Life Insurance Run Mad.

Just after the war life insurance companies did a big business. But many of the insured, after paying premiums for several years, grew tired of it and let their policies lapse. And in many other cases the companies failed. For some years past life insurance companies on the old plan have not done much, in this section of the world at least. They have been in a great measure superceded by what is known as the mutual insurance plan, which claims the advantage of being less expensive and perfectly safe. In this plan there are no large salaries to be paid to Presidents, Secretaries, Agents and others. Instead of being insured by companies, the members of the new mutual insurance organizations insure each other. Instead of paying annual premiums, the members, upon the death of one of their number, pay in only sufficient to make up the amount of the insurance on the deceased. There is no investment of capital; so while there is no chance to make anything on the money by way of interest, or by speculation, there is the advantage that there is no danger of its being lost by bad investments, by unwise speculations, or by defalcations. The plan is extremely simple, and may be thus illustrated: A number of men, say one hundred, agree that when one of their number shall die the others shall pay to his widow, or children, or to whomsoever else he may designate, a certain sum, say $2,000. There are in addition some other slight payments in the way of "dues", which go to provide for the current expenses.

These mutual life insurance societies have become quite popular, and have spread very rapidly within the past four or five years. They are are all based on the same principle.

Now, without any reflection on any of these societies, or their members, we propose a few general thoughts on the subject. We think it will not be denied that the chief, underlying principle of all life insurance is, the expectation of getting something for nothing. It is simply a speculation—and a speculation on the most uncertain of all things; human life. There seems to be in the human mind generally a love for speculation. We see it exemplified in lotteries, in raffles, and in every species of games of chance. It is the foundation of gambling—whatever that is: we do not undertake to say; sometimes it is one thing, sometimes another—so styled, at least. For instance:

A party gives an obligation to receive, or to deliver, a hundred bales of cotton at some fixed future time at a fixed price, not knowing, and it being impossible for him to know, or to conjecture with any reasonable certainty, whether the price of cotton will be higher or lower at the fixed time than the price agreed upon. Further, the delivery of the cotton is a mere myth: one party simply "forks over" to the other the money that represents the difference in value between the agreed price and the actual price at the date fixed for delivery. Each party takes the chances of making or losing this difference. This is called "buying and selling futures".

Twenty persons pay five dollars each for the chance of throwing the highest die and thereby getting a hundred dollar watch. Each takes the chance of losing five dollars or of making ninety-five. This is called "raffling."

Take the example already stated in regard to mutual insurance: Each member takes the chance of getting, or of his family's getting, $2,000 for less, or for more, than he has paid for it. He may die within a year; in that case his family gets $2,000 for which only $20 has been paid—they get $1,980 for nothing. This is a "fortunate" speculation. On the other hand, he may not die for twenty-five years; in that case his family gets $2 000 for which $5,000 has been paid. This is an "unfortunate" speculation. This is called "mutual life insurance".

The idea running through all these transactions is, as before said, to get something for nothing, or to get more than one has paid for. Is it not so? You say that is not the idea? Suppose, then, that there were no possible chance of one's getting more at his death than he had paid in during his life—how many, do you suppose, would go into it? It cannot be called an investment, for there is no capital in use; the money is paid in and then immediately paid out. There are a hundred ways to invest money securely and profitably, if one is only seeking a fair return upon his capital.

You say that one advantage of mutual insurance is, that many pay in money for several years and then draw out, leaving others to reap the benefit of this money. In other words, some pay money, ranging in amounts from a few dollars to thousands, for which neither they nor their families ever receive even the smallest return; and others get these amounts for nothing.

You say that the members do not themselves reap the advantage of the insurance. Would it alter the character of a game of "poker" if each player should agree to turn over all his winnings to his wife and children for their exclusive use and benefit? And there is another side to this: the member who "draws out" after having paid in for a number of years, and the losing man in a game of "poker", have very likely lost money that they ought to have spent for their families, or paid debts with. And it will be found generally that those who have "drawn out" of the mutual insurance societies were men who were too poor to "pay in" anything further. So that some profit by others' misfortunes.

