PRATT'S HEADACHE AND

LIVER PILLS

Contain no Mercury or other poisonous Mineral. These PILLS are invaluable in the diseases of the South, such as Bilious and Intermittent Fevers, Torpidity and Inaction of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels, Bilious and Sick Headaches, Giddiness, or Vertigo, Accumulation of Bile, Jaundice, some forms of Hepatitis, Dropsical Swellings, Enlargement of the Spleen, Loss of Appetite, some forms of Dyspepsia, Hypochondria, and Depression of Spirits, arising from disturbance of the Gastric and Biliary Organs. The Proprietor can recommend these Pilis with the greatest confidence, believing them to be far superior to the Pills in g netal use, more mild, more prompt, safe and uniform in their operation. In small doses they are gently laxative, but in the usual dose they are an active cathartic.
