WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1901.

That's the Way . Just a little every day-That's the way Seeds in darkness swell and grow; Tiny blades push through the snow; Never any flower of May Leaps to blossom in a burst, Slowly, slowly, as the first, That's the way, Just a little every day.

Just a little every day-That's the way Children learn to read and write, Bit by bit and mite by mite. Never any one I say Leaps to knowledge and its power; Slowly, slowly, hour by hour. That's the way: Just a little every day. —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Quaint Mennonites are Attracting Attention

Few religious sects have appeared so little in public print as the Mennonites, although they have been a unique, distinct force in the world's ligious influences surrounding the Marlboro, . . spiritual life since the days of Luther, of whom Menno-Simon, the leader of the sect, was a contemporary. the evangelical life is reduced to a principle that requires not only separation, but also distinction from the world. With respect to this outward distinctive form-such as the "prayer head covering" for women and the peculiar regulation dress for men, these people have maintained throughout all their generations the attitude of sober singularity before the world.

"The first authentic account of any settlement of Mennonites in America is that of a body of some twenty five members who located at Germantown, Pa., October 6th, 1863. coming thither from Holstein on the invitation of William Penn. The colony increased rapidly through subsequent immigration, and its members came under the notice of the neighbors as being very simple in their habits and mode of life; as adhering, like the Quakers themselves, to plain, modest apparel; as being slow to abandon the customs of their forefathers, and not readily adopting innovations of any kind With the breaking out of the Revo lutionary war, there were forty-two meeting houses in Pennsylvania. Congregations are now located in at least twenty-five States and in the Canadian provinces.

"All Mennonites recognize the confession of faith, consisting of eighteen articles, which was framed and adopted April 21st, 1632, at the city of Dort, in Holland. In addi tion to the principles set forth in baptism and sacrament of brez 1 and wine, this confession also enjoins the ordinance of foot washing, enjoin marriage only between members of the same faith, prohibits member ship in secret organizations, forbids the taking of oaths, and impresses upon Mennonites the doctrine of non-resistance.

"The communion is observed twice a year. Every intending participant is carefully examined separately concerning his spiritual standing before the day appointed for taking the sacrament. Immediately after the communion of bread and wine comes the ceremony of footwashing. The members of the sexes perform the office among themselves each in turn washing and wiping the feet of his brother or her sister, and giving at the same time the hand of fellowship and the kiss of peace Those who perform the duties of
