of Birmingham, Ala, for the murder of against all forms of vice in no small degree, and there promises to be wholesome anti-gambling sentiment in our capital city. We quote a few points taken from the published sermon of Rev. S. II. Zimmerman at the Main Street Methodist church. His subject was "Gambling and Gambling Places-Their Supporters and their Victims," and his text the first verse of the first Psalm: "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful." Among other things he said:

Gambling is almost universal. It is not onfined to the civilized nations, but is also practiced among semi-civilized races and barbarians. In fact, I think I could prove it a relict of barbarism. Gambling is as old as the ages. In the Roman Republic strict and strenuous laws were enacted against it; not on account of the habit itself, but because of its effect. It made then, as it does now, a race of effeminate and unmanly men. Cicero, Tacitus and other historians of the day said that Rome should have strict laws against it if they wished to preserve a strong race of men. The first laws in England against gambling were made for the same purpose. * * * The one for the same purpose. * * * The one fixed conception of all civilized people is that to preserve a race manly and strong gambling must be strangled out The Greeian influence, which is worth most, is that transmitted from the two centuries when she endeavored to make the physical ideal a god.
Hannibal, the conqueror, led his armies to the top of the Alps. The soldiers, worn-out and almost freezing, said: "We can go no further," but Hannibal, pointing to the valleys—Italy—said, "Victory lies yonder." The armies pushed on, and conquered city after city, until they reached Rome itself. Then winter came on and they engamed almost came on and they encamped almost under the walls of the imperial city. Being idle they fell to gambling and into other vices, and when the spring came again they were defeated by the hosts of Scipio.

It is thus with America. I view her with pride—a great country in her might. Her future is great, if only she does not allow the manhood of her sons to be sapped by vice.

Whatever encourages an individual to depend upon something else than the sweat of the brow is a bane to society. A country to be great must be industrious. And yet there are many men in this city who get their living without work. He who accounts to the second of the work. He who acquires anything of value from another without repaying him is a thief—yet in Columbia there are men who are included in this charge. One of the brightest acts in the history One of the brightest acts in the history of this city was the request of the police commission that the slot machines be commission that the slot machines be suppressed. It is for you as citizens to express in some way your approbation of this request. More money goes into the slot machines in one week than comes into this church in a whole year. These machines are the beginnings of greater vices. Everyone is enticed by them. Church members and little boys contribute to them I would not be surprised if some children stole from their parents to gamble. You may tell me to break up the greater vice of gambling, but I say to you that if I wanted to drain the Mississippi River I would start at the head waters. No man learns to gamble was to have $16 for the work.

The two most prevalent in Columbia society are the slot machines and high life gamb-ling. * * *

If a man is found in a den with cards in his hands he may be arrested, but the keeper of the dive goes free. Suppose these places are reported a hundred times, they cannot be eradicated. The policemen are not to blame; for if there was a sentiment in this city against gambling, then council would pass laws against it. The demand would create the samply

It is to be hoped this sentiment will be created and kept alive. Columbia may be "the best governed city" ever seen by the Rev. Mr. Zimmerman, but there is abundant room for improvement in many ways. Unless there has been wrought a great change in the late years there are one or two places in the city where, several nights in each weeks, a pair, a trio or a half dozen men prominently connected with State affairs could be found getting money by means other than the "sweat of the brow."

Mr. Perry's Reply to Commissioner Snead.

Salem, June 30 .- Editors Courier: I The Courier of June 25th I see Mr. S. H. Snead wants definite information from Mack Perry about the charge laid to him in regard to that eight-dollar job of work for twice the amount, the place, the bidder and so on.

Mr. Suead will remember that candidates are forgetful as well as other peo-ple, especially when they are in office, electioneering, farming and engineering he was to have $16 for the work.

