Probably no traveling Pantomime or Specialty Company on earth ever commanded such vast Audiences, or achieved so wide and popular a reputation, as the Troupe of Col. Robinson. Col. R. and his artists are known to-day throughout the whole length and breadth of the United States. This is the only troupe supporting Four Clowns, two Pantalones, two Columbines and two Harlequins.—N. Y. Herald.

After an extended debate, participated in by three members on each side, the question was decided by the house in the affirmative and at the same time a resolution was adopted, to the effect that the merits of the question be discussed at the next meeting. It is desirable that there should be a plural executive?

DR. MAYO'S LECTURE.

Universal Education—Does it Pay? And How?—The Kind of Teachers Needed—What Education is.

Rev. A. D. Mayo, D.D., of Boston, has delivered lectures in several sections of the State on the subject of education. Monday, in company with Superintendent of Education Thompson, he visited Newberry, and delivered a lecture two hours long in the Union Hall to a large and appreciative audience. The Doctor makes no oratorical display, and he advances no novel ideas on the subject of education; but there is a charm about his manner, and he says things in such a pleasant and entertaining way that two hours seem short to an audience.

As evidencing the interest taken in universal education, he mentioned the fact that New York City spends $7,000,000 on her schools; that Richmond, which only a few years ago spent nothing for this purpose, now spends $80,000 annually; that Charleston gives proportionately more to educate universal education than the majority of cities in the country.

The lecturer undertook to show that universal education pays; and, then, how it pays. He insisted that the State should assure to every child the opportunity of an elementary education by establishing elementary schools, and to superior intelligence a superior education by means of higher schools. He recommends primary schools for small children, and above that a graded school in every town, where instruction is given in the higher branches such as fit one for college. Upon the matter of selecting teachers he laid much stress, and his advice should be impressed upon every school board in the country. No teacher should be employed because he or she is somebody's sister or cousin or brother or aunt or daughter; but solely upon the ground of fitness for the successful training of the mind and character of children. Persons who are unfit for anything else are too often employed as teachers. It should be remembered that schools are not for the benefit of teachers, but for the benefit of the children. A school where the teacher is thoroughly fitted for his place will train the intelligence, the moral and religious character and the manners of the children.

Universal education pays by making a trifle unshod and ignorant. If children grow up in ignorance they become the prey of the demagogue, and the safety of the State is imperiled. It pays by building up intelligence and character in the citizen, which is necessary to success in life, and is the corner-stone of the republic. The State is like a family; if a family is surrounded by ignorant and vicious neighbors there is constant danger that the members will be brought down to the same level. And so of a community, or a State. The only safety to the State is to begin at the bottom and work upwards. He illustrated this idea by a house whose cellar is sunk in the damp earth and impregnated with malaria, while the rooms above are nicely carpeted and furnished. The malaria does not confine itself to the cellar, but works its way through the walls into the elegant apartments, carrying disease and death throughout the whole building. The remedy is to put screws under the foundation and to raise up the whole house, cellar and all, into sunshine and a healthy atmosphere.

Dr. Mayo paid a high tribute to the South, and closed with the patriotic hope that through universal education a grand future would soon open up for the whole country. The lecture Monday night will no doubt give new impetus to education in this community.

At the close of the lecture the audience, on motion of Professor Holland, returned thanks by a rising vote to Dr. Mayo. Tuesday morning Dr. Mayo delivered an instructive address to the students of Newberry College in the College Chapel, on the subject of education. Education, he claimed, consists of three things; 1, to know something, 2, to do something, and, 3, to be somebody. As to the first, to know is not simply to remember what one has heard and read. There is too much of mere book learning in all the professions. That training is needed which looks through books and words to the thing itself, and studies that. One should know how to use a book, so that he can readily separate the chaff from the wheat. For the want of this knowledge of things the mass of mankind is living in a world of mental shadows. As to the second; one may know a great deal and yet be able to do nothing. The schools should teach self-reliance and self-help. The question the world asks is, young graduate is not whether he is cultured, or how much he knows about his books, but what can you do? Can you do skilled work? The men who succeed everywhere are the skilled men. He dwelt at length on the third head, and urged the importance of training the young in such a way as to develop the peculiar faculties with which nature had endowed them.

NEWBERRY OPERA HOUSE, Aug. 23d, 1881. In the face of immense opposition and a liberal circulation of scandalous hand bills, distributed by a competitive showman, Col. Robinson's Humpty Dumpty Co. played at the Opera House, last night, to a packed house. The entertainment was first class in every particular, and highly appreciated by the large audience, amidst great applause. I should be pleased to book the company again at any time. N. K. STANLEY, Manager.

"Always Relieves Her." W. E. PELHAM, Druggist, Newberry, S. C. I have used your "Pectoral Syrup" in my family with great benefit. My wife is troubled, now and then, from Colds and Coughs, arising from measles contracted several years ago. Whenever troubled your Pectoral always relieves her. Resp. gratefully yours, J. CALVIN NEEL.

ATTLEBORO, MASS. SEPT. 15, 1881. Col. Robinson's display of Fireworks, and exhibition on the Tight Rope, was magnificent. The Pantomime and Specialty Company was the finest of the kind we ever had here, far ahead of Jay Rial's company.
