COTTON GROWERS' CONVENTION.

A Call has been issued by President J. C. Wilborn.

Below is the text of the call for the Cotton Growers' Convention to be held in Columbia during fair week.

THE CALL.

The Cotton Growers' Association is hereby called to meet in Columbia on October 31 at 8:30 p. m.

A State convention of cotton growers met at Greenville, September 12, 1900.

It was then decided after due deliberation to perfect a State organization and officers were duly elected for one year until September 18, 1901.

It was decided to compactly organize each County in the State with a view of getting the more accurate report of the ginning and marketing of the cotton and to interchange views and information from all the cotton States, for the purpose of obtaining fair and just prices for our cotton and seed and products.

Upon my suggestion an adjournment of the Cotton Growers' Convention at Greenville was had to meet in Columbia during fair week at my call; therefore, I name October 31st at 8:30 p. m., as the time for the Convention to meet in the city of Columbia at the County Court House.

Let each county be fully represented by delegates. The number of delegates is not to be restricted. All counties are urged to organize at once by electing a President, one Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer and advising board or Executive Committee.

The constitution and by-laws of the State of Georgia have been adopted as far as they apply to South Carolina.

PLANS.

Honed warehouses to be established at local markets wherever required by the banks and the members of the association.

Warehouse receipts to be issued and negotiated at nearest bank—as collateral security for money borrowers.

Each producer shall control the individual sale; if he desires to dispose of his cotton before minimum price fixed by the association is offered by the buyer he shall be at perfect liberty to do so.

A fair and just price for cotton and cotton seed can be secured and maintained in open markets in the South by united action, by holding back the surplus crop, if any there be, and marketing the crop during the twelve months of the year to meet the demands of the mills in all parts of the world.

Gimmers throughout the cotton belts will be supplied with postal cards addressed to headquarters of the State bureau, with request that each Saturday night the number of bales ginned that week will be forwarded.

The services of the county organizations will be in close touch with the producers and careful estimates made on existing crop conditions will be sent weekly to the board.

The cotton grower has the crop better in hand to-day than he has had for thirty years, and he is warned that he has no reason to become unduly alarmed over the report that the mills are closing down to depress a fair price of cotton.

You are reminded that when cotton sold as high as 30 cents a pound it was manufactured.

Let us organize, let us work, watch and continue to labor.

All parties interested in growing, marketing, ginning and handling of the crop are invited to send delegates.

The bankers, merchants and warehouse men are invited to participate in the convention.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Great Favorite

The soothing and healing properties of this remedy... are prompt and permanent cures have made it a great favorite with people everywhere.

It is especially prized by mothers of small children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief, and as it contains no opium or other harmful drug, it may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

Girl Charged With Robbing the Mails.

A pretty girl of seventeen or eighteen years was arrested at Bateson post office, Greenville county, one day last week for robbing the mails.

For some time there has been complaint of irregularities at that office, which is in the upper part of the county, but inspectors have been unable to locate the thief. Last week Inspectors Moyer and Moore went to the neighboring post office of White Horse, from which they sent a decoy letter, addressed to Chicago, containing marked coins. Then they intercepted the mail after it left Bateson and found the letter had been opened. The coins taken and stamps substituted. The coins were found in a drawer in which Miss Kate Arnett Carter, the assistant postmaster at Bateson, and daughter of the postmaster, had the key. She pleaded ignorance of the whole business, but the inspectors arrested her and claim to have positive proof to convict.

United States Commissioner Hawthorne, before whom the girl was brought, sent the case up to court, which meets next month. The minimum sentence for such an offense is one year's imprisonment. Miss Carter's family is prominent and respected. The course of education and intelligence and the arrest has caused a great sensation in the county.

PLACES WITH HISTORIES.

"The Rover" Travels Through Oconee and Sees Interesting Spots.

