Party Organization. One of the worst features the Democrats have to contend against in this County, as well as in others, is indepentism-we don't know whether there is such a word, but denouncing Whipper as a demagogue, everybody knows what is meant. Many men consider it a mark of independence to stay out of the organizations. They have an idea that to the 5th District. We hear nothing join a Club is to yield their right now of this rascal's conviction for of free acting and free thinking. They are opposed to the Clubs, and say they do not express the wishes of the people. They are opposed to nominating conventions. And when the nominations are made, they do not consider themselves bound to support the nominees, because they have had no out Republican State ticket. voice in their selection. We frequently hear Democrats say that no set of men shall dictate to them as to how they are to vote. Such sentiments would be very commendable under certain circumstances; if there were only one party in the State, or if there were no danger of the corrupt Radical party regaining control of the State. But there are two parties in the State, and there is danger that the Radical party will regain ascendancy. No true Democrat can wish to see this. Then how is it to be prevented? It cannot be done except by the united action of the Democratic party, and there can be no united action except by party organization. The whole strength of the party vision is defeat. We recognize the fact as clearly as any one that every Democrat has a right to a voice in the selection of candidates; and no one appreciates independence more highly than we do. Granting that every Democrat has a right to be heard, how is that to be accomplished? Shall we call a convention of all the Democrats of the County? Such an idea is This fellow was forced by the revela-

A mass meeting of the Radicals was held at this place the 26th ult. Al the speakers were colored. Tom Hamilton was read out of the party. A mass meeting was held in this County the 25th ult. The most prominent speakers were Dan'l Rouse and Gloster Holland (of Ellenton notoriety,) and ex-State Senator C. D. Hayne -all colored. The County Republican Convention met the 31st, to choose delegates to the State Convention the 7th instant. It seems to be the plan of the Aiken Republicans to make no opposition to the Democratic State ticket or County officers, and to centre all their strength towards electing members of the Legislature and a Congressman from the 5th District.

The Republican Convention of this County met the 27th ult., and elected three delegates, all colored, to the Republican State Convention. The Convention was composed entirely of negroes, except that the Secretary was a white man, Jno. Bradley. They intend to run a County ticket, and to use every effort also to elect a Congressman for the 4th District.

FOR THE HERALD. A Few Suggestions to the Democrats of the County.

There is, in addition to the points candidates for office. another matter which we cannot afford to neglect. We have received the first num- Officers are not only to be nominated be voted for by the whole County. the fact that all offices and all political authority are derived from the people, that the people's feelings and opinions must be considered in making nominations. To do otherwise-that is, to undertake to nominate candidates without consulting the popular will, or still worse, in open opposition to the popular will-is to assume an authority in defiance of the people's means or other, to resent. In speaking of the people in this connection, I mean the Democracy of the County; there is no occasion to trouble ourselves about the feelings of a particle of favor from his candidate.

It is true that it is not always easy to ascertain the sentiment of the people in regard to a public man, until he has been nominated and run for office. And the persons who criticise political campaigns are generally like the military critics-they only find out blunders after the fight has been made and lost. Still, it is usually possible to form a pretty correct estimate of a man's strength in the early stages of a campaign and before nominations are to be made. Almost all of our people take some interest in such things, and even if they do not expect to exert themselves in the contest, they at least canvass the merits learn, at the very last moment, of any never purify itself, give good and impartial way to a seat again in the United connection with office, and they have damn him in the eyes of the people. character exercise, the law of the land. little hesitation in expressing their those, therefore, who mingle to any acter, what is his industry, what is upon their leaders, who made such fatal extent with their fellow-citizens it is his patriotism, and wha; is his strength our firm conviction that all the good people generally made quite clear who is the favorite or who are the favorites of the people at large. There are certain pig-headed individuals in every community who do not, will not and cannot see even the most manifest signs of popular preference; but these men are few, and they, fortunately, do not

