Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable. Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr.

Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kid-ney, liver and blade der remedy.

SOME NEW RULINGS

What Rural Carriers Must and Must Not do-A Postoffice Official Gives Out a Statement as to Their Duties.

"Now that the rural free delivery system has been so extended in this country—in fact it will be but a short time when the merry rural free delivery carrier will be trotting over the snows and icy peaks of Alaska—the department is in constant receipt of letters to what rural carriers may carry on their routes besides them-selves and their mail," said a post-office department official recently.

"In the first place, they can't carry any liquid that stimulates either on the inside or outside of their persons; intoxication means instant dismissal, and they are dismissed when they are detected drinking even off their routes. Nor are they permitted to carry spirit-uous liquors for the accommodation of their patrons; personal friendship doesn't go with the department in these cases, and no exceptions are made with the rule.

"Rural carriers must carry the mail and nothing else, even though business houses seek offtimes to make errand boys of them. Carriers must not either in person or through others, directly or indirectly, solicit money, gifts or presents, nor issue for profit souveneirs or postal handbooks, nor co-operate with or assist the publishers of the same to secure the patronage of the public. They are also barred from compiling or assisting in the compiling of directories for public use. Business firms with large mail lists have caused us a great deal of trouble in attempting to engage the carriers as their agents, so we have strictly prohibited them from furnishing the names and addresses of patrons on their routes for pay or favor to any business establishment, or to any individual except to the department officials who are entitled to them under the regulations.

The department has received letters from patrons complaining because the carriers refused to carry their milk cans. This is funny, but it is true, and it shows what some people in the country think the rural delivery services the country that the country there is the country than the country that vice was established for. Carriers are not permitted to carry passengers, nor to permit any person other than authorized postal officials, to ride with them or to have access to the mails. They must not engage in any business during their prescribed hours of service or to conduct any business after hours which offers temptation to solicit patronage on their routes, or which by reason of their positions in the government service gives them special advantages over competitors.

We rigidly bar them from acting as book canvassers, insurance solicitors, sewing machine agents or acting as agent of any kind or occupation. We allow carriers to carry merchandise for hire upon the request of patrons residing upon their respective routes whenever it will not interfere with the proper discharge of their official duties under such regulations the department may prescribe. Country storekeepers try to use the carriers' vehicles as delivery wagons, but the government is not in that sort of busmess. We allow the carriers to receive no compensation from the seller of the merchandise and where the merchandise is carried on the request of the patrons for hire for the carrying, carrying must be paid by the patrons.

"We get thousands of letters from all over the country just on this one point—what carriers may carry on their routes. If the rural delivery patrons would only remember that the government is not in the express business, they would save themselves, the carriers and the department a great deal of trouble."

Mississippi's Insane Asylum Destroyed.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 22.—The Mississippi asylum for the blind was en-tirely destroyed by fire today and the several hundred inmates were thrown

At first it was thought there had been a terrible loss of life, but after the fire had been extinguished all the inmates were accounted for. There were many thrilling rescues. A Pen-Picture of Tillman.

Writing in The World's Work for October, Zack McGee says: "Near the center of the senate chamber, directly in front of the vice president, sits a large, burly, surly-looking man, with a tremendous square head set upon a pair of broad, square shoul-ders, the corners of his mouth drawn down nearly to the lower margin of his heavy, square jaws. He is clean shaven—that is, he is shaven; per-haps it was the day before yesterday that he shaved. His thick, slightly gray hair is disheveled, and he wears just such clothes as you would expect to see on a man who says on the floor of the senate, 'I am a rude man and don't care.' But when he rises from his seat and addresses the chair in a high-pitched, almost whining voice, standing somewhat nervously, one shoulder slightly raised above the other, his one dark-brown glistening eye flashing through the room like a searchlight, the other senators put down their newspapers and slowly turn in their seats; those walking about instinctively tread more softly or stop in their tracks, the many necks in the visitors' galleries are craned to get a better view, and there is a movement in the press gallery to get a little nearer the front. 'The only thing that ever happens in the senate,' wrote a correspondent one day, 'is Senator Tillman.' Beyond doubt he is the most interesting figure in that body of exceptionally interesting men. 'I may not be able to shed much light in this body, Mr. President,' he observed one day as he interrupted a debate between two great constitutional lawyers with a homely direct question which went straight to the point, 'but I sometimes manage to break the glass.' "

Washington, Nov. 22.—Claiming that typhoid fever germs lurk in street dust, Chas. F.
