

A JEALOUS HUSBAND—HE FINDS A PAIR OF BOOTS.—One of the little episodes in life occurred night before last that should be a lesson to all jealous husbands. There is a family living in one of the best located houses in South Memphis, whose worldly means are above the fear of want. The wife is one of those generous hearted women who loves her husband with all the devotion of a true heart; but her lord is one of those mixtures of the brute, with an occasional good trait. He, however, loves his better-half, but allows his love to be lost in his jealousy. The lady has been in the habit of meeting her lordship at the door each evening with a welcome kiss. It so happens, that for over a month the green-eyed monster has interrupted their domestic bliss, although the faithful wife never missed meeting her husband at the door with the usual greeting of a kiss. On Friday night, however, the brute, went home later than usual—something near ten o'clock, and the wife had retired. Not meeting her at the door, his jealousy rose to a fighting point, and he instantly went to the back door, expecting to find a mare's nest; and sure enough he did. The first thing he saw, after entering the house, was a pair of boots! I have them, thought he. He next looked the boots in a closet, and obtaining a light he entered his sleeping apartment, but to his astonishment, he found only his wife. He next searched the house from top to bottom, but no Don Juan could be seen. We need not say that the night was passed most unpleasantly to both husband and wife. The brute, however, told his better-half that he had her lover's boots, and through them he would yet know the scoundrel. Divorce was talked of, and the wife's protestation that she was innocent only brought the reply of "boots." She cried, "I am not guilty!" and he vociferated "boots." Morning at last came, and the enraged husband went for his shoe leather—he brought them up stairs, shaking them in his wife's face, when upon a close examination, the discovery was made that they were his own boots! The wife, like a sensible woman, forgave him, and she has only to say "boots!" to make her husband plead for mercy.—Memphis Appeal.

A Curious Scene.
The New York correspondent of the Charleston News relates a singular occurrence which took place a few days since at Greenwood Cemetery. A young widow, whose first wife has been dead but three months, took unto herself a second spouse, and on the very day after the knot was tied took wife number two to Greenwood Cemetery, to visit the grave of wife number one. Standing over the grave, the grief-stricken man indulged himself in a burst of sorrow, and remarked to himself that no woman lived who could compare with her who lay beneath the grass-covered sod. The live wife took exception at the spirit of the remark, as well as at the remark itself about the spirit. She denied the truth of the statement, and added that she considered herself far superior, in all respects, to the dead woman. The ex-widower assured her that she flattered herself, and that she could not begin to compare with the defunct lady either in physical, mental or moral excellence; whereupon a quarrel arose—the live wife beat her bosom's lord about the head with an umbrella; the man showed fight, and there was a veritable contest at the grave. The trawin have separated; the lady has gone home to her parents, and the ex-widower is, practically speaking, a widower again.

That careful old money-maker, Stephen Girard, who was never known to spend a dollar for less than a dollar's worth, thoroughly understood the advantages of advertising. He often said that he never spent money more profitably than when he invested in printer's ink during hard times. He considered it a golden opportunity never to be neglected. Those who advertise liberally will always give the best bargains.

The wife of Dr. C. F. Forbes was burned to death in Waltham, Mass., Saturday night, by the breaking of a kerosene lamp.

"None but the brave deserve the fair." No, and none but the brave can live with some of them.

Has French society become better during the reign of its savior? Let Louis Veullot be the judge. Here are a few extracts from his recently published book, Les Odeurs de Paris. Speaking of theatrical exhibitions, he writes: "What is dreadfully shocking is the means used to attract the public. The bait is a naked woman. I do not speak of the horror of the soul at such a sight, but simply of the horror of the eye. The spectacle is more awful than unmanly. The décolletés exhibited on the stage, not only have horrid ugly faces, but their figures are atrociously deformed; some are bow-legged, others crooked, and every one of them are impudent and clumsy, not knowing how to walk or how to stand. Oh, dreadful deformations of the moulding crane." "Fancy you are in the drawing-room of a provincial actress beginning to decline—a smoking lamp, stained silks, and tinsels scattered upon the dignified furniture, twenty rancid cosmetics—these is the scenery. The lady dresses herself while speaking with her friends; she dyes and paints; she stuffs herself; she hangs glossy hair upon her scanty, greasy curls; she plants teeth into her gums; she cries at every gray hair left on her comb; she laughs; she drinks brandy; she mends her court mantle; she narrates her past victories; she is ready. The curtain rises; she plays Celimene. Do you not feel dismayed, disgusted, terrified? Do you not run away to avoid that breath, that paint, that hoarseness?"

"I've Been Ruined."
The Chicago Times says that no newspaper article in this country ever produces such a sensation, as its own in favor of negro suffrage, to which boast the St. Louis Times makes the following apt and unique reply:

"We know of no illustration of the egotism of the boast—it is unparalleled and should remain so. But the case of the servant girl who left her employment in the country to enjoy a bit of the metropolitan life, furnishes a very fair counterpart to the Times, regarding the notoriety of its infamy, as something to be proud of. Jane who went away a plain and virtuous country lass, came back to visit her old mistress in an agony of erinoline and vulgar jewelry and decorations. 'Bless me, Jane,' said her old employer, 'where did you get all these fine clothes?' 'La, Misses,' replied Jane, with the self-satisfied smile and glance of approval, 'didn't you know I've been ruined.' The Times has been debauched also, but seems to think it is a tribute to its smartness.

