A FRONTIER HOLIDAY

WITH the merry sounds of barbecues and the raising of the festivities of the New Year's holiday season, one with well timed regularity to the monotony of the ordinary prosaic life. In the ranging country of the West, where the entire possession of the average ranchman consists of a few hundred cattle, half a dozen horses and a rude outhouse or stable, the holiday with the bare necessities of life, there are only a few pleasures to the whole work of the year, and the assured diversion of the year is the June roundup. Unless the cowboy goes into a frontier town to take in a horse-racing performance of a "show" given by a traveling prestidigitator he has absolutely no outside diversion.

NOT UNTIL SUNRISE DOES THE MUSIC STOP.

But in the older ranching territories of the southwest, where stock raising has settled down into a safe and remunerative business and the precarious livelihood and pioneer simplicity have given way to an assured income with comfort and plenty, the holiday frolic has come to be an established custom.

It is a pleasant break to the winter spent in "riding lines" over the country or in whisky poker and cutthroat euchre indoors.

For a week or two before the holiday feast all hands lend their aid to the capturing of game and the fending and saving of eggs.

This is the season for wild turkeys, fat rabbits and ducks. The ordinary mode of getting turkeys is to shoot them, the hunter hiding in the sagebrush or chaparral and decoying the birds by imitating their cluck. The great birds, hearing this friendly call, answer and come to it, and a volley of buckshot secures several of the flock.

Another and more exciting manner of turkey capture is to rob a roost. This is done at night by seeking the peacocks, where the turkeys generally roost.

Some designing and lucky huntsman, having "spotted" a roost, informs his friends, and they go in a party to the place. Cautiously approaching under cover of night, their horses' feet treading noiselessly over the dead leaves, they patiently await the settling down of the restless and exceedingly wild and timid turkeys.

At last, when the fluttering brown figures form a motionless part of the shadowy silence, the signal is given, and bang go the guns simultaneously from all directions. There is a heavy fall, and the rest of the turkeys are so dazed and frightened that they sit still, a helpless prey, to be picked off one by one until the whole roost is secured.

The cowboys' revel is dancing. They are graceful, natural, muscular and active. Dancing to them is horseback riding in good company, under shelter and to the tune of a fiddle. It gives free play to their untiring, restless bodies and at the same time satisfies and delights their love of women's society and good fellowship.

Not until the dull red glow of sunrise creeps over the dun prairies does the music stop.

Then after a breakfast of "cold bits" and strong, hot black coffee the girls go to rooms prepared for them at the ranch or, mounted on fleet footed bronchos, go galloping over the prairies, the fresh, wild wind in their faces and the thrilling memory of sweet words or sweeter promises in their wholesome, simple hearts.—Boston Globe.

PENCIL AND SCISSORS.

1913. A prosperous year for all. The parcel post law went into effect today. Don't be a drone in the bee hive of industry. There is no room for laggards in Lexington.

The Dispatch and the Home and Farm, both one year for $1.25.

Lexington needs more men of brain and brawn, of pluck and enterprise.

Don't forget to write 1913. It may save you the use of many an ugly word.

In the way of enterprise let us make the year 1913 a record breaker for Lexington.

Mr. Henry Hite, who was hurt in an unway accident in Columbia recently shows some improvement.

Having left over in stock after Christmas trade, the Bazaar is selling cheap all kinds of glassware and china.

On December 24, 1912 Miss Youmans and Mr. Barrett Jones were married. They will make Batesburg their home.

Dr. Killingsworth, of Columbia, will be at P. Lion Friday and Saturday January 3rd and 4th to do all kind of dental work.

Those who are entitled to a pension should bear in mind that Chairman M. Roof will be in the auditor's office each Saturday during the month of January for the purpose of giving blanks to applicants.

When you want a reliable medicine or a cough or cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all dealers.

Miss Florence Lucile Corley and Elmer Eugene Wingard were married at the home of the bride's parents in East Lexington on December 24th, 1912, by the Rev. J. A. Cromer.

When you want fresh groceries and hardware of any kind call on H. N. Kammer & Co., corner of Main and Church streets. Your patronage will be appreciated.

Elmer Hexler, an itinerant organ and piano tuner, hired a horse and wagon from J. W. Goodwin of Swanesa, and neither man or horse has since been heard from.

In the election held in The Fork yesterday to decide the question of annexation to Richland, there were 34 votes cast all of which was favorable for annexation.

On December 25th, 1912, Miss Ina May Hendrix, of Johnston, and John H. Gunter, of Lexington county, were married at the Lutheran parsonage in Lexington, by the Rev. P. D. Risinger.

W. Pickens Oullum, aged about 70 years, and a prominent business man of Batesburg, cut his throat with a knife from the effects of which he died on December 31. No cause is assigned for the rash act.

Miss Belva Lever, of near Lexington, and Willie H. Weed, of Irmo, were made man and wife at the Lutheran parsonage in Lexington on December 25, 1912, Rev. P. D. Risinger officiating. Both of the young people are popular in the community in which they resided.

Persons troubled with partial paralysis are often very much benefited by massaging the affected parts thoroughly when applying Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

A beautiful home wedding was solemnized at Leesville on December 26th, 1912 by which Miss Lizzie E. Whittle became the happy bride of Mark M. Shalay, Rev. S. C. Ballentine officiating. The young couple starts life's journey together under fair skies and favorable winds.

Mr. Addison Vansant, one of the best farmers in the county and a whole souled gentleman, who lives out from Leesville on route 7, was in town yesterday and renewed his subscription. This is the 4th year that he has been a subscriber to the Dispatch.

H. N. Kammer & Co. desire to inform their patrons and the public generally that they have opened up since the fire a fresh stock of groceries and hardware in their warehouse fronting church street. Come to see us.

Miss Kathleen Cleckley, of Swanesa, at Mr. T. O. Cogburn, of Hix, were married at the home of the bride on December 28th, Rev. Mr. Smith pastor of the Baptist Church at Hix, officiating. Mrs. Cogburn has been teaching for two years in the kindergarten department of the Columbia graded schools, and Mr. Cogburn is Cashier of the Norway Bank at Hix.

It isn't the proper thing for a girl to practice on a vocal range while her poor old mother practices on a cooking range.
