Obituary.

George W. Reeder, was born Oct.
17, 1835, died Sept. 19, 1914, aged 78 years, 11 months, 2 days. He leaves a wife and seven children: 3 sons, and 4 daughters, with several grand children, to mourn his departure. We trust their loss on earth may be his eternal gain in heaven. He was a life long member of the Lutheran church.
He was ever ready to do his part therein. He was a soldier in the late war, Harman's company K, 20th regiment, S. C. V. Truly brave in battle. He was well respected by all who came his way. This was manifested by the very large congregation at his burying. He was buried in the family grave yard near his home. The services were conducted by the Revs.
P. D. Risinger and A. R. Taylor.

Notice of Examination.

The regular fall teachers' examination will be held at the court house on October 2. Those without certificates who intend to teach this coming session should take this examination. The school law requires every teacher to have a certificate. The examination will begin at 9 a. m. Please be prompt.

Discover Infant's Body

Gaffney, September 18.—The body of a well developed male child was found by some boys to-day near the baseball grounds in the northern portion of Gaffney. The body was buried about six inches deep and was wrapped in a bloody sheet. The coroner empanelled a jury of inquest, but after taking the testimony of the boys who made the find, and that of Dr. J. G.
Pittman, adjourned the inquiry until later in the week in the hope that enough facts would develop to warrant placing the responsibility.

There is absolutely no clue as to who committed the crime, the officers are working on the case. Dr. Pittman testified that the child had been born alive.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease.

Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

Newberry Letter.

Editor of the Lexington Dispatch: We are all human beings, and we do not all look at things exactly the same way. We hope, however, that every good reasonable thinking, concien-tious, law-abiding citizen of this old commonwealth is satisfied with the nominations made in the two recent primaries for the various State and County offices. We are all democrats and as good Christian, law-abiding citizens, where we have our Christian churches of the various denominations, schools and colleges, we should have no ill feelings towards each other from the fact, as a free citizen, we have the privilege of exercising our judgment as to who we shall vote for.
The people do not very often make a mistake. Should they make a mistake sooner or later they will correct the error. So let us stand firmly together as democrats, and work for the best interest and welfare of our State and countries in which we live.

We congratulate our friend, Judge C. M. Efrd, for the high honor in which he has received by his friends to fill the unexpired term of Judge Gary, deceased. We venture to say, not a better qualified man could be found in the State to fill the Judges chair in the 6th circuit than Judge Efrd.

A GENERAL UNEASINESS.

It Was the Only Drawback to an Otherwise Auspicious Occasion.

CHIMES like the air, the brightly dressed guests filled the church, and the merry wedding spirit filled the brightly dressed guests. Great clusters of orange blossoms also filled the church, casting their petals here, there and everywhere, or, to put it all in one word, everywhere.
But stop! Is all serene?
No, not quite all. An undercurrent of disquiet, vague uneasiness, has made itself apparent.

"It's foolish of me, I know," said the bride, chewing gum rapidly to hide her perturbation and show her lovely teeth. "It's foolish of me, I repeat, but I have the dreadfulest mysterious feeling that all is not well, when I can see perfectly well that all is!"

"How silly, Bismarkina," reproved her mother, who looked her best in an afternoon gown of citron. "And yet, to tell the truth, I, too, have a feeling that I can't explain—a feeling that somehow, some which way, something is amiss. Of course, you are still a miss, but that's not what I mean."

Then the father, who was furiously smoking his pipe to keep his spirits up, admitted that even he was unaccountably nervous, and even the minister was forced to acknowledge that his mind was not entirely at peace.

It was then that some one discovered that though the time set for the wedding had come and gone the groom had not yet arrived.—London Tatler.

Formerly Love in a Cottage.

The young man approached the old man with considerable trepidation, although he was well acquainted with him.

"I suppose it's about Alice," said the old man, not unkindly.

"Yes, it's about Alice," said the young man, with simple directness.
"I love her, as I am sure you know, and I want your consent to our marriage." The old man looked at the young man as a father would look at a son.

"Clarence," he said, at last. "I give my consent gladly. I welcome you as a son-in-law, but before proceeding further with this thing, let me ask you one serious question. Alice is the daughter of honest but rich parents.
She has been brought up in luxury, as the saying is. Do you think you can make happy in your solitary $500 run-about a girl who has been used to a $9,000 imported limousine?"—Puck.

Struggle to Hide the Truth.

"What makes you insist on always dancing with that girl? You know you dance badly."

"That's true," replied the determined youth. "I think a lot of that girl. If I dance with her instead of letting her sit down and watch me at a distance, maybe I can keep her from seeing what a fearful dancer I really am."— Washington Star.

His Experience.

The man who had made his pile in the South American trade advertised for a valet.

He looked the first applicant over.
"Have you valeted long?" he asked.
"Me?" replied the applicant. "Why, I'm a regular valetudinarian!"

He got the job.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Dissimilarity.

"You have two sons?"
"Yep, one's a writer and the other a surgeon."

"Both succeeding, I suppose?"
"Yep, one of them at free lancing and the other by charging as much as he can get for his lancing."—Rocky Mountain News.

Lovely Woman.

A man's a fool who thinks of balking A woman when her tongue would spin.
She always says, "There's no use talking!"
When she intends to start right in.
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Another Lie Tailed.

"It says here that a collar button was found in a cow's stomach," said Mrs. Gabb, as she laid down the newspaper.

"I don't believe it," growled Mr.
Gabb. "How could a cow get under a bedroom dresser?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

He Was.

"Jane, what time is it?" called down the irate father.

"I don't know, pa. The clock isn't going."
"But I am," spoke up the young man, who could take a hint.—Detroit Free Press.

Physical Impossibility.

"So Mrs. Jenkins told you she had a new enterprise on foot. She can't have."
"Why not?"

"Because it is a manure establishment."—Baltimore American.
