An Ugly Chapter.

The Columbia Phœnix chronicles the killing of Mr. A. F. Dubard, an old and highly respected citizen of that district. He was shot and killed on the public highway, on Thursday afternoon last. The incentive to the murder was money. No clue to ascertain who was the perpetraffr except that marks of flat feet were found near the body.

The greatest achievement of the age, the completion of the Mont Ceais Tunnel, by which the Alps have been pierced through from France to Italy is anounced. It was a predigious work and occupied twelve years of continuous labor, night and day, Sundays not excepted. The whole distance bored was 7 45 miles, 41 being bored from the Italian work in a good cause by taking this which points, in the bowels of the tun co chewers will take notice. nel, with more than a mile of Alps towering above their heads, the workmen a road through the pass of Mont Genis, at an elevation of 5400 feet above the first the ordinary hand-drill was used to pierce the rock, and the solid masses were blasted out with powder. This method of operation, which was kept up on the Italian side until 1861, and on the French side until 1863, would have required upward of fifty years for the completion of the work. Accordingly it behooved the projectors to bethink them of some more expeditious method of proceeding. The use of steam was out of the question, and the actention of the Italian engineers was therefore turned to a device for using compressed air as after the war commended it at once to the motive power. This matter presentthe Southern people. It now has in its ed no very great difficulty in its general principles but a great deal of experimen ting was necessary before it could be put into successful practice. A machine was finally invented and put into operation which could stand out-

down from the mountains, and, with its aid, force the air through long tubes to the drilling apparatus. This latter is a machine which works in a galley nine feet square, and carries a large number of perforators, each of which bores a sep arate hole in the rock. By the compressing machine, the air is forced into a reservoir, and thence it passes through flexible pipes to the cylinders containing By the opening of a valve, each drill is forced against the face of the rock with a force of about 200 pounds, turned slight ly, and withdrawn. Two hundred of these blows are given every minute with each drill, and, when holes of the required depth have been bored, the air is turned off, and the machine withdrawn a short di tance. The holes are bored in . B.W. Ball, Esq , the sprightly editor such a way as to converge slightly to progress had been made, and subse quently, gun cotton was tried. STRANGE IF THUE -Strange and mysterious things happen in this life, and so frequent are they as only to excite a passing exclamation. We would not have alluded to this me'sucholy affair, but that it is our duty as journalists to make an expose of ali things as they happen, and we sincerely trust that the moral which lies at the bottom may be productive of lasting good to all those who are like-minded, and persist, to the detriment of

OBITUARY. DED at his residence in Laurens District, on the 7th of Decen ber last, after an illness of on'y 24 hours, John N. FLOYD, in the 33rd year of his age. With more than usual sortow I make the above announcement.

and offer a tribute to his memory. Death, at all times, and under every cir-cumstance and condition of human life, is a sad and mournful event; and its invasion in unced by the wasting inroads of disease or years before it comes, cannot fail to remind surviving friends of the tenderness of the thread that holds the soul and body to-gether. But how much sadder must be the reflection when death lays its icy fingers up-on one in the bloom of early manhood, and tho, only the day before his demise was in the enjoyment of apparent health. However, my object is not to suggest thoughts for the living, though the occasion might be appropriate but to pay, in humble words, a fitting tribute to the memory of a departed Mr. Floyd was reared in the lap of afflus ence and wealth, and could the solicitude of uxious friends and the prayers of loving hearts have stayed the hand of death, we would not mourn his absence now. The providences of God are inscrutible, and it is ot for short-sighted man to cavil, but in faith to bow with resignation.

Though a mere boy the subject of this notice, with eagerness and promptitude, responded to the first call of his native State, in the late sad war, and continued a staunch and faithful defender of the Confederate flag, till the cause for which he fought was lost in the gloom of defeat, His surviving comrades will bear faithful evidence that his record in the many hard fought battles in Viccinia and elsewhere, entifle him to the highest praise as a soldier, and proudly places his name in its appro-printe plate upon the roll of honor.

After the cose of the war, Mr. Floyd resumed the peaceful avecations of a farmer, at his quiet country home, in Laurens Diss rict, near the Newberry line, and by dint of industry bad accumulated a large fortune: and with his ample means, at all times re-sponded to the calls of his friends, with a iberality but seldom manifested. He was remarkable not only for his faithfulness and fidelity to old and long-cherished associations and friendships, but for his affable, courteous and pleasant disposition to-

He was the picture of perfect, manly de-The was the picture of perfect, many development, and certainly no one gave promise so flattering, of a long life as he; but, suddenly, when Spring's bright sun shone clearest, and life's promises and hopes glowed brightest, he was called to his long home; aving a widowed wife and two little orphan boys to mourn his long absence, together with a long list of devoted friends.

But upon his devoted wife the loss has fallen heaviest. She alone feels the great-ness and irreparableness of the loss. Her sorrow is most poignant, and will linger l ng-est, for, truly, she has a mother's part and a father's too to act. But while her heart is shaded with the funeral pall, may she real-ize the beauty of, and mentally comprehend that ancient and holy promise, that there is the fatherless; and may the peaceful influence of that promise impart "the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness" in sorrow's dark and chilly hour.

Much more might properly be said in eulogy of the deceased, but I forbear.

Truly 'man cometh up like a flower, and s cut down, he fleeth, as it were, like a shadow, and never continueth in one stay. The remains of Mr. Floyd now silently rest the family graveyard, surrounded by the kindred dust of several generations past. Our dearest friends are soonest taken-

SPREAD THE TRUTH Some medical men insist that it is undignified to advertise a remedy, however valuable it may be. Queer reasoning this. I is like saying that an article which the world needs should be hid in a corner—that benefits and blessings may be too widely diffused—that the means of protecting and corner—the health, should be a close monopoly. widely diffused—that the means of protecting and restorin; health should be a close monopoly, and not accessible to all. The argument is bad. It is worse than that; it is inhuman. Suppose Hostetre's Stomach Bitters—an absolute specific for dyspepsia, biblionsness and nervous debility—had never been known beyond the repertoire of the faculty, what would have been the consequence? Instead of curing and invigorating millions, the good effects of the preparation would have been confined to a comparative few. There is the highest authority for saying that light should not be hid under a bushel; that whatever is excellent should be placed as a city whatever is excellent should be placed as a city whatever is a xeellent should be placed as a city on a hill, where all men can take cognizance of it. It is upon this principle that the Bitters have been advertised and continue to be advertised in every newspaper of any prominence in the westfern he esphere, and that the spontaneous testimonials in its favor have been translated into all written languages. Thousands enjoy perfect health to-day who would be languishing on beds of sickness if the newspapers had not spread the truth with regard to this unequaled invigorant and corrective far and wide. Suppose profit rant and corrective far and wide. Suppose profit has been reaped from this publicity. Is that any argument against it? If the public health has been protected; if lives have been saved; if the teeble have been saved as a complete to the teeble have been saved as the teeble have been saved if the teeble have been saved if the teeble have been saved; if the teeble have been saved if the teeble have been saved; i

WHAT IS HEADACHE? In nine cases out of ten the source of headache is not in the orain, but in the stomach. Indigestion is the most frequent cause. The digestive organs being disordered, they derange the action of the liver, the bowels, the kidneys, and the nerves, and the whole secretive and excretive machinery being as it were thrown out of gear, the brain suffers. Restore the natural tone of the stomach and bowels with a few doses of Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient, and headache arising from this cause is at orce arrested. This delightful preparation the best remedy for chronic and periodcal headache at present known, and absontely invaluable as a stomachic and gentle
