Sweet Home."

As I promised in my last letter to give you a description of a Spanish bull fight I will do so now: The one I witnessed was in Valencia, Spain. There were six bulls killed that day, but I did not stay to see but one killed and that was enough for me. That one did not want to fight and I never in my life saw a dumb brute tortured as this one was to get it mad enough to fight and then the most infamous thing I ever saw was to blindfold a horse with a man mounted on his back with a spear or pike in his hand ride the horse in front of the bull. The spear is used to ward the bull off of the man and have the bull charge the man and horse and nine times out of ten it only resulted in the horse having his entrails ripped out and the rider scampers away and leaves the wounded or dying horse to the mercy of the bull. There are several other men in the ring who have a red cloth to attract the attention of the bull from the wounded horse. This bull killed eleven horses that day and not a man even got his back dirty much less hurt.

There is no fight in it. It is the men against the bull and the bull against the horse and it blindfolded. There is no courage, heroism or valor displayed, and it is all a one sided affair and entirely in favor of the men. Why some civilized nation or society for the prevention of cruelty to animals has not put a stop to this nefarious barbarity before now, is a mystery to me. More anon,
A. S. Nunamaker, Jr.

Value of Advertising And the Unexpected

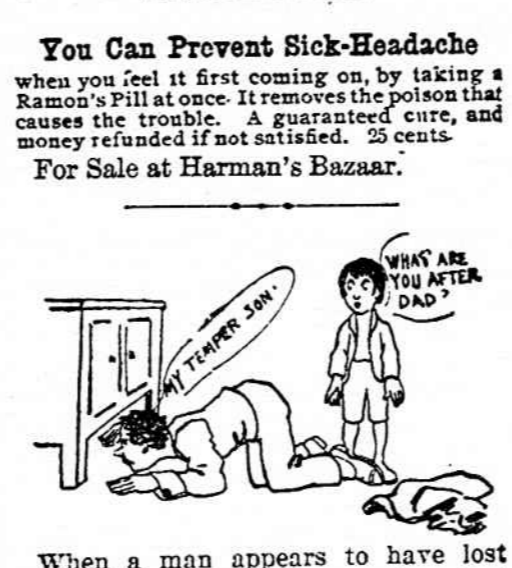

At a political meeting held up the state just before the election of our present governor the speaker and audience were very much disturbed by a man who constantly called for a Mr. Henry. Whenever a new speaker came on this man bawled out: "Mr. Henry! Henry! Henry! I call for Mr. Henry!"
After several interruptions of this kind at each speech a young man ascended the platform and was soon airing his eloquence in magnificent style and striking out powerfully in his gestures when the old cry was heard for "Mr. Henry." Putting his hand to his mouth like a speaking trumpet, this man was bawling out at the top of his voice: "Mr. Henry! Henry! Henry! I call for Mr. Henry to make a speech!"
The chairman of the meeting now arose and remarked that it would oblige the audience if the gentleman would refrain from any further calling for Mr. Henry, as that gentleman was now speaking.
"Is that Mr. Henry?" said the disturber of the meeting. "Thunder, that can't be Mr. Henry! Why, that's the little cuss that told me to holler!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS.
Some of Their Famous Feats of Physical Endurance.
One of the finest achievements of a war correspondent was that of Holt White, a representative of the New York Tribune, in the Franco-Prussian war. He witnessed the battle of Sedan from the Prussian headquarters on Thursday, Sept. 1, 1870. At its conclusion he rode to Brussels, but there the postoffice authorities refused to transmit his dispatch to London and even threatened to arrest him for saying that the French had been defeated. He then went on to Calais, crossed to Dover by special steamer and took a special train to London, where he arrived at 5 o'clock on Saturday morning. Next day there was a description of the battle six columns long in the Tribune. It was not till Tuesday that the London newspapers had accounts of the conflict from their correspondents.

But the most famous deed of physical endurance in the race for news between war correspondents was told of Archibald Forbes. In the Serbian war of 1876 Semlin, the nearest telegraph station, was 120 miles distant from the scene of the battle. So soon as Forbes knew the result he rode off, and all night long he kept at a gallop, changing horses every fifteen miles. At Semlin he had one long drink of beer and then at once sat down to the task of writing, hour after hour, against time, the tidings of which he was the bearer. After he had written the story of the battle and put it on the wires he lay down in his clothes and slept twenty hours without waking. He had witnessed the battle, which lasted six hours; ridden 120 miles and written and dispatched a telegraphic message four columns in length to the Daily News, all in the space of thirty hours.—Macmillan's Magazine.
