BAISE YOUR OWN SEED CORN.

The time to plant for this is now | bonds. while the corn crop is going in, or farm by using seed that has been carefully raised for the purpose. Not much attention is paid to the farmer. The man who reads and thinks about the seed used for his crops, selects the best he can find in his crib at planting time, and finds that this pays. It pays still better to select ears from the field the fall previous to planting, from stalks that bear two or more perfect ears. A better practice still is to plant the corn for seed in a small patch by itself, and guard it against all the accidents that must attend its growth and cultivation in the larger field. The ground should be specially prepared for this purpose, and made rich enough to supply all the wants of the plant. It should be thoroughly cultivated every two or three weeks, until the grain is full in the ear. Like produces like, in corn as in cattle, and silk and the tassel are both factors in giving character to the ear. Though the male and female blossoms in the corn are upon the same plant, there is no security for self fertilization when any plant is grown in the open field. The pollen from a barren stalk may fall upon the ear grown from selected seed, and this ear may be imperfect, or be a cob promiscuous fertilization, and secure, as far as possible, corn with a good pedigree, and perfect after its kind. All barren stalks should be cut out, and no more stalks be left in the hill than will give perfect ears. If the owner will select from this patch the earliest and best formed ears, for his seed, and follow up this practice for a few years, he will have a new variety and a large increase in his yield .- Ameri-

PRUNING IN JUNE.-We have tried pruning in almost all months of the year, and on the whole prefer June. This being about the busiest month of the year, there is usually little time for prunning, and so the favorite time is early in spring, and so many of our old orchards, in their rotting limbs and decayed trunks, bear testimony to thorough pruning called for in a truthfulness of the Christian doc wood and leaves; the wood laid in his mind. bare in pruning large limbs soon becomes seared, the healing process around the edges of the wound begins immediately, and in a few years the wound will be completely covered with new wood and bark. There is no chance for de cay as when large limbs are removed in the early spring. There is far too little pruning done in the farm orchard. A dead limb should not be suffered upon the fruit tree. Good pruning leaves no stubs, but cuts close to the trunk or branch bearing the excised limb .- American Agriculturist for June.