A young lady, with a mind inferior on shopping, entered a store on a certain occasion, and addressing the fresh looking, rosy cheeked youth, desired to know if he had nice silk hose. 'Certainly, Miss,' replied he, and immediately the counter was strewn with the delicate articles. 'How high do they come, sir?' The clerk blushed, turned all sorts of colors, but spoke not a word. She gave him a look of surprise, and repeated her question. Again the youth stammered and said: 'Really, Miss, I—that is to say—I think—I could not be positive—but my impression is, they come just above the knee!'

How A YOUNG WOMAN STOLE PANTALOONS.—A young lady by the name of Herbert was caught the other evening in the act of stealing pants in a ready-made clothing store in Montreal. Her modus operandi was, after carrying the unmentionables (which she made up at home for the firm) into the back store, she would draw on two or three pairs, and by turning up the legs so that they could not be seen below her dress, she would pass out unnoticed.

Philadelphia University of Medicine and Surgery.
ORGANIZED, 1848.
Chartered by the Legislature, Feb. 25, 1853. Amendments to Charter, Feb. 15 1860, and March 15, 1865.
Two full sessions of Lectures each year, commencing the first of October, and continuing until April. The Dissecting Rooms are open, and private lectures and quizzes continue during the entire year. The first session continues until Christmas, or for three months, and the second until the first of April, or three months; the two constituting one full course of lectures. Examination of candidates for graduation will occur at the end of each session.
REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.—The requirements for graduation are three sessions of lectures, and three years study; or four sessions, including two years spent at the University.
THE SYSTEM OF MEDICINE TAUGHT.—The University is a liberal medical school, in which all branches of medicine and surgery are taught, including the preparatory studies, without regard to any sectarian views. Hence, while they deprecate the exclusiveness of Allopathy, Homoeopathy, Eclecticism, Hydropathy, &c., they believe that all principles of cure and therapeutical agents should be taught in all well regulated medical schools, and that every intelligent, honest, and thorough practitioner is entitled to all the courtesies and privileges of the profession, without regard to his peculiar notions in therapeutics.
FEES.—The fees for a three months' course, including all the tickets, matriculation, and dissection, are $80 a session, or $120 per year. Those who purchase tickets only have to matriculate once, which makes the second session $55, including demonstrator's fees, or $115 for a full course. To aid young men of moderate means, the University has issued five hundred scholarships, which are sold to first-course students, for $75, and to second-course students and clerical men for $50, each class holding the holder a part of the term, and the perpetual privileges of the lectures, and all the teachings of the school. The only additional fees are a yearly dissecting and matriculating ticket, and a matriculating fee.
ADVANTAGES OF SCHOLARSHIPS.—The student holding a scholarship can enter the College at any time during the year, attend as long as he chooses, and re-enter the Institution at any time.
It requires no previous reading or study to enter the University on scholarships, hence all private tuition fees are saved.
Students, by holding scholarships, can purchase a number of books for their use, at a year or more before their attendance at the University, can secure them by advancing one-half the price, and paying the balance when the student enters. Physicians and lawyers can do great benefit upon poor young men, by presenting them a scholarship, and thus enabling them to obtain an honorable profession.

What they need not pay until it is known what is drawn and its value.
The American Jeweler's Association calls your attention to the fact of its being the largest and most popular Jewelry Association in the United States. The business is and always has been conducted in the most candid and honorable manner. Our rapidly increasing trade is a sure guarantee of the appreciation of our patrons for this method of obtaining rich elegant and costly goods. The sudden stagnation of trade in Europe, owing to the late German War and recent disastrous financial crisis in England, has caused the fall of a large number of Jewelry Houses in London and Paris, obliging them to sell their goods at a great sacrifice, in some instances less than one third the cost of manufacturing. We have lately purchased very largely of these Bankrupt Goods, at such extremely low prices, that we can afford to send away finer goods, and give better chances to draw the most valuable prizes than any other establishment doing a similar business. We have, therefore, and we respectfully solicit your patronage, as we are confident of giving the utmost satisfaction. During the past year we have forwarded a number of the most valuable prizes to all parts of the country. Those who patronize us will receive the full value of their money, as no article on our list is worth less than One Dollar, retail, and there are no blanks. In order to draw with us may depend on having prompt returns, and the articles drawn will be immediately sent to any address by return mail or express.
The following parties have recently drawn valuable prizes from the American Jeweler's Association, and have kindly allowed the use of their names:
Charles J. Hunter, Esq., Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., Piano, value $300; Miss Anna G. Yates, 52 St. Mark's Place, N. Y., Sewing Machine, value $75; Brig. Gen. L. H. Hanson, U. S. Vols. Nashville, Tenn., Silver Tea Set, value $150; Miss Emma H. Smith, 23 Front St., Philadelphia, Pa., Sewing Machine, value $60; Lieut. Col. Walter Clendenen, Quartermaster, Louisville, Ky., Gold Watch, value $150; Wm. S. Haines, 247 King St., Charleston, S. C., Silver Box, value $20; Alexander Johnson, Esq., Editor Muskateer Pioneer, Muskateer, Minn., Ladies Enamelled Watch, value $150; Samuel Lee, Esq., President Colored and White Sewing Company, San Francisco, Cal., Melodeon, value $200; Aaron S. Long, Esq., Principal Elkhart Collegiate Institute, Elkhart, N. J., Diamond Pin, value $200; R. M. Longstreet, Montgomery, Ala., Music Box, value $75; Rev. Isaac Van Duzer, Albany, N. Y., Gold Lined Diving Set, value $300; Miss Clara Luenger, Dayton, Ohio, Piano forte, value $400, and Diamond Pin, value $175.
Prizes can be placed on the List, but we publish no names without permission. Our patrons are desired to send United States Currency when it is convenient.