Of course a delegate to a nominating convention ought to be largely guided by his conscience and by his judgment of the intellectual and business qualifications of the persons offered for far he should be controlled by any mere expressions of preference on the part of the particular men who elect him a delegate; but when he reflects that he is to nominate persons not only to run a race, but to win a race, every dictate of common sense, and I might add, even of common fidelity to his duty, is that he must, if possible, nominsie not only a candidate fit for office, but one who carries sufficient strength to afford a reasonable prospect of his election to office. In the absence of express instructions from his Club, the delegate must remember that he represents not only the Club members who appointed him (who, by the way, may be a minority of his Club,) not merely the whole of his Club, but that he represents the Democrats of the County at large, those out of the Clubs as well as those that are in them, and that he must therefore vote for such men as ought to and probably will secure the cordial support of the whole party. Delegates to a nominating convention by no means own the offices to be filled; they are at best but the servants and agents of the Democratic party. They must, therefore, if they would faithfully discharge the duties imposed upon them, select such candidates as will suit both the popular times as these, a very sacred one, and they should be as careful and as scrupulous about its discharge as they would be about investing or taking The Radicals held a meeting last care of other men's money committed prize, a small tin cup. for the welfare of a whole County, which often very largely depends upon

It is useless to say that the delegate should only select candidates whom he considers proper men for office, and work for them it is their own fault. It is his business to select those upon whom the voters can harmonize, whenever he can. If he could make and unmake public opinion, he might take that ground. But the fact is, that the people make up their own minds about men, and they are not going to change them at the order of any individual. Our Democracy is an independent and a bold one; it thinks for itself: it will act for itself; and while it acquiesces in many things for the sake of harmony and order, we must be very

of nominations by conventions may well be mentioned here. It is the very unwise, and often injurious practice of delegates pledging themselves to vote for a particular candidate or a which I have mentioned as necessary particular set of candidates. One does not like to say no to a fellow who comes fawning about him for his vote, involves necessarily the conclusion and not knowing what else he can do, will most often say yes. Then again, one feels so important when the big electioneerer or his friends come to him and tells him that he is a man of influence in his neighborhood, that his valuable opinions are desired by the candidate, that the cand date wants the support of such a man. &c., &c., that he learns to feel migh; wind to the utterances and acts of our distinguished this candidate and his friends, and in leader, Wade Hampton, we call upon all rights, and to attempt a tyranny the fullness of his pride and joy blabs which the people are sure, by some out his pledge to vote for this candi- with us in continuing the work of reform date, before he knows what he is and redemption inaugurated by the Demabout. About two years ago a small sore came on some that I consulted the doctor, but I got no relief, growing worse from day to day. I suffered terribly; I could not rest day or night; I was so reduced my friends thought I would never recover; I consulted a doctor at Columbus. I followed his advice; it did no good. I can truly say I was discouraged. At this time I was looking over my newspaper; I saw your advertisement of Vege-tine, the "Great Blood-Purifier" for cleansing the blood from all impurities, curing Humors, Ulcers, &c. I said to my family I will try some of the Vegetine. Before had used the first bottle I began to feel bet-ter. I made up my mind I had got the right medicine at last. I could now sleep well at nights. I continued taking the Vegetine. I took thirteen bottles. My health is good. The Ulcer is gone, and I am able to attend to business. I paid about four hundred dol-

It is a most excellent medicine.

I have been one of the greatest sufferers for the last eight years that ever could be liv-ing. I do sincerely thank my God and your Vegetine for the relief I have got. The Rheumatism has pained me to such an ex-tent, that my feet broke out in sores. For the last three years I have not been able to walk; now I can walk and sleep, and do say I owe it all to your blood purifier, Vege-tine. MARGERY WELLS. VEGETINE.-The great success of the VEG-

ETINE as a cleanser and purifier of the blood is shown beyond a doubt by the great numbers who have taken it, and received im-mediate relief, with such remarkable cures.