Mr. Snead thinks Mack Perry got off the track when he was in Georgia hunting up evidence concerning our roads. Hardly, Mr. Snead; I don't need to go that far from home. It is not evidence that is raising such a dust in Oconee about roads; it is the way the present Board of Commissioners are squandering the county's money and not working our roads. sonable bids, so we can save the county money." The reason why it would be time lost to me, and wouldn't benefit the county any, is that last spring you gave me a job of work to do and asked me to get Mr. Wigington to survey it in connection with some other work. I did as you told me, of course; I knew no better. I saw Mr. Wigington and told him what you said. He did the work, for which I saw Mr. Wigington and you said. He did the work, for which you said. He did the work, for which you said you would pay him. I lost one day; thought I would get something out of it, but I have never got it and never will. A few days before I was ready to work on it you wrote and told me to work on it you wrote and told me to hold up. I did so. In a few more days you came up and we talked some. It seemed to me that you wanted some one else to have the job. I gave way like I always did. I knew no better than to always did. I knew no better than to always gaid. So if I had been at always did. MAJOR STRIBLING FOR CONGRESS. A Pelzer Man Who Believes Stribling The Man

[Belton Times, June 26.]

Pelzer, S. C., June 26.]

Pelzer, S. C., June 20, 1902.

Mr. Editor: One of the most perplexing questions confronting the average voter in the coming primary election centers in the race for Congress from this District. The race is a many sided one, and one that taxes the ingenuity of the most adept political forecasters to foresee. The situation is a complex one aside from the number of entries in the race and one that needs to be solved in a thoughtful, calm and unbiased manner. race and one that needs to be solved in a thoughtful, calm and unbiased manner. The gravity of the situation demands that a contest upon which so much of the real welfare of the country depends should be settled upon matters of principle and not upon personal grounds. I am quite aware that Anderson county has two candidates in the field, deservedly popular and posessed of rare pereciple and not upon personal grounds.

of the party in matters of expediency, he has always bowed in submission to the will of the majority and fought valiantly for the expressed will of the party. In differing with the leaders of the party in State politics, he has won for himself golden opinions on account of the forci golden opinions on account of the forci-ble yet respectful expression of his unerring judgment; the calm, unruffled equipoise with which he launched his equipoise with which he launched his thunderbolts of logic, swaying the thoughtful and unprejudiced mind by his eloquent and unanswerable appeals to reason, yet throughout it all without offending the feelings of the most sensi tive nature. Active and potent as he has been in shaping the policies of the party, antagonistic as it has been necessary for him to be to certain contemplated actions of the party which afterward became incorporated into the party machinery, not one violent and hasty expression of his, uttered in the heat of debate, has returned to down him and to stultify his party. These facts I merely mention to illustrate his cool, calm, self-control and his deep sense of propriets and trol and his deep sense of propriety and prudence. These are all prime requi-sites for the man who shall represent us in the National House of Representa-tives. He should not be a hot head nor questions of the day upon the forum. It is no time for untried men. Our next Congressman should be judged by his talents and, his achievements and, by this test, William J. Stribling stands out pre-eminent above any man in the Dis-trict outside of official life.

Major Stribling is not a politician by choice. It was only in response to the urgent appeals of his friends, who early recognized his merit, that he consented to enter public life when he was elected to the Leichen and the consentation of the con to the Legislature of his county in 1883-1884. He then went into voluntary re-tirement, owing to the drain upon his private affairs caused by his continuance in political life. He was again called from his retirement to go to the Constitutional Convention where he distin-guished himself and served his county with honor and eminent distinction. These are the only political offices are ever held and to which he ever as-His friends have urged him to enter the Congressional race and he has consented to do so. His garments have never been tainted with the smell of lefeat, and now that he is making a vig-brous campaign in his behalf, and as his riends throughout the District are bestirring themselves, there is no doubt that he is the leading man in the race. Perhaps the most distinguished fearemaps the most distinguished feature about Major Stribling's career, both in public and private life, as representative in the law-making bodies and in the party conventions, has been his desire to comote harmony in the party ranks and his broadminded fairness in dealing with the great question of labor and capital.

Major Stribling is a very successful farmer and lawyer, an able debater with a well equipped and well trained brain, and a parliamentarian of no mean ability. The good people of Anderson county will honor themselves by honoring such a man with their ballots, and if he is elected I pledge him to be an honor not only to his District, but to the State of South Carolina. Harmony Democrat.

the slot machines and high life gambling. * * * * * our roads. That is the trouble.

Is Columbia able to wipe out this evil? She is the best governed city I ever saw. The police force is organized better than I ever saw. Every policeman is required to report to headquarters any gambling den of whose existence he may be aware. Every thirty minutes he sends in his report by telephone, and the matter is reported until the chief is notified of it. Thus the policeman is relieved of responsibility.

