9. TAUS 9, 1877.

Compost fertilizers will become an object of interest and importance to our farmers in the ratio that they study and make themselves familiar with the changes effected by the fermentation of the compost heap. And we, therefore, carnestly advise al farmers to double their diligence in this direction for the future, and cease to expend their money for that which they can make just as good themselves. We told you in this column a few weeks ago that one ton of phosphate flour and one ton of cotton seed, composted with one ton stable manure and two or three hundred pounds of German kainit, for six or eight weeks, will make as good a fertilizor as you ever used, and at one fourth the cost. Messrs. Wm. Burriss, John B. Watson, G. W. Long, C. S. Mattison and J. W. Norris, made and used a fortilizer by this formula last year. and are so well pleased with its results that year. Although these parties received their phosphate flour so late last spring that their experiment could scarcely be regarded a fair one, not having more than three or four weeks to complete the compost. Col. Mattison tried two or three ammoniated guanos on cotton alongside of his compost, and could see no difference in growth or production. The writer made his compost in the stable and did not remove it until it was taken up to distribute in the cotton beds. This formula has been successfully used by Georgia farmers, and we could give a score of favorable certificates from these parties. It is really a Georgia formula, and is the same circulated among our farmers over the signature of "E. T. Paine, Secretury of Trade Union." Dr. Ledoux, Agricultural Chemist of North Carolina, recommends a similar formula for composting.

Phosphate flour is the base of all com mercial guano, and when treated with sulphuric soid becomes acid phosphato, and that skilfully manipulated with Peruvian guano, lish scraps and blood, furnishes the ammonia, &c., to make a complete guano. But it has been ascertained that the chemimake the phosphate flour available without the use of sulphurie acid, which is a costly article, and makes up nearly one-half the weight of acid phosphate. Hence, the manifest economy in purchasing the base, and by our own labor and skill scoure its solubility with the necessary ammonia, &c.,

NEW YORK, January 16.—A special from Norfolk, Va., says that the whole Roanoke River country is laid waste by the recent floods, and presents a startling scene of devastation. Those who have been up and down the river say that the farms along its course, for oue or two miles back, are nearly destroyed. Farm houses, barns they will use double the amount the present and stables have been swept away, and the fonces destroyed. All things portray a a general rain, caused by the water. The complaints of the farmers are heart-rending and real: The floods have ruined them, and left them destitute of means to recommence life on their barnen and wasted land. The picture is a pitcous one, and must be seen to be realized. The Roanoko again commenced rising to day.

The New York Tribune says Secretary of the Treasury Sherman, in a conversation. in that city on Saturday, took a gloomy view of the situation, and stated that unless some Domocratic members from the South or West could be induced to change their views, the passage of the silver bill was merciy a matter of time.
