We sav to you that we intend to take the best men we can find to represent the State, and you must qualify yourselves to do so before you can expect to be chosen. Proper qualification is necessary in all cases, and the white man who is afraid to enter the race upon such terms does not deserve to be called a white man.

I not only want to impress on the white people to treat the colored people with kindness, but I would go ficing, if need be, his private judgfurther. I would give to them every facility for education. The greatest statesman and philosopher of England has said that education is the chief defence of a nation, and no philosophical remark was ever made with greater truth. I would see our people edu-And when I say this I do not wish to be misunderstood. I am not one of those who believe that because a man can read and write he is low. I know he is not necessarily a than those of almost any other nation in the world, and while they taunted us during the war with the opposite would rather have taken our men (whom they alleged could neither read nor write) when I wanted good shooting done than any men I ever I mean by education, then, not only intellectual education, but education of the heart and soul-to lift our people up and teach them that the only true knowledge is the knowledge of God! It is a mistake to suppose that, though wanting this, a man who can read and write is educaworld has ever seen could neither read nor write. Look to Athens, the eye of Greece, where Plato and Aristotle lectured, and Demosthenes charmed the people with his eloquence, day by day. There were no better people them; but those Athenians could not read nor write, and coming down to our day and generation, the old men of this State can look back and sustain me when I say that there were no people of this continent better instructed as to the true theory of our government, and in all that concerns governmental policy, than were the people of South Carolina in former years. and their knowledge came from the same source as that of the Athenians of whom I have just spoken; they were instructed by their great men who came frequently through the country and discussed before them the great questions of the day.

Now, my friends, I want not only general education-that the rudiments at least should be placed in the reach of every man, and the colored people allowed the opportunity of bettering made good citizens, and I believe it That is my general view as to the to South Carolina, and in war and in treatment of the colored man. They will defend your right to vote because it gives to the South infinitely more power than we ever had before. He who is not with us is against us and should be ranked among our opponents, for an open eucmy is far less dangerous than a pretended friend. Our party must be kept fully organized, perfectly compact, and thoroughly disciplined Every member of it must yield implicit obedience to its dictates, sacri-

Auditor and Treasurer.

E. C. LONGSHORE

It is the practice in most, if not all, of the counties for the democrats to nominate, either by the primaries or the conventions, suitable persons for County Auditor and Treasurer, to be appointed by the Governor.

These offices, we think, should be | done for Anderson? elective, but they are not; and so long as the law leaves the appointing power in the hands of the Governor he should be allowed to use his own discretion in exercising it.

Whatever information he may need to guide him in making these appointments he can ascertain in his own way. If he prefers that the people should recommend candid ates he can request them to do so through conventions or primary elections. If he prefers to get his information through other channels he has the right to do so. It is due to the Governor and to his position that he should not be dictated to in this matter. The Governor would do exactly right if he should treat as impertinent all unasked for recommendations, whether they come conventions, or from any other quarter. After the Governor's election in 1876 he called on the county conventions to make recommendations. This he may do again after his reelection-he certainly cannot do it now. It is better that this matter remain in statu quo till after the next election, and that then the Governor be left free and untrammelled to exercise this appointing power in

The State Fair. From the preparations being made and the interest already manifested, we look for a better State Fair than usual this year. The grounds and buildings are being put in fine condition, and special pportunities will be afforded for the exhibition of stock and machinery. The railroads will reduce the rates of fare so low that all who wish will be able to attend. The number of visitors will be very large. We hope Newberry County will be well represented both in visitors and exhibitors. Let all who have stock or articles of any kind of superior quality prepare to The Fair begins November 12th.

