"The Roll of Honor."

"The True Southron. Anderson Intelligencer, Anderson Journal, Barnwell People, Carolina Spartan, Lancaster Ledger, Ninety-Six Guardian, Pickens Sentinel, Keowee Cou rier, Newberry News, Straight-Out Democrat, and the Medium are the papers of the State which stood firmly on the side of honor and honesty in the great Bond Ques tion, and resisted this monstrous iniquity. They were the stern and unbought defenders of the right, and upheld the honor of South Carolina."-Abbeville Medium.

"Dn tell?" "And the Medium" And the Medium stood firmly on the side of honor and honesty in the great Bond Question; and was a stern and unbought-yes unbought-would you believe it-unbought defender of the right, and upheld the honor of South Carolina! O, most wonderful Medium to do all this! And to do it unbought! And, after all, to be compelled to sound its own praise, to be the hero of its own story. Too bad! Shame on an ungrateful public! Shame on the Courts, not to have recognized and acknowledged the great services rendered them in the "Bond Question" by the Medium! Shame on the other newspapers of the State that they kept silent and withheld from the public the wonderful works of this powerful journal! As little as they could have done was to give credit to their cotemporary for standing firmly on the side of honor and honesty-and of being unbought; but they didn't do it.

As to the other papers mentioned by the Medium, they are not responsible for what their erratic cotemporary chooses to say. How they regard the "compliment" may be inferred from the fact that they do not even take the trouble to copy What is the inference to be drawn from this ridiculous and arrogant assumption on the part of the Medium? That those papers not included in its "Roll of Honor" -the Charleston News and Courier. the Columbia Register, Abbeville den's prospects are good, and he Press and Banner, Barnwell Sentinel, Yorkville Enquirer, Edgefield Advertiser, Chester Reporter, Marion Merchant and Farmer, Marion Star, Orangeburg Times, Orangeburg Democrat, Sumter Watchman, and the twenty-five or thirty other papers of the State, were on the side of dishonor and dishonesty in the great Bond Question, and that they were bought. All these papers have had their opinion of the bond question, which was that only the valid debt of the State should be paid. The Medium first set out of the public mind to-day; what with the doctrine of wholesale repudiation; there was something few months it is impossible to tell. definite in this position, but it abandoned it and took up the cry of "fraudulent debt", "bloated bondholders", "the people", and has since rung this cry with the glibness and persistency of a first-class demagogue. The fact that the whole matter of the bond question had been referred to the Courts. (which was done by the Legislature | & A. R. R.; we did say, however, March 22, 1878, it having been previously referred to the Bond Commission June 8, 1877,) was ignored | badly treated, and we say it again; | C., graduated at Roanoke in 1871, by the Medium, and it continued to | we go further, and say they were | and is in his thirty third year.

We have regarded it not only perfectly useless to agitate the bond question since its reference to the Courts, but as highly improper also. If the Medium had been satisfied with a discussion of the subject, however improper or inopportune that discussion may have been, we would have said nothing. But when it attempts to build itself up on a false foundation, at the expense of others; when it casts upon its cotemporaries such serious and unwarranted insinuations as are con- the 29th ultimo.

Is Bayard the Man? Or is it Tilden?

Senator Bayard, of Delaware, ooming up as the Democratic canknown as a wise statesman, without stain and without reproach. The only objection that has ever been urged against his nomination is, that he comes from the small State of Delaware, which has only three electoral votes-a State already entirely Democratic. The first object of a political party is to win, the fitness of the candidate be ing always a secondary consideration. Tilden-Hendricks-Hancock-Bayard-these are the four most prominently mentioned. Til-account of his conduct in the last election; though there is no reason why he should be, for if there was any "back down" on that occasion it was the Democrats in Congress and not Tilden that should be blamed. It has always appeared to us that the "old man" was given away. The Southern opposition to him, however, is diminishing; Georgia is for him above all others, and the other Southern States, if policy require it, will support him. He is claimed by his friends to be the only candidate who can carry the State of New York-a very important consideration; for with that State and the "solid South" victory is sure. The election in New York to-day will have great influence on the nomination; if Robinson, Tilden's candidate for Governor, be elected, then the "old man's" chances for the presidential nomination are good. His financial views are in accord with those of the party at large, and the same may be said of Bayard. Another matter to consider is that Tilden is a powerful idly down, trusting to his "merits" alone for success. He can command money and will use it liberally- There is no use trying to disguise the fact-money is used by both sides freely, the only limit being the amount each side can raise. The Republicans, being the "ins", can control a large amount of money, and the Democrats need money to counteract the influence of theirs. Those who turn up their eyes in holy horror at the mention of money in elections belong to a past age. The fact that money must be used does not prove corruption-there are many necessary and proper expenses-distinguished speakers from a distance, grand processions, illuminations, Hancock is not a statesman, but a soldier; and the only reason he was ever mentioned was on account of his military character, as an offset to Gen. Grant.

