FATTENING FOWLS.

Fowls, to be palatable and ten der, should be fattened quickly. From eight to ten days are suffi cient. Place the birds in a roomy coop, in some outbuilding, where they will be free from draft and in a modified light. The morning food should be given as early as possible, and should consist of good, sweet, yellow conneal, mixed with one-third its quantity of heavy wheat middlings; mix with boiling water, and in the water should be chandler's scraps sufficient to make the water quite greasy. To every two quarts of feed, every other day, mix a tablespoonful of powdered charcoal before the water is poured on the feed. Let it stand covered up; after being mixed for twenty minutes, then feed. At noon use the meal, leaving out the middlings, and in its place put in all the table scraps you can get and some finely chopped cabbage. Use the charcoal only in the morning feed. At night feed corn that has been boiled until it has swollen twice its natural size. Every other day add to noon feed a little buckwheat (in grain). Give water after each feed. Warm, sweet milk is best if you have it to spare. Give during the day, but always give water for drink at night. Do not feed anything for at least twelve hours besoft food; and if you would like a nice, gamy flavor to the meat let it contain a good proportion of chop ped celery. Fowls fed in this way fatten very rapidly, and their flesh is tender, juicy and tempting.

[American Farmer. EARLY SPRING CHICKS .- In breeding poultry, no matter whether they are the high-priced thoroughbred stock or not, the main idea with all is usually one of profit, and the proper way to commence as well as carry it out, is to try to make a fair profit, even if all the surplus stock is sold in the open market at ordinary fowl-meat prices, and not at the usual advanced prices obtained for fine, pure-bred stock. Where this is done, there is rarely, if ever, any reasonable cause for dissatisfaction. Where a person has the convenienmuch profit can be made from poultry as breeding extra early spring chicks, those which are ready to market with early As paragus, and weigh from two to four pounds per pair or more. There is always a large demand for these young 'broilers,' and at prices which are not merely entirely satisfactory to the breeder, but astonishing to those who are new to the business. As they are marketed when about three months old, they have cost but little for food, and pay double and treble the profit they would if kept until fall and then sold in the market at a dollar a piece, which price is much above the average. Aside from this, the loss from accidents and sickness, which is no inconsiderable item, between the ages of three months and eight or nine months, is avoided .- D. Z. Evans, Jr., in Amer. Agriculturist for Mar.

SWEET POTATO PUDDING. - One pound of sweet potato boiled in a little water; when done, take them out, peel them and mash very smooth; beat eight eggs very light; add to them half a pound of butter, creamed, half a pound of sugar (granulated,) half a teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon, a very little nutmeg, one wineglass of rosewater, one gill of sweet cream; stir well; then add the sweet potato, a little at a time; mix all together, stirring very hard; then butter a deep dish, put in the pudding and bake three-quarters of an hour; or line a pie-plate with puff paste, put in the pudding and bake twenty

AND VICINITY.

THE ADVANTAGES this Method has over the Old System, in an Advertisement, but invite all interested to Call at the Studio, or Send for Circular.

IT SAVES TIME AND MONEY. It is so Simple that even a Child of Five Years can understand it.

It does away with years of drudgery.

It takes the Pupil almost immediately into the Science of Musical Compositions, and continues the same throughout the whole Course of Instruction.

It is not a superficial method, but applies to all Music precisely as it is written, without any change whatever.

It commends itself at once to the educated class of the community.

This Method is entirely different from the Old System.

An opportunity is offered to all to gain a Musical Education in a short time and for Less Expense than ever before. Many of my Pupils in the South are now successfully Teaching this Method, which was gained at a nominal expense, while my expense for Tuition alone was FOUR DOLLARS per Lesson.

This Method fulfils the maxim that "Whatever shortens the road to learning, lengthens life and increases usefulness."
