The failure of the Republican party to openly nominate a State ticket has do not tear down an already debilitated lulled our people into a sense of security, and has inspired the belief that there is no real contest, no need of work, and that success will come as it dinary beer. There is a contest before us not only for the Electoral, but for the State ticket. We feel authorized, from the information we have, to say to you that the Republican party will present an unbroken front on election day in support of the Greenback ticket, and coalescing with that small faction of the people, will strike under their banners to win a Republican victory. The instructions have been already given, the orders issued, the combination of forces arranged, and the bargain struck, which unites the Greenback party with the Republican for defeat throughout the State of the Democratic Electoral, State and local

The remembrance of that dark period from 1868 to 1876 is too vivid for you to tolerate the thought of again passing under Republican rule. We have realized the blessings of Democratic government. The reforms which have come are not imaginary nor are they mere party cries for political effect. They are real and substantial, visible to the whole world, felt and recognized in business circles everywhere, and admitted by even the most bitter and hostile journals. Peace throughout the State; the absence of all race collisions, the equal and just administration of the laws; security to life and property; the reduction of taxation and expenses, and a marked and general increase in material prosperity, are the fruits of Democratic rule, and the results of the overthrow of Republican domina-

To us the success of the Republican and the overthrow of the Democratic government means far more than an ordinary change of political rulers. It means the destruction of every material interest, the paralysis of all industries. It means the return to power of ignorance and corruption, a new era of extravagance and wasteful and shameless expenditure, an increase of State debt and taxation. It means a venal Legislature, a corrupt Judiciary and an Executive powerless to enforce the laws. It means a daily recurring strife of races and a constant sense of insecurity and danger. Under that voke we cannot and will not again

The bitter lessons of the past will be lost unless they teach us that it is only in the unity and energy of the Democratic party that the hope of safety lies. By these means we won in the great struggle of 1876. By these, and these alone, can we win now. The intense enthusiasm of that campaign called out every voter. The full strength of the Democratic party is needed now. On that, and that alone, can we rely. No party machinery nor political management, no secret counsels nor subtle contrivances, can avail. To rely on these is to trust to a broken reed. The race is to the swift and the battle to the strong; and victory on the 2d November will range itself on the side of the heaviest battallions. It is for you and us to see to it that the heaviest battalions march under the Democratic flag. The one paramount duty of those who hope to preserve the civilization they have inherited, and the prosperity they enjoy, is to be active and earnest; for every man to work as if success or defeat rested on his individual effort, and not to rest from his labors until the last man has been brought out and the last ballot polled.

Upon those who have been clothed with power as executive officers in the counties, or chosen by the people as their standard bearers in the contest, will rest a heavy responsibility. To them their fellow-citizens look for guidance and example. With them is the real and active management of the campaign. The State committee can only exercise a general supervision and direction. The struggle in each county must be under the leadership of the local Executive Committee, and success in the counties means victory in the State.

The lines are drawn and the issue joined. Those who are not for us are against us. There is now neither room nor place for Independents or third party of any kind. No matter under what flag they serve or what battle-cry they utter their vote is against us if it is not with us. Consciously or unconsciously, they are working for our defeat. There may be among good men, candidates and friends of candidates, a keen sense of personal wrong and political injustice. Just claims may have been ignored, and faithful services forgotten. These are incidents inseparable from political life and contests; but the remedy is not in lukewarmness: not in resistance to the popular will; not, above all, with al-The State may be safely trusted soon tiod of miserableness, that no one er or later to do justice to all her sons, knows what ails them, (profitable pabut it is equally sure and certain that | tients for doctors.) is obtained by the the justice and weighty judgment of use of Hop Bitters.