SENECA, September 22.—Not long ago the readers of The State had a very interesting account of the Wallhalla Semi-Centennial, as reported by Mr. Banks. He made reference to the original purchase of the land for the colony from Col. Joseph Gresham. Recently I stopped at the place on the old stage road that passes across this county, just above Seneca near Westminster, where Col. Gresham lived before he settled in the Wallhalla section. You must know that Jos. E. Brown, Georgia's great war Governor, married the daughter of Col. Gresham. I was shown the log store house, still standing, where Col. Gresham sold goods and where his daughter, the future Mrs. Brown, was a clerk (or should I say saleslady?) The building is in very good repair, being built of large hewn logs, and shows good workmanship. The place is now occupied by Capt. S. M. Pool, recently elected County Supervisor.

I seemed to have gotten into a historic county, for a couple of miles west of that place I passed the farm and home of Mr. W. N. Cox, in the horsehoe bend of Chauga River, and which was the home of the celebrated Horsehoe Robinson, the hero of John Pendleton Kenney's very interesting historical novel.

As I sat a little further on west, after crossing the Chauga, I spent the night at the same house where Kennedy met Robinson and got the facts for his book. At that time it was the home of Col. Obadiah Trimmer, to whom the late Col. John T. Sloan, of Columbia, was a near relative. Col. Trimmer is buried on the place. He was a celebrated man in many respects—a great lover of sport. He had a large family, rousty girls, and never found the business of his farm too pressing to take his family 25 miles to Pendleton to attend a ball. On one occasion the roof of his house caught fire and one of the young ladies climbed upon one of the house and extinguished the blaze at great risk to her life. In 1845, the celebrated dray man, Mr. Clayton Pool, of Greenville, in traveling through this section, was impressed with the fine bottom lands on Tokaway Creek, and purchased the farm and moved to it. The lands are still the property of his children. It is only a few miles from there to the little town of Fort Madison, on the Southern Railway, and overlooking the beautiful Tugaloo valley. Here on a hill in the centre of the town is a granite column, erected as a monument to the memory of Col. Ben Cleveland, one of the heroes of King's Mountain, who is buried in the neighborhood.

The site of the fort that gives name to the town is on the opposite side of the railroad from the monument, but there is scarcely a vestige of it left.

This section is full of historic incidents of great interest and value, if only they could be gathered together for preservation.

ROVER.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhea After Thirty Years of Suffering.

"I suffered for thirty years with diarrhea and thought I was past being cured," says John S. Halloway, of French Camp, Miss. "I had spent so much time and money and had such hope that I had given up all hopes of recovery. I was so feeble from the effects of the diarrhea that I could do no kind of labor, could not even travel, and by accident I was permitted to find a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, and after taking several bottles I am entirely cured of that trouble. I am so pleased with the result that I am anxious that it be in reach of all who suffer as I have." For sale by J. W. Bell.

Black Brute is Shot Down.

ALBANY, Ga., September 22.—Mr. W. S. Tarver, one of the most prominent citizens of Albany, went to the home of a negro named Mose Ingram, shortly before dark, and found the man with a double-barrel shotgun, killing him almost instantly.

The cause of Mr. Tarver's act was an attempted criminal assault by the negro upon Mr. Tarver's thirteen-year-old daughter.

Mose was a negro about 45 years old, and had been a servant in the Tarver family for a number of years. He was trusted almost implicitly by his employers, and such conduct would never have been expected from him.

Several days before he attempted the assault on Tarver's daughter, and threatened to poison her if she told. His threats made the child keep the matter secret until yesterday morning, when she told her mother.

Mr. Tarver was out at his plantation in the western part of Dougherty county, and did not return to his home until late last night. He was informed of the negro's conduct, and he went to Mose's home and killed him, as above stated.

Mr. Tarver has not been arrested, and it is understood that Mose's wife has refused to swear out a warrant against him.

Tilman in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., September 20.—United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman addressed a Democratic meeting of 1,500 persons at the South Side Turner Hall to-night, confining his remarks chiefly to imperialism. He was frequently applauded.

"One burning question," he said, "is to determine whether or not you will retain a republic to live under or whether you will set up a military despotism."

The Porto Rican tariff law he characterized as "a damnable act, for which I will rise up and call the Republicans to account."

These people, he said, were promised that they would receive all the rights, and guarantee that the Constitution calls for, but the Republican party has from the start denied them their rights.