You say, then, why do not the police do their duty? I will tell you: If there do their duty? I will tell you: If there is the slow our coads. That is the trouble.

That is the trouble.

Now, Mr. Snead wants Mack Perry to put on his governor belt, so his little stem of justice can shut off his big head of nonsense and give facts just as they are. Of course, Mr. Snead, I am willing to do as you say. I don't know anything else but to obey orders, especially from the engineer. But the truth is what sticks to the gizzard. Now pull off your governor belt and pull open the throttle, and let us see how you will come out with your own big head of steam. Turn your nose a little to one side, so it won't strike these rocks too fair.

A Dozen White Men Wounded—Two Negroes Shot to Death in Jail.

Augusta, Gå., June 28.—There was a serious riot on board the Southern Rallway train that left Augusta about 6 o'clock this morning. Just before the train stopped at the water tank at Langley, eight miles from Augusta, there was some trouble between several negroes and a white man named John McDaniel. The negroes had been drinking and were in an ugly and boisterous mood. A fight was begun and pretty soon was general between the white men and negroes in the car. Pistols and knives were called into play by both sides, and the conductor pulled the train up to the station in the hope of getting police help at Langley. As the train stopped at Langley some of the combatants rushed out and the fighting between whites and blacks became general on the train and all around the station. The negroes engaged in the fighting fied in all directions, and when the smoke of battle cleared away there were only two captured. There were ten white men with pistol or knife wounds.

When the train pulled out of the sta tion some of the combatants were still on board, and it is reported some were Graniteville, stations farther on.
Dr. W. C. Baker, of Langley, who with an assistant attended all the wounded an assistant attended all the wounded men, reports one of the negroes named Collins as cut to pieces, he having over a dozen serious knife wounds about the head and neck, but still having a living chance. The people of the town of Langley and from the sarrounding country were deeply outraged as the news spread, and the indignation grew as the crowd increased. Mutterings against the two creased. Mutterings against the two wounded negroes under arrest were heard, and as the night came on and the wounds of the white men were discussed, he conviction grew that the two negroes in the calaboose were in serious danger.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock the crowds in the streets of Langley had been greatly augmented by men coming in from all directions and the mob moved on the calaboose.

Entrance was forced and when the two wounded negroes were discovered the crowd started emptying their pistols into them and they were soon shot to death.

Widow Deceived Into Marrying a Girl.

Baltimore, Md., June 27.—Attired in a nobby suit of black, black drop-stitched socks, low-cut patent leather shoes and a stylish straw hat, Miss Lotta A. Sawyer, alias Herman G. "To the readers of the Observer the name of Dr. Boggs has long been familiar. As a correspondent he has long been valued and appreciated. And as a minister of the Gospel faithful, patient, persevering, he has been no less appreciated. His earthly race was ended at his home at Oxford, Miss., on Friday last. June 20. at the advanced age of $8 last, June 20, at the advanced age of 83 years. He was among the veterans of the students at Columbia Theological Seminary, being one among the four or five now living who graduated prior to 1847.

Abbeville, June 27.—At the reunion of the old soldiers at Pelzer on the 4th of July the old flag of that gallant and famous old command, Orr's Regiment of Rifles, will be there. Gen. R. R. Hemphill, a gallant and faithful old Confederate, will carry it up with him when he regularly for over fifty years. Onite a sissippi and Tennessee. He preached regularly for over fifty years. Quite a a number of years he labored as an evangelist, during which time he averaged as are mon a day; organized many churches, especially in the Delta portion of Mississippi, where churches were few.

C., lived to be over 90 years of age, as did also his mother. His grandparents took a prominent part in the struggle of the Revolution. His uncle, Rev. G. W.

Boggs, was a missionary to India.

"His life was marked by eminent piety and unusual familiarity with the word of God. He was remarkably gifted in prayer. Almost every one who visited him during his illness told him how his prayers were missed at the various rayers were unseed at the various grayer meetings, "He was called to endure much physica suffering during the last six months of his life, but bore it with unmurmuring patience. His vigor of mind and child-like faith were preserved to the last moment. He leaves four children and a number of grand-children.

A Card of Thanks.

The family of Mr. Aaron Eubanks wish to thank their friends and neighbors for the kindness shown them during their shock, which was caused by the sudden death of their mother, June 22th, 1992 Oakway, July 1.
