Death of James Dunning.

The announcement of the death of Mr. James Dunning, who died at his home in New Brookland on Sunday, was received with genuine sorrow by his many friends here. It will be recalled that his familiar face was seen on our streets less than a month ago, he having spent a few weeks here with the family of Col. M. D. Harman, and it was thought that he was much improved by his visit to Lexington.

Mr. Dunning had been a sufferer for some time of that dreaded disease, consumption, which he contracted while in the discharge of his duties as policeman, which position he held in Columbia for many years. He was a popular officer, and as a mark of respect every bell in Columbia tolled on Monday during the funeral procession from his late residence to Trinity church, where impressive services were held. The interment was in Elmwood cemetery.

He leaves a wife, who was Miss Sallie Earhardt, a niece of Mr. G. M. Harman, and five children, mother, brother and a host of friends to mourn his death. They have the deepest sympathy of a large circle of friends in this, their sad hour of grief.