He dwelt at length on the Philippines and ridiculed the statement of Republicans that the war was over in those islands, and stated that in the face of such reports messages were being sent to Washington almost daily containing news of the life and death of our soldiers. He quoted Admiral Dewey to the effect that the Filipinos were better able to govern themselves than the Cubans, yet the Cubans were given their liberty and the Filipinos remain slaves.

He urged his hearers to arise above party and vote for principle and liberty; that they were to decide whether the Constitution and the flag go together.

Taking up the argument of "the full dinner pail," the speaker told his listeners to tell the Republicans that "slaves hereafter have had full dinner pails."

Senator Tillman closed by inviting the audience to vote for Bryan, and predicting defeat of the Republican party in November.

MURPHY AND COLLINS FREE.

Two Convicts Escape from the South Carolina Penitentiary.

COLUMBIA, S. C., September 23.—D. C. Murphy, the white man convicted of the assassination of Treasurer Copes, of Orangeburg county, and W. H. Collins, a white burglar, noted throughout the county, both serving life sentences, have escaped from the State penitentiary in an ingenious and daring manner. There was no inkling of their escape till an inspection in the morning revealed their cage so completely empty. It is supposed they had six hours' start.

The penitentiary yard in which the buildings are situated is surrounded by a brick wall ranging in height from fifteen to twenty-five feet. On this wall there are sentry boxes at intervals and guards are constantly on the lookout.

The convicts were about three weeks ago transferred from the new to the old main building, the former being now in course of construction. All the cells of this building open on steel piazzas, running around the entire building. The cells are merely holes in the thick granite walls, the occupants being kept secure by massive iron barred doors opening on the piazzas. The doors are hung on heavy iron drop hinges, are locked with individual locks from the outside, and besides have on the top a "V" shaped piece of iron fastened so as to project outward and fall under a steel slide that locks every cell when dropped.

Murphy and Collins, in some way, either from the carpenter shop or the mill, obtained a hack saw. With this powerful little instrument they completely severed the massive iron pin of the top hinge of the door at its base. They evidently prized the door up enough to give the hack saw entrance.

This done they could pull the door inward sufficiently to twist it around and make an aperture large enough to crawl through.

That they were perfectly confident of getting away may be seen from the inscription left on the walls of the cell, written on the whitewash in large letters with a piece of charcoal. On the right of the door was this: "God will deliver; peace and good will to all men."

On the opposite facing was this: "Out for South America—W. H. Collins, D. C. Murphy. Goodby, for we are gone."

"In God we trust; God be with you till we meet again."

Begging for Admission into Clemson College.

That is a pathetic story told by our Clemson correspondent last week about scores of boys being at Clemson begging for admission and being turned away simply because there was no room for them. Fathers and mothers were there begging for the admission of their sons and the pitiful part of it is that they had to be denied simply for the lack of room.

It is said that such is the demand for admission to the college that it is necessary to file an application a year or more in advance to secure entrance to the college. It is indeed pitiful to see any young man seeking an education of the kind that Clemson offers being turned away now at this stage in the progress of the industrial life of the State when she is calling for every son of hers who can swell the ranks of her industrial workers. It is a condition of things that calls for the serious consideration of our lawmakers.

Something should be done to enlarge Clemson so that no young man need be turned away from her doors. It is the foremost educational institution in the State and is operating in a sphere peculiarly its own and its career has demonstrated the wisdom and foresight of its founders, and is doing for the young men of the State what its early promoters claimed it would do and even more. So well has it worked that it has disarmed practically all opposition. It is no longer an experiment, but is an unbounded success and its graduates everywhere are reflecting credit and honor not only upon their alma mater, but upon their State as well, and some means should be provided by its board of trustees, backed by the General Assembly, for enlarging its sphere of usefulness. In this new era of industrial life and progress that has burst upon the State and is thrilling her veins with a swelling tide of development she is calling for her own sons who come to the front in the ranks of the spindle and the dynamo and nowhere else in the State can young men be fitted for this industrial conflict and the State should not be niggardly with Clemson. That it will cost money goes without saying, but in view of the record the college has made already and the increasing demand upon it could a few thousand dollars be better invested than in enlarging and equipping the college with more buildings, more equipment and more teachers? If the reasons for enlarging the college were good and sound, and if there is no question, then the reasons for enlarging it apply with double force. It will injure no other educational interest in the State to enlarge the college and if it pays the State to have 500 boys there being trained it will pay her just 100 percent more to have 1,000 there. Who can estimate the powerful impetus that it would give to the spirit of progress in the State to have 1,000 young men trained there annually for ten years and turned loose to swell the army of industrial workers? Let Clemson be enlarged,—Anderson Daily Mail.

