WHY BANGS HATED DOGS

WAS HE RIGHT IN DOING SO?

"Get out!"

"Bangs, that is my dog!"

"Yes, I know it is. Got out, you brute!"
And he shied at him an iron paper-weight.

My face flushed.

"Bangs," said I, "excuse me, but I've an affection for that dog."

"Bangs," said I, "excuse me, but I've an affection for that dog."

"Bangs," said I, "excuse me, but I've an affection for that dog."

"Than I noticed that the moon was beach. Than I noticed that the moon was weight.

My face flushed.
"Bangs," said I, "excuse me, but I've an affection for that dog."
"Excuse me, Pills, but I've an antipathy against all dogs. Get out, verminl"

And he gave my black and tan a vicious kick that sent him howling into the corridor. Bangs shut the door and looked it, and put the key in his pocket.

"I wish, Pills, the next time you come to my office, you would leave the brute behind. I've a most unconquerable antipathy against all canines, and-

Bangs might have said more, but the look on my face must have convinced him that I was seriously angry.

"Suppose we let this pass," he said. "I was wrong, I'll admit. I ought not to have kicked your pup; but you don't know how I hate 'em, big and little. Sit down, Pills, and let me tell you something that heretofore has been a scoret with me-a scoret hidden from the gaze of the cold, unsympathizing world. I feel now that it is necessary for me to make an explanation, in the hope that it may prevent a misunderstanding between two such firm friends as we have been in the past, and, I hope, will be in the

- I sat down in the chair Bugs pointed to, and said: "Go on!"

"I do not know," continued Bangs, "that I ever had any particular dislike to dogs previous to the circumstances which I am about to relate. Do you remember the spring I took a trip into the country?"
"Very well," I replied.

"That was some six years ago. I had confined my elf very closely to business ever since my admittance to the bar, and I thought a month in the country would freshen me up considerably."

"It did not seem to, if I remember rightly," I said.

"You'll not wonder at it, when I tell you all the facts. I went down to a little seaside resort called San Marino. Ever been there? No? Well, it's a queer sort of place. There is a very fine stream of water coarses down from the mountains and empties into the sea half a mile from town -although there is no town there, only a little hotel and a blacksmith shop. The stream empties into the sea in winter, during the heavy rains; but in the summer time the surf banks up the mouth with sand, and forms quite a lake or lagoon. Laguna la Puritas is the Spanish name. The proprietor of the hotel had a few little sail boats fitted up, and they were in constant use by his guests. Game is plenty in the hills about there-deer and quail; the creek is full of speckled trout, and the hotel is just far enough from the sen to render the climate delightful. The San Mariao House was filled to its utmost capacity that season. It was a curious kind of a crowd gathered there. City sportsmen, with dogs, gues, fishing tackle, etc.; and superannusted old women, for the benefit of the sea breeze; young boys fourteen or fifteen years old, making their first trip from home alone; two or three grass widows; a somewhat fast elergyman-rode from the city on his velocipede -- and three or four young ladies and a dozen frisky school girls. On the whole, it was as jolly a crew as ever gathered together. With horseback-riding, boating, fishing and hunting, the time passed rapidly enough. I said there were three or four young ladies, but, so far as I was concerned, there was only one—Miss Tootic Tusby. Excuse me, Pills, but I cannot speak that name even now without omotion," and Bings drew forth his handkerchief and wiped his eyes vigorously. "I cannot describe all her charms; but, Pills, if there ever was an angel in this of laughter, and kept it up until I sprang that for his deceased wife, and said: "You world, she was one. I devoted myself to up and collared him, and told him if he dick I ride oud mit another woman so soon her fom the very first. When Miss Tootie rode, I rode; if she walked, I walked; when of clothing. I made him promise to keep she went fishing, Bangs went fishing; if she sailed on the lake, Bangs was there also. Pills, I loved the girl! And when I think of what separated us, you'll excuse me,

There the handkerchief again came into requisition, and Bangs' voice left him completely.
"Did you propose?" I asked.

"No! Pills—no! Ah! if I only had—if night."
I only had!"

"What prevented?" "Well, nothing but my own folly. was faint hearted when it came to that.

had it in my mouth a dozen times, but my tongue failed me. There was another fellow there, too, that made me jealous. She didn't show him any particular favors, but that he was a great admirer of her any one could see; and really I wasn't certain in my mind which she preferred. She might in time, perhaps, have shown some proference, and my doubts' been dispelled, had it not been for the affair that happened which I am about to relate, and which blighted all my future life." "Bad as that?" I said.

"Pills, you never were in love-you never lost the one heaven assigned for youyou know nothing at all about it."

"That is so. Go on." "There was a party at the San Marino House one evening—a soirce dansante, or something like that, they called it. They sent up to the city for music, and went in for a gay time. I was counted out, some-what-you know I don't dance. The other fellow did. More than that, he danced with Tootic nearly all the time. Pills, you don't know anything at all about it.
You never had the girl you love dancing with your rival all the evening right before your eyes, while you sat in a corner like a knot on a log; see him in the quadrilles, when all the rest of the couples simply take each other's hands and prome-

FOOD AS A MEDICINE. - Dr. Hall relates the case of a man who was cured of his biliousness by going without his supper and drinking freely of lemonade. Every morn-ing, says the Doctor, this patient arose with wonderful sense of rest and refreshment, and feeling as though the blood had been literally washed, cleansed and cooled by the house without discovery. Pleasant wasn't emonade and fast. His theory is that food can be used as a remedy for many diseases successfully. As an example, he cures spitting of blood by the use of salt; epilepsy by watermelon; kidney affection by celery; poison, by olive or sweet 'oil; crysipelas by ounded cranberries applied to the parts affected; hydrophobia by onions, &c. the way to keep in good health is really to know what to eat-not to know what medi cine to take.

TUTT'S PILLS

A Noted Divine says They are worth their weight in gold.

READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation, and Piles. Last spring your pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

The Crucial Test of the value of a medicine is time. Does experience confirm the claims put forth in its fuvor at the outset? is the grand question. Apply this criterion, so simple, yet so searching, to Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient. How has it worn? What has been its history? How does it stand to day?

Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient Is a household name throughout the United States. It is administered as a specific, and with success, in dyspepsia, sick headache, nervons dobility, liver complaint, bilious remittents, bowel complaints (especially constipation), rhoumatism, gout, gravel, nausen, the complaints peculiar to the maternal sex, and all types of inflammation. So mild is it in its operation that it can be given with perfect safety to the feeblest child; and so agreeable is it to the taste, so refreshing to the palato, that children never refuse to take it.
