IN THE WEONG PEW .- A few days ago, while in the Clerk of Court's office, a small boy of the colored persuasion, came in and asked for some "potato slips," or small potatoes. There were two or three small men in the office at the time, and it may be that the boy had been sent there to aid in the perpetration of a horrid joke. The local smelt a mouse, after the boy had vamosed, as is usually the case. We then went for him, but it was too late. A GOLDEN THOUGHT .- A Single word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. Speck, has fitted up an elegant and convenient wagon which is -designed to make regular trips through the County, on time, with 'time pieces' of the best make, and warranted to give satisfaction. He cannot sell these clocks on tick, or time, but after they are sold he will guarantee that they will go on TICK-ing till they run down, and keep the best of time. Mr. Singleton Ring is to be the dispenser, and he will make the first trip on Wednesday morning and ring out the merits of his clocks in the most agreeable manner. It is a good idea, and we

Magic.-On Monday afternoon, while ascending the gentle slope near the Episcopal Church, we were struck with the appearance of a new and beautiful cottage house, almost in a state of completion. We had no idea that the cottage was in creccion, and could cluding board, washing, tuition, books, and that the cottage was in crecion, and could stationery will not exceed $130. For specinot but be struck with what seemed to us the work of magic. And not only with the rapidity of its erection, were we struck, but with its remarkable beauty of design and finish. It is certainly the neatest cottage house in town, and adds much to the appearance of that quarter. We learned on inquiry that Jordan P. Pool, Esq., was the owner, and we give him credit not only for his energy, but the good taste displayed.

> Scissors .- We have not since boyhood caught Scissors from any one-it was common then- we recollect the last distinctly? when the bridge of our nose was broken by a big boy, and how the claret spurted. It was a cruel blow. Since then our even tenor has not been disturbed, and our nose has neither been pulled nor broken. No one has attempted to give as seissors until now. While in | good place. They use every effort to please the tired, hungry traveller, and they must be gratified to know that it is highly appreciated. These gentlemen deserve much credit for the great energy they have shown in building up this place, which it is remembered was all that success has crowned them.

On the other side of the river is the shingle and lumber yard of our fellow-citizen, Mr. F. Dominick. It is a sight worth looking at, and we satisfied, that his energy and enterprise will also bring him in large profits. Any number of shingles can be supplied from this yard.

SLIPPED FROM HIS MOORINGS .- This is a nautical expression, reader, and appropo, for the reason, that the paragraph is made necessary on account of the editor's naughtiness in leaving this office on Tuesday last, with very little previous notice, and scarcely any 'copy' for the printers. It is not usual with him to do so however, we must confess to his credit. Well, being out of 'copy,' and having no assistant to call to the rescue, the task devolved on us, the 'Gevil,'-the printer's devil-and as the cry for copy could not be stopped, but with a supply of the necessary pabulum, we took off our jacket with its ink spots and grease, and rolled up the under sleeves and pitched in. It was hard work, but like Mr. Sam. Jonsing, "who knew there was music in his heels, and was bound to get it out," so we knew that there was something in our head, and went vigorously for it.