It seems to be the settled purpose of some newspapers and public men to keep Gov. Hampton out humiliation and prayer in behalf of of the United States Senate. They the Yellow Fever sufferers. They would make the impression that Hampton is scheming for the place, and in the same restored to our stricken land, but breath try to persuade the people and the legislators-to-be that he cannot possibly be spared from the left desolate and bereaved." State Capital; that the salvation of the State depends on his being Governor for his whole term, etc., etc. We do not know whether the Governor has any desire to go to the Senate; but whether he does or not he is our candidate for that position. As for his making his present position (to which he will be re-elected in November) a stepping stone, that is the very silliest bosh. Everybody who knows anything at all knows that Governor Hampton has not sought the position of Governor, either as a stepping-stone to a higher position or for any other purpose. He accepted the nomination in 1876 and in 1878 reluctantly, at great personal sacrifice, as a pure act of patriotism. He has been made the pack-horse for the South Carolina Democracy long enough; he has borne his burden, a heavy one, cheerfully and without a murmur. He has endan gered health, has sacrificed ease and comfort of mind and body; he has placed the State beyond the reach of danger. He has done all for the State. It is time now the State should do something for him. We of the late Rev. J. L. Reduce Freights.

R. R's. let up a little on their freight charges to Newberry. Our merchants and cotton buyers are constantly grumbling, and with good cause, at the excessive rates charged them. Newberry has done more for the G. & C. R. R., and the S. C. R. R., than any other place, far more; and yet these roads seem to be trying to crush her very life out with their exorbitant charges. Have corporations no gratitude? Can't these roads show some consideration to Newberry, since they depend so much on her for patronage? Can't the same thing be done for us that has been

From the Anderson Intelligencer, we find the following:

The Greenville and Columbia and the South Carolina Railroads have reduced their freight tariffs to Anderson in all cases as low as they are to Greenville, and on some classes of goods it is a little lower. This is applicable to freights from either Charleston, Columbia or New York, and therefore removes all cause of complaint so far as the own of Anderson is concerned, and places our merchants in a position to sell goods as cheap as the merchants of Greenville or any neighboring town can do, or to pay as much for cotton or other produce as other towns do, and hence our people should bring their cotton, &c., to Anderson, and buy their supplies, goods, &c., at this place.

Now we don't find fault with this; indeed, we congratulate Anfrom private individuals or county | derson on her good fortune. But why should Anderson receive favors that are denied to Newberry? Why should Newberry not be treated as kindly as Anderson has been?

The Republican Policy.

We see more than ever the necessity of Democratic unity. There is no use to disguise facts; or to speculate longer about what the Republicans may or may not do. It has become evident to all who had any doubts before that they intend to nominate a ticket, and such a ticket as will require the united efforts of the Democratic party of this County to defeat it. Their adjournment the 25th ultimo without action was not caused by reason of motto. We stand united as though any doubt as to their policy. That we were bound together with steel is fully settled, and the sole reason of the adjournment was the informality of the call under which they | so good that we will just swallow it met. And in selecting their Democrats they will take popular October, at 10 o'clock, A. M. men: for thus they hope to draw away support from the regular Democratic ticket.

Our Washington Letter. WASHINGTON, D. C., September 25, 1878. MAINE'S MODEST MEMBER.

A few evenings since, just as darkness was falling around the marble walls of the Capitol, one of the policemen on duty there was addressed by a little man, closely muffled and his face hidden, whom he describes as a the providence of God, have been subdued and wearied person, with a request to be allowed to enter the chamber of the House of Representatives. He wished, he said with deep feeling, to gaze upon the seat not very long ago occupied by the greatest of Americans. The kind-hearted officer granted the stranger's request, and staved at the door of the great hall that he might not appear to look too curiously on the patriot's emotion. After an unavailing effort to check what he seemed to think might appear to sant smoker, using a clay pipe and his conductor an unseemly degree of feeling, the little man went down the long aisle to the seat in which the member from the Fifth Maine district formerly sat, when, at rare intervals, he sat at all, and there gave vent to his overflowing soul. The room was dark, and the policeman, supposing this was some South Carolinian who worshipped the memory of Calhoun, or some remnant of the latter days of Massachusetts, who had not forgotten Webster, and that he had simply mistaken the seats, himself dropped a tear for the great dead of the two sections and silently and respectfully waited burg have sent $30 to the Yellow until the visitor's grief was partly overcome, and then received him with fitting solemnity at the door and accompanied him from the building.
