THE LOOTED CITY OF PEKIN.

From the recent dispatches regarding the state of affairs at Peking it would seem that the allied forces have handed themselves together for the specific pur pose of looting. To the credit of the American military forces, however, it is stated that the soldiers have done little in the way of appropriating articles of value beyond "foraging" for blankets and other articles necessary to their comfort, which is done by permission of the officers in command, the army blankets having been discarded during the march to Peking in the extremely hot weather. This in a measure is justifiable; but the wholesale looting and robbery as reported is wholly unjustifiable, and unpardonable, even in the light of the old maxim, "to the victor belongs the spoils." There are many instances related of this barbarous looting, and the following is a fair example:

"The proprietor of a Peking hotel has bought, it is stated, silver worth over a quarter of a million dollars, at a cost of less than fifty thousand." This silver was appropriated by the looters and sold for whatever could be gotten for it. This one instance shows a loss to the owners of at least $250,000.

canteen? The time for reforming the army is ripe—the army itself is rotten.
It would seem, too, that it is time for a number of missionaries to be sent over the same thing in Greenville county, and his enterprise of course suffered the same fate as that of the German in Ocoalarming degree.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

The Atlanta papers—the Constitution and Journal—have for some time been quarreling over which one is entitled to credit for the rise in the price of cotton, and at present each is claiming it. Cotton would have advanced in price had neither of these papers ever been heard of. Like everything else, the price of cotton is regulated by supply and decrete the stronger drinks, whiskey and brandy, we do not know; we do not think though that the pure home made unadulterated wines would.

Anyway the dispensary law has designed the from encouraging drunkenness, the making of whice, such as that produced by the grapes raised here, would tend to so-briety. We have always understood that wine drinking people are always temperate people. Whether the drinking of the light wines would give one a desire for the stronger drinks, whiskey and brandy, we do not know; we do not think though that the pure home made unadulterated wines would. cotton is regulated by supply and demand. The supply is short, the demand great, and the price is necessarily much higher than a year ago, when the supply greatly exceeded the demand. The cotton growers come nearer having the situation under entire control now than at any time for years, and it rests with them whether they will profit by their advantage. They should organize and agree upon an acreage that will not again glut the cotton market.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy, and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by Dr. J. W. Bell.

To Help a Confederate Soldier.

SENECA, October 15.—Editors Courier: I hope you have had a liberal contribu-tion for the Confederate soldier in the thope you have had a liberal contribution for the Confederate soldier in the poor house. I send you one dollar. If there are twenty-three persons in Oconee county willing to give regularly fifty cents per month for the support of this soldier I will make the twenty-fourth. This will give him an income of twelve dollars a month. This will make this independent. He can get comfortable quarters in country for eight or nine dollars per month, leaving a nice surplus for clothing, etc. Will we make this old soldier's heart swell with gratitude and have him feel that he is appreciated by all lovers of the "Lost Cause" for which he so gallantly fought? Or will we ignore him and let him remain where he is? While societies of Sons and Daughters of the Confederacy prosper and grow in dress parade over the entire Sunny South, let us not lose sight of the blessed Master: "A cup of cold water in My name," etc.

An Industry Killed.

Liough the officers are close upon his tracks. a loss to the owners of at least $250,000, and it means a gain by the thieves of a like amount; and to the purchaser of the stolen property it means the enormous profit of at least $200,000. As Gen. Sherman, put it, "war is hell," and it would seem that those who make war are little better than demons.

This practice of looting, however, is not confined to the soldiers, camp-followers and riff raff, as the following paragraph shows:

"The following is from the Seneca News:

"The foll

paragraph shows:

"Some of the most persistent looters have been the missionaries. Recently meeting one with five cart loads of furs and antique furniture, Major Waller asked the missionary by what right he had taken the things, and to his astonishment was told that they had been taken by permission of Major Waller. He informed the missionary that he was mistaken, as he himself was Major Waller, and that he should confiscate every bit of it."

A beautiful example for a missionary to set! With "missionaries" prowling about Peking on "missions" of this sort, what is to be expected of soldiers, hardened and brutalized by the demoralizing influences of military life and Uncle Sam's "moral institution"—the army canteen? The time for reforming the work of the state.

In pany does a large business."

Mr. Wanner, if we remember correctly, is the German gentleman who bought land near Walhalla some years ago and went to a considerable expense in setting out a vineyard for the growing of grapes for wine-making. About the time he had his vineyard in fine condition the dispensary law came along and knocked his enterprise in the head, and he then moved to another State.

We visited the site of Mr. Wanner's vineyard two years ago. The land now belongs to Mr. R. T. Jaynes, of Walhalla. At the time of the visit these vines were laden with the rich, ripe fruit, of a variety that we do not believe could be excelled anywhere. But, as the vines were cumbering the ground, Mr. Jaynes expected to cut them down and use the land for the production of crops yet unfouched by the monopolistic hand of the State.

Mr. Wanner was among the first to demonstrate that this Piedmont country

Tragedy at Negro Festival.

GREENVILLE, October 11.—Greenville continues to maintain her remarkable record of killings, averaging about one overy week. Tuesday night at 1 o'clock Ed Simmons shot and killed Stephen Ray, a 32-ealiber bullet entering his heart and causing instant death. Both parties are colored. The scene of the occurrence was a negro frolic on a Mr. King's place, about five miles from this city, where the negroes were engaged in cursing, drinking, swearing and general riotous conduct. Simmons and Ray became involved in a personal difficulty, which resulted in Simmons pulling his pistol and shooting Ray. Simmons made his escape immediately after the shooting and has not yet been found, although the officers are close upon his tracks. The coroner's inquest was held this morning and the verdict of the jury was that Ray came to his death by a pistel shot wound in the hands of Ed Sim-
