Remarkable. The following is an extract from most remarkable editorial of the Chareston Chronicle, of a late date. The Chronicle is one of the most out-andout radical papers in the State. It is always spitting mud and fire into the faces of the democrats, and never sees anything good in them or their principles, and rarely ever finds anything biectionable in the acts of its own party. So you may bet your bottom dollar, when the Chronicle admits the existence of corruption in the republican ranks and cries for reform, that there is sore need for reform, and-we were about to say-some truth in the repeated cries among republicans for it. We wish wo could put faith in its integrity, since "faith is the substance of things hoped for." But here are