A Horrible Crime.

SEMIER, OREGON, September 22.—Fred Kane, who resided with his wife and step-daughter, a child about seven years of age, six miles northwest of this place, in a fit of temporary insanity, shot his wife and daughter and burned the cabin home. He then attempted suicide by shooting himself.

BOONE'S BLACK DIAMOND.

Its Woes Continue to be Many and Great.

The woes of Col. A. E. Boone's Black Diamond Railroad continue to be many. It was not so very long ago that the public was told that the proposed system had been financed and that it would be ready for work at no very distant date. Of course the public took this information with several grains of salt, but the promoters of the enterprise would have us believe that there was no possible way in which their wishes could be frustrated. They talked loudly and confidently, and there were not a few people who began to hope that the scheme had something in it and was destined to succeed. But all of these bright dreams have come to nothing, and just now the Black Diamond seems to be no nearer completion than it was several years ago. The blame for this sad condition of affairs, so the Boone people say, is at the door of one T. C. Dickinson, some time financial agent of the project. A year or so ago Black Diamond literature declared that this same Dickinson was one of the ablest and best of money changers in the United States. He was said to have had the confidence of the bondholders of two continents; and the Boone enthusiasts did not see how it would be possible for their paragon of finance to fail to interest the capital of the world in the great double track route that was so shortly to connect the Mississippi Valley with the South Atlantic seaboard. It was Dickinson who brought a titled person to the Boone people, and it was he who they wished to burn. Sir Thomas Tancred was the name and having journeyed and jaunted from one end of the Black Diamond to the other, Sir Thomas said that he was the scheme and the makers thereof. He and Dickinson went back to England and the friends on this side held their breath while they waited for a had been told that the whole thing was "a go." After waiting they waited to take a breath or so, but they continued to believe that they might wait any morning to find the Black Diamond backed by the Bank of England. Of course the expected never happens, and so it came to pass that the confiding directors of the great Boone system are waiting yet.

In due course of time some of them became impatient and tried to hurry up the finance mill, but it was coming to them. But the job proved to be a difficult one, and when this was observed to be the case the faithful rose up and said that Dickinson was cursed. Dickinson said Boone was the man they were thinking about, and so the matter goes at the present time. The Boone people declare that Dickinson has thrown down a great enterprise for thirty or so pieces of silver, and the Dickinson faction say the enterprise on its feet all right, but they bluffer anyway. The language they are using is much stronger than they employed here, but it is no use in repeating what friends who have fallen out say about each other in anger. The only thing the public is interested in is the fact that there seems to be no immediate prospect of the great Boone scheme coming to anything. That indefatigable person declares, however, that it is only a question of time before he will have the enterprise on its feet all right, but he does not seem to mind it at all when other railroad men laugh at the idea of his doing any such thing.—News and Courier.

BLACK DIAMOND OPTION EXPIRD.

KNOXVILLE, TENN., September 20.—The option granted last year by Boone's Black Diamond Railroad to T. C. Dickinson, William Kirby and others to construct the road over Boone's rights of way expired to-night and the Boone Company now claims possession of the franchise. Officials say work will begin within a year and the route will be financed by American capital. It is to run from Cincinnati to Port Royal, South Carolina.

News About Newry.

Newry, September 21.—Editors Keewee Courier: As the summer days of 1900 have come and gone, and the cold autumnal days begin to appear, the blue sky and twinkling stars, you scribble, with the thoughts of the past, present and future before his mind, asks that you allow him space in your columns that he might tell your readers about what is going on down here among the hills and by the river's side.

Rev. Henry M. Fallow closed a protracted meeting here last Sabbath evening amid the sad regrets of our people, as he is going away to Louisville, and perhaps this will be the last service he will hold with us.

Capt. Wm. A. Courtenay is spending several days in the North.