You say that all who join do so with the knowledge and agreement that some will gain and others will lose by the operation. There is a similar knowledge and agreement when a party sits down to a game of "poker". It is simply an agreement all round to take the chances.

Suppose one knew that the same amount he paid "into" the society his family, at his death, would get "out of" it; would he join any of the thousand and one mutual insurance societies with which the country is flooded? If not, then our proposition is true, viz., that the chief inducement is the hope of getting something for nothing. Is this right?

We believe in the Divine maxim: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," and that if a man does the best he can a Good Providence will not only take care of him, but also of his family after him.

"I have been young, but now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

State News.

The Clyde Syndicate has gobbled up the Greenwood & Augusta R. R., and will complete it soon.

Mr. J. T. McCants has been appointed Assistant Master of Transportation for the C. & G. R. R.

The Governor has appointed Col. James L. Orr, of Greenville, Solicitor of the Eighth Circuit, to fill the unexpired term of Col. Cothran.

Hon. Sam'l Dibble, of Orangeburg, has been nominated by the Democratic Convention of the Second Congressional District for Congress, in place of Hon. M. P. O'Connor, deceased.

Ben James, colored, was hanged at Marion Friday, 3d instant, for the murder of Mr. D. M. Harrell the 9th of August, 1880. His hanging presented one circumstance very unusual in such cases. Instead of saying that he was "going straight to glory", he said that he was not prepared to die. Probably the triumphant gallows scenes will soon cease since hanging has ceased to be a popular spectacle. James denied his guilt to the last.

The New York Legislature continues to ballot for U. S. Senators. About twenty-eight Republicans stick to Conkling and Platt; the other Republicans vote for Depew and Corneil principally, though there is a good deal of scattering. The Democrats support Kernan and Jacobs. There seems to be very little probability of Conkling's and Platt's re election.

Prof. Charles F. Smith, of Wofford College, who has recently finished his course at Leipsic University, has been elected a Professor in Williams College, Massachusetts, and has accepted the position. Prof. Smith is a son of Rev. James F. Smith, formerly of Laurens County.

Pierre Lorillord's horse Iriquois, three years old, won the Derby race the 1st instant. Mr. Lorillord is said to have won $2,000,000 on one bet. Iriquois is the first American horse to win the Derby.

A new telegraph company has been formed in New York with a capital of $10,000,000. Its name is the International Telegraph Company.

The investigation into the Star Route swindles is being pushed vigorously.

FOR THE HERALD.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1, 1881.

If the contest at Albany were an ordinary one, some Republicans preferring a certain person for Senator and others preferring another, I would not mention it in these letters It would not be of importance, It would excite little interest here or elsewhere. But this is exactly what the contest is not. On the one side is Conkling, and on the other side not a man or men, but the administration. Every personal friend who deserts Conkling's cause does so because "the administration" is believed to be against Conkling. There are two reasons why the administration, though it may prevent the immediate return of Conkling, can neither suppress him nor gain permanent strength in the State. First—he is incomparably the ablest man in his party in New York, has been its unquestioned leader for many years, and controls more votes than make up the "balance of power" between the parties in the State. Second, the opposition to him is led by a mass of selfish and jealous men of only small ability—scheming, sly, sham "reformers", who can neither agree with each other nor with themselves for any length of time. United by a common enmity and by patronage now, they will begin to quarrel amongst themselves as soon as the pressure is removed and the spoils come to be divided. After the next election, unless my opinion is entirely wrong, a new Republican party will need to be constructed in New York, out of what will be little more than a mob, and the man who will have the strongest following will be Conkling.

In previous letters I have mentioned an investigation into the Treasury Department, by which peculation was believed to have been shown on the part of the late Chief Clerk, now Assistant Secretary; the Superintendent of the Building and others. For some reason the report of the Committee of Investigation is delayed, and, it is now said, will not be made until after Secretary Windom's return from the West, if then. If there is any one thing which will strengthen the administration it is the prompt exposure of all frauds and irregularities, and the punishment of the guilty. To delay, as is now being done, or to drop investigations, as it is hinted will be done, will be alike disastrous to the service and to the Secretaries who permit such a course.