So it lies between Tilden and Bayard; at least that is the position changes may take place in the next Lutheran Synod.

The Evangelical Lutheran Synod which convened at Prosperity a few days since was largely attended, done through Committees.

We glean the following: This umbia Register: Synod is in a better condition financially, and is, this year, doing more for beneficiary education and missions than at any period since the war. After paying all indebtedness a balance of $825 in cash remained the hands of the Treasurer. There will be an increase of $1,200 during the coming Synodical year.

The matter of pastorating the den is unpopular with the South on churches more closely, received considerable attention. It is proposed at next meeting of Synod to make certain changes in some pastorates which it is believed will result in good to the church.

> The Executive Committee, whose duty it is to look after the interest of mission points, and to disburse certain moneys, did considerable work during the past year. The Synod is not as aggressive as it ought to be, yet it is doing something in the way of advance.

> A resolution was passed approoristing money to insure the college building. This was a step in the right direction. Twelve months longer were given the building committee of the college for the collection of dues on subscriptions and the liquidation of the present indebtedness pending over the building. At the expiration of this time the Synod will expect the building. free from encumbrance, to be turned over to them. This ought to satisfy our delinquent subscribers, and stimulate them to speedy tion. Hon. G. Leaphart, of Columbia, was elected Treasurer of the Endowment Fund of the College. The following gentlemen, clerical and lay, were elected to represent meeting of the Southern General Synod, in Richmond, Va., May, 1880: Revs. W. S. Bowman, D.D., J. Hawkins, E. T. Horn, J. D. The preaching was good and listened to by large congregations. The communion on Sunday was unusually large and solemn.

A vote of thanks was tendered the citizens of Prosperity for their hospitable entertainment of the members of Synod.

Roanoke College.

The Bittle Memorial Library Building of Roanoke College, Salem, Va., was formally opened the 17th ultimo. It is a handsome Gothic edifice, sixty by thirty feet, was erected by voluntary contributions of friends of the College, and named in honor of Rev. D. F. Bittle, D.D., the first President.

On the same day Prof. Julius D. Dreher was inaugurated as President of the College. Prof. Dreher is a native of Lexington County, S.

Blue Law. We see it stated in some of the newspapers, that Judge Hudson charged the Grand Jury at Manning recently, that any gaming, even for pastime and without betting was indictable, and that it was the duty of the Grand Jury to report any such case. His remarks had special reference to card play-

This is either "judge-made law", or Judge Hudson has been misrepresented. There is no such law in our statute books.

The New York State election comes off to-day (Tuesday). The candidates for Governor are Lucius Robinson, regular Democrat, Jno. Kelly, bolting (Tammany) Democrat, and A. B. Cornell, Republican. The Law of Adultery.

At the Sessions Court of Richland County, at Columbia, last and from the amount of business licitor Abney stated that he had an transacted, must have been a most indictment for adultery, but under the Southerners had, and while it would interesting session of that body. his Honor's ruling at Edgefield he be wrong perhaps to say they are glad There is business talent, we know, would not hand it to the Grand he is gone, yet we can safely say they didate for the presidency. He is in the Synod, but the great means Jury. The Judge then stated his will submit uncomplainingly to the of facilitating matters arises from idea of the adultery law in the dispensation of Providence in this inthe fact that almost everything is in the following language, for stance. which we are indebted to the Col-

