A. FRANK LEVER DID IT.
Big River Appropriation Secured by Him.

"Fine business, getting Congressman Burton down here; yes, sir, fine business it was. If he hadn't come here and seen for himself just what we need and can use to advantage, we'd never have this good news to crow over—and let it be remembered, too, that it was our own congressman, A Frank Lever, who brought him."
These and other of similar tenor were the remarks this morning of a Columbia business man, in discussing the news, brought by press dispatches, that the appropriation bill, which will be favorably reported to congress today, carries an item of $150,000 for "improving the Santee, Wateree and Congaree rivers and the Estherville-Minim creek canal," and for extending the improvement work on the Congaree from Gervais street to Granby. The sum named is all the more gratifying, because it is just exactly double the maximum amount recommended for the work by the government engineer, Captain Howell. The approval of this item by the committee on rivers and harbors absolutely insures the early completion of the improvement work that will put the Congaree into navigable shape all the way down to salt water.
There seems no reason whatever for doubting that this large appropriation is directly the result of Congressman Burton's visit to Columbia and his trip of inspection down the river to Georgetown. He is chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors and makes it a rule personally to inspect every waterway for which money is asked. He is so well informed and painstaking that the committee is guided very largely by his advice. Certainly, Columbia could not have secured the appropriation over his disapproval.—Columbia Record, Jan. 24.

In Memoriam.
The 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Glover departed this life the 31st. day of December, 1906. She had gone to spend Christmas with her grand-father and mother at Trenton, S. C. While away pneumonia seized her, and after a few days, the Lord took her to be with Him. Her remains were brought back to her home near Gaston, and placed in the cemetery at Sandy Run Baptist church. The funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. F. McCall, of Gaston. Annie was a member of the Sunday school at Sandy Run and a faithful scholar. She was a beautiful, bright, obedient child, and much loved by all that knew her. We cherish the hope that she shall some day live again. In our weak and sinful ways we know not how to serve the Lord, but let us be willing to submit to His holy and blessed will, to Him that knoweth and doeth all things well. Since God, in His wisdom, has called her, her parents and relatives have lost an obedient child and sister; and our Sunday school one of its most faithful little workers. O. F.

South Carolina Man Leads.
South Carolina is once more declared the banner corn-growing section of the whole world. The first prize in the contest for the largest amount of corn raised on one acre of land to A. J. Kindall, of Clarendon county, who raised 182 bushels on one acre of his farm, the decision being rendered and the prize awarded by an international commission sitting at Springfield, Mass.
In addition to the pride and distinction that comes to Mr. Kindall, the Palmetto state is gratified at his success, which will be an advertisement of untold good for this garden spot of the world.

The ever ready and reliable "Police Gazette Sporting Annual" has made its reappearance, more complete and beautiful than ever. It is published by Richard K. Fox, Franklin Square, New York, and is a veritable mine of information, so far as sporting matters are concerned. It contains, within a small space, all the important boxing records, as well as records of the athletic world, compiled by Sam C. Austin, and as a pocket encyclopedia is invaluable. It is illustrated with fine halftone portraits of the ring, the turf and the field, while the cover is a particularly handsome one. Its correctness as to dates and other statistical information makes it indispensable for reference purposes. The price is ten cents and two cents extra for postage.