It is stated "by authority" that the President will spend the 3d, 4th and 5th of July in Massachusetts. He will attend Commencement at Williams College.

Except a very small force to attend to correspondence, all the employees of the Census Office will be dismissed shortly. The extra appropriation made by Congress is nearly exhausted. This Census has been considerably more expensive than any previous one, but embraces much information never before gathered, and it is believed that the enumeration of inhabitants is more accurate than ever was before made in any country. DEM.

The Factory.

It is an interesting and pleasing sight to see the factory in operation The machinery works so smoothly, each piece performing its particular work so well and beautifully. The number of spindles have been increased during the past three or four days, 3,120 now being in operation. Each day two bales of cotton are manufactured into thread, making 1,000 pounds of thread. The total number of spindles the factory will run when everything is completed will be 6,240 The number of bales of cotton consumed then per day will be five, or about 1,500 during the year. The number of employees in the factory is about 40 in all—men, women and children. They are for the most part from North Carolina, having previously worked in cotton factories in that State. Mr J. R. Nesler, formerly of Charlotte, is the superintendent. The factory is provided with a water apparatus in the event of fire, by which the building can be flooded in a very few minutes.

The first annual meeting of the stockholders will be held next Tuesday. In less than one year from the time building was commenced the factory is in operation. This bears testimony in stronger language than words can do to the enterprise and activity of the President and Directors of this grand enterprise.

Newberry Conference S. C. Synod.

Lutheran Visitor.

This conference met at Mt. Pilgrim church on Friday, May 28, 1881, at a. m. There was a full attendance of clerical and lay members present. Rev. J. D. Shirey preached the opening sermon, after which there was a recess until 1 30 p. m., when conference re assembled in the church to continue the transaction of business. During this session Rev. J. D. Shirey, chairman of the committee on the temperance movement, made his report, when the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That it is with pleasure, that we have listened to the encouraging report of the committee appointed by this conference on the abolishment of the whiskey traffic.

Resolved, That as a conference we still stand pledged to use our efforts and give our support and influence in every lawful and expedient way to further the good work already in progress.

Resolved, That three laymen in each congregation in our connection be appointed by the pastor in charge, and said committee submit a report at the next meeting of conference as to the feeling among our people in regard to this important matter

The committee appointed to report on the question referred to the conference by the Synod, viz: 'How can we strengthen our Church government?' submitted their report in theses, which were deferred until Saturday for discussion.

Rev. S. S. Rahn, who visited Greenville some months ago, to look after the members of our Church living there, was called on to make a statement as to the prospect of beginning missionary work in that rapidly growing city. He was requested to visit that point again at an early day, and if the outlook be sufficiently encouraging, arrange to spend a month during the summer among those scattered members of our flock. He was also requested to visit Spartanburg in the event he spent a few weeks in Greenville, since Lutherans are living in that flourishing city.

A subject kindred to this was also discussed viz: the importance of looking after mission points within the bounds of this conference. We have many scattered members of our Church who are too far removed to attend regularly the services and worship of a Lutheran church. We should do more to carry the gospel to these individuals.

Macedonia church, of Rev. J. A. Sligh's charge, was selected as the place for the next convention, and Friday before the fifth Sunday in July as the time.

On Saturday the question, 'How can we strengthen our Church government?' was discussed at length. Conference then adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That as the result of the discussion of the question, 'How can we strengthen our Church government and discipline of our Church, which perhaps might be remedied, but how to bring about the desired change we are not yet able to suggest.

Resolved, That these defects are more apparent than real and the inefficiency lies more in the neglect of a proper execution of the detailed requirements of our constitution than in our organic law.

Rev J. D. Shirey voted 'nay' on the adoption of these resolutions as a whole.

Conferenee decided to hold the next Sunday-school convention at Bethlehem church on the second Wednesday in September, and the day following. The committee was requested to arrange the programme and publish it one month previous in the Lutheran Visitor.