J. S. Parrott, of Seneca, was with us to-day and reports doing a good business at that place. Vessie is a good boy and we hope he will do well.

J. L. Kell, of the firm of Richardson & Byrd, of Seneca, was also with us. We suppose, from what we saw, he was looking after interests that were near and dear to his heart. Come again, Mr. Kell, as often here, with your best girl, would like to see you.

The Newry store does a flourishing business. The store now has four clerks in its employ, viz: Bob Boyd, Ed Harper, T. F. Gaillard and Miss Lucia C. The last two named are from Anderson. Miss Carter is at the head of the notion and millinery department.

R. L. Boggs is still putting up nice cottages for the company.

J. Mat Whitmore, of Joacosse, paid us a flying visit a few days since.

Jack Alexander, of Little River, is in town to-day with a load of produce. Uncle "Jake" is one of Oconee's best farmers and makes his hog and hominy home as well as many other good things. ANON.

A Night of Terror.

"A awful night was felt for the brave General Burnham, of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her. "All thought she must soon die of pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous cure is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases, only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at all drug stores in the country.

Fair Play Items.

FAIR PLAY, September 24.—Mrs. William Lee, her daughter Myrian and Miss Anna Watson, of Anderson, spent Friday night with Mr. Watson's family.

Messrs. John Leathers and Fletcher Knox left for Alabama this week to enter the cotton business.

Mrs. W. E. Barton has returned from Greenville County, where she has been spending the summer with her parents.

Mr. Glenn Shirley, of Parkertown, Ga., is clerking with Mr. W. A. Dickson.

The friends of Mr. W. A. Dickson are glad to see him in our midst again. He expects to leave at an early date for Arkansas.

Miss Nannie Darton, of Lavonia, Ga., is spending a week with her brother's family.

Mr. Preston Earle is suffering from a relapse of his former sickness. His many friends will regret to know this.

Mr. E. C. Marett has been ordered by the mortgagee to lose several head of cattle recently on his Tugaloo farm. A veterinary surgeon from Clemson College has been ordered to investigate the cause of the trouble. He pronounced the disease Texas fever.

Mrs. W. A. Quail and her little son, Lamar, of Atlanta, Ga., have been visiting her sister, Mrs. Dr. J. H. Moore, for the past week, who has been enjoying a much needed rest with her mother's family during the summer months.

Miss Dolly Knox, of Tuscaloosa Training School for Nurses, has been enjoying a hardware house of Atlanta, was in town last week; also Mr. John Jarrard, representing a dry goods establishment of the same city.

The Fair Play High School friends on the 17th instant with a good attendance. Mr. Ezekiel Harris and wife, of Elberton, are visiting Mr. T. R. Harris's family.

Miss Hattie Lee has returned to Pelzer, and she is engaged in the millinery business.

Miss Lily Lindsay, of Anderson, has been visiting her brother's family, Mr. J. Lindsay.

Mr. Keels Marett leaves this week for Greenville, where he will pursue his studies in Furman University.

Mr. Harley N. King and family, of Spring Place, Ga., spent Friday night and Saturday in our little village. Mr. King is a member of the State of Spring Place, having represented his county as State Senator and also served a number of years as Clerk of the Court. He married a daughter of the late Judge James Cleveland, of this place. They have many friends here and are glad to see them on the road.

An interesting family of six children. Mr. A. R. Marett's baby girl has been right sick with intermittent fever.

Mr. Marett has had the severest drought our oldest citizens have ever witnessed. The cotton crop will average only one-third. Scarcely enough corn will be made to fatten winter pork. Very little hay and fodder have been saved. A good stand of turnips is reported. Eye is being sown for early winter grazing. OCTOBER DAY.

Killing in Columbia.

Howard Allen, a well-known young man, who has for some time been engaged in "sporting life," at Columbia, S. C., last Sunday night was shot and killed by Ed Smith, a visiting and unknown "sport." The story of the killing is that Allen met Smith at the door of his gambling house and told him that he was not wanted in the place and to get away. They had some words, when Smith started down the steps. He called back at Allen and Allen said something to him, whereupon Smith fired on Allen. The bullet struck Allen in the stomach with deadly effect. Smith attempted to escape, but was captured by the police, and lodged in jail.
