General Assembly.

Columbia, Jan. 30.—Both houses of the legislature start this week with prospects of hard work before them. Prominent among the matters before the senate is Senator Mauldin's bill to require that the six counties having dispensaries divide the profit of liquor sales with the state. In the house it is expected the appropriation bill will be reported this week. One of the most notable events of the past week was the passage by the senate of the resolution, introduced by Senator Carlisle, which directs that the attorney general drop the appeal from the circuit court's decision in the hard-fought merger suit.

On Thursday the house finally passed the senate bill ratifying the proposed amendment to the constitution increasing the state supreme court to five justices. The balloting for the fifth justice will probably begin on Wednesday and may continue intermittently for several days, as there are several candidates, each with a faithful following.

The house also passed the Rembert bill providing for a tax on inheritance.

It also passed Mr. Mower's bill fixing a term for notaries public. The bill was amended so as to fix the term at 10 years to provide that an applicant must have the indorsement of at least one member of the legislative delegation of the applicant's county. The fee is fixed at $2 instead of $3 as at present.

Mr. Gary's libel law bill also was passed and sent to the senate. This is the bill introduced at the instance of the South Carolina Press association.

Mr. Mitchum's bill to limit the amount of Clemson college's income was killed by 72 to 24, after considerable debate. A number of bills were given second reading, among them being the death registration bill, with an amendment to require the registration of births also; the bill to require cotton mills to pay an employe as soon as he is discharged, and the bill permitting Chester and other cities to have a commission form of municipal government.

The senate passed the joint resolution giving free scholarships at Clemson to Jerry H. Moore and Archie Odom, boys' corn contest prize winners.

In the senate Saturday Senator Johnstone's bill providing for a uniform method of awarding scholarships to state institutions was passed, after a great deal of debate and sent to the house. The bill gives to the faculties of the various colleges the privilege of recommending for three scholarships, which shall be awarded by the state board of education. Holders of scholarships at the university are required to deposit a note for the amount of the scholarship, payable in eight years, which shall be cancelled when the scholar has taught two years within the state. The holders of such scholarships at the university are required to take the teachers' normal course.

Senator Young added something to the gaiety of the session by his recommendation with regard to Gov. Bleasoe's seventh message, which was received Saturday. Speaking of the message, which asserted that even the members of the supreme court were not over-careful in observance of the state constitution and that trustees of state colleges who hold other offices are habitually violating it both in letter and in spirit, Mr. Young suggested that the message be received as information, with the advice to the governor that he "shiny on his own side". Finally the part of the message which referred to holding two offices was referred to the judiciary committee.

The senate also received as information messages from the attorney general and from the dispensary winding up commission requesting that there be a thorough investigation as suggested by the governor.

The judiciary committee reported the bill for an investigation of the winding-up of the dispensary affairs. The investigating committee, under this bill, is given wide powers to probe and is endowed with a court's power to summon witnesses and compel attendance. The committee is to investigate the acts and doings of the attorney general, the winding-up commission, the legislative committee and any other persons connected with the affairs of the dispensary.

All told, it was rather an interesting week, with many matters of importance coming up for treatment. This week bids fair to be another of the kind, with the dispensary investigating bill and the election of an associate justice taking prominent places.

Temperance Address.

Miss Rhena E. G. Morsher, of New York, national organizer and lecturer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and field secretary of the Young People's Branch, delivered a temperance address in the Methodist church at Chapin on Friday evening, January 27.

Miss Morsher is a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, Mass., and is a lady of refinement and culture. Her address was along the line of scientific temperance and was clear, logical and convincing. There is an enthusiastic young peoples branch at Chapin.

Court Next Week.

The spring term of the court of common pleas will convene on next Monday morning with Judge Thos. S. Sease, of Spartanburg, presiding. The dockets are very full of cases of more or less importance, and it is thought that the term will last for three or four weeks.

Clerk of the Court Frank W. Shealy has everything in readiness for the opening.

Marriage License Law.

After July 1st, this year, it will be unlawful to marry without a license, the house on yesterday having passed the senate bill. The fee is to be $1, a part of which goes to the free public schools. The licenses must be obtained from the Judge of Probate three days before marriage.

All eyes are on the town of Chapin, and it will pay prospective purchasers to attend the big Auction Sale of town lots, Saturday, February 4th, at 11 o'clock. W. L. Bennett, Auctioneer.