Saturday 11 a. m., Rev. S. P. Hughes preached a sermon.

The question to be discussed at the next meeting is: What is the difference between 'true catholic Lutheranism' and 'Lutheran orthodoxy?'

Rev. J. Hawkins was appointed to present the subject in the form of a thesis.

LORD'S DAY.

At 11 a. m., Rev. H. S. Wingard preached a sermon on 'Beneficence' to a large and attentive audience, after which the Holy Sacrament was administered to a large number of communicants.

At 2 p. m., the Sunday-school service was held, when an address was made by Rev. S. P. Hughes.

Conference then closed one of the most interesting, and, it is hoped, profitable meetings.

S. S. RAHN, Secretary.

The admirer of two girls at Waupaca, Oregon, could not choose between them, and neither was willing to relinquish her claims in favor of the other. They therefore agreed to decide the question by the toss of a coin, and the tossing was done, carefully and fairly, in the presence of an invited company. The loser accepted her luck uncomplainingly, and is to be first bridesmaid at the wedding. A somewhat similar case had a different termination at Bowerton, Mich. The girls in this instance were sisters, and they were willing to divide the lover between them. In order to carry out that idea they have started for Utah, where they will practice polygamy; but the harmonious sisters have exacted a solemn vow from the man never to have more than two wives.

Woman's Wisdom.

"She insists that it is of more importance, that her family shall be kept in full health, than that she should have all the fashionable dresses and styles of the times. She therefore sees to it, that each member of her family is supplied with enough Hop Bitters, at the first appearance of any ill health, to prevent a fit of sickness with its attendant expense, care and anxiety. All women should exercise their wisdom in this way."

Why Some People Fail to Succeed.

They are lazy.
They neglect details.
They fail to advertise.
They fail to push business.
They talk politics too much.
They imitate their neighbors.
They have no eye to business.
They overloook the small things.
They let their fires burn at will.
They are slovenly in their shops.
They have too much outside business.
They fail to invent or have new ideas.
They know not the power of method.
They become rusty and lose ambition.
They are penny wise and pound foolish.
They know not the best is the cheapest.
They let their shops get filthy and dirty.
They let their help waste and destroy
They are not polite or accommodating.
They are illiberal to home enterprises.
They think most things take too much trouble.
They hope for fortune to drop in their laps.
They try how cheap they can do everything.
They attend to everything but their own business.

AN ORDINANCE

To Preserve the Health of the Town of Newberry and for other purposes herein mentioned.

SEC. 1. Be it ordained by the Town Council of the Town of Newberry, S. C., and by authority of the same: That all cows, neat cattle, goats, sheep or other animals are prohibited from running at large or grazing on the streets of the Town of Newberry, except when each animal is properly haltered and under the immediate control of a responsible person.

SEC. 2. And be it further ordained: That the throwing or placing on the sidewalks or streets of the Town of Newberry, S. C., of any dead animal, fowl, carrion or any other offensive matter, garbage or filth, is hereby prohibited within the incorporate limits of said Town of Newberry, S. C.

SEC. 3. And be it further ordained: That the owners, lessees, or holders of real estate within the corporate limits of said Town of Newberry, S. C., are hereby directed to have the yards of said premises thoroughly cleaned each and every week from the first day of May until the first day of November of each and every year now and hereafter. And it is ordained further: That all water-closets, sinks, pig pens, stables, stalls, or any other place or places where filth, garbage or other offensive matter may accumulate or be placed, must be cleaned up at least once a week if necessary, and be kept scrupulously clean, from the 1st day of May of each year until the first day of November of this and each succeeding year.

SEC. 4. Be it further ordained by the authority aforesaid: That any violation of any of the provisions of sections 1, 2 and 3 of this ordinance will subject the offender or violator, upon conviction before the Town Council, of a fine of not more than ten dollars or imprisonment of not more than thirty days, or both, within the discretion of the Council, for each and every offence.

SEC. 5. And be it further ordained: That the provisions of this ordinance shall go into effect on and after the publication of this ordinance.

Done and ratified in Council assembled on this the 19th day of May, A. D. 1881.