Where the statute designates any act as penal and fails to define the offense, if a common law term is used, we are the North made "was in not hanging remitted to the common law for its meaning. Hence, although we have no statutory definition of the crime of burglary, for example, yet, it being a common law offense, we are at no loss to define it, or to give effect to the egislative intent, by enforcing the penalty prescribed for this crime. It is otherwise, however, with the offence disignated as adultery in the statute. There is no statutory definition of the offense, and our Court of Appeals has decided that adultery is not an offense at common law. This decision is binding upon all the Circuit Courts of this State until reversed by the court of

There are sixteen or eighteen American States that have enacted statutes to punish adultery, but every such statute defines the offense, and the definitions therein given vary widely as to the constituents of the offense. Until the adoption of the Revised Statutes of Massachusetts, in 1840, no man, unless lawfully married, was indicted in that State for adultery, even though he had sexual intercourse with a married woman not his own wife. So, by the statutes of several States at this day, an unmarried man cannot be indicted for adultery. even though the woman be married.

Adultery has never been an indictable offense in England, the country from which we derive our admirable system of jurisprudence. Nor was it an offence known to the laws of this December 20th, 1878, which, as I have said, leaves it undefined.

In the decision of the Court of Appeals to which I have referred State vs. Brunsod & Miller, 2 Bailey, 149;) Justice Johnson, delivering the unanimous judgment of that learned and venerable court, used the following language: "It may well be questioned whether the common law The Synod expressed itself, by has not consulted the best interests of society by leaving the punishment of adultery to the reprobation of public opinion. Cases of very gross and flagrant character do sometimes occur which would seem to require correction, but in providing for them we Leesville was chosen as the place must establish an inquisition, clothed with the authority of the law to expose and give interpretation to every word and action which occur in the intercourse of society. The delicacy and frangibility of the female characthis Synod at the approaching ter is scarcely realized in poetic fancy. The breath of slander withers it in an instant. Touch it, and it is annihilated. With such an engine in the hands of the abandoned and the reckless, where would be its security? At once the accuser and the witness of a charge, difficult of contradiction, a maligant enemy has but to mark his victim, and the law sets its seal upon her." I will only add, gentlemen of the grand jury, that all the lamentable consequences predicted by our Court of Appeals have been realized since the enactment of our statute to punish adultery. The precincts of the court, and even the grand jury rooms have been crowded with hordes of informers eager to put the statute in motion against their neighbors. Whatever may be the consequences, however, I am ready to execute the law with diligence whenever a statutory definition is furnished by the legislative de-

FOR THE HERALD. Our Washington Letter.

> WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29, 1879.

A curious statement is made as to the late election in Ohio. It is that the managers of the Union and Cenral Pacific Rail Roads contributed funds for use in defeating Democratic candidates for the Legislature. The intention, of course, was to prevent the re-election of Mr. Thurman to the Senate. In the whole history of the country there has been no greater triumph than that of Senator Thurman over those two corrupt corporations. They were not only growing rich upon watered and fraudulent stock, and levying an unendurable tax on trade, but they proposed to swindle the U. S. out of interest and money advanced. This, the act known as the Thurman act, prepared by that lawyer and statesmen, prevented. After a bitter fight the Supreme Court has sustained that act, and the railroads are compelled to provide for their Government indebtedness. It is certain that the managers of the roads have a hearty hate for the Senator, and not at all unlikely that they contributed funds for his defeat. The people will do well to look out for efforts of these roads to secure legislation

Washington's first great Fair opened successfully yesterday. The whole city was at the grounds, in the street procession or in some other way giving testimony to its interest in the affair. Mr. Hayes and several members of his Cabinet, took part in the opening ceremonies. In years to come we shall have at these new grounds annual exhibitions which will in a great measure represent the industry and productions of every section of our common country. The present exhibition, excellent as it is, is only a faint indication of what the managers will do in the future.

Mr. Hayes, who occupies a position e which Mr. Tilden was elected by a majority of three-quarters of a million of white votes, has sent an invitation to General Grant to occupy the White House with him during the General's stay in Washington. Gen. Grant was the man who said that no one could afford to be "counted into" the office of President. Out of respect he will probably refuse the invitation-that is, if he can refuse anything.
