howl, and swear that those who have the paper in charge know nothing of their business. The Chicago Post touches the matter pertinently in a recent article. It

If we reflect upon the variety of matter in a newspaper, that the work has to be done rapidly, and cannot in many particulars have the deliberation of the closet, from the very nature of the case; that no matter what takes place, the comment thereon must be made, the demands of the situation being as remorseless as tide or time, moving on regardless of affection, affliction, misfortune, death-when we consider these things, and more that we might mention, all will understand that the general accuraey of the press and its general character for literary excellence are something remarkable. That, under these circumstances, the press of the country makes a few blunders; mixes up dates or facts badly; kills a dead man now and then, or buries a live one; misrepresents an opponent, or cuts other fantastic tricks, is not surprising. If it did not, the gods and not men would be the conductors of the press. That it performs its general duties of chronicling the goings on of the whole world. in events and in ideas, and makes valuable additions besides to the best of general literature, is matter about which those growlers at the press and those pretenders in it who could not write an advertisement for a lost puppy so that it could be parsed, had better stop to think about.
