Look Out for Coughs!

The season is approaching when you will have to meet the problem of colds and coughs. Each cough is a problem that should be quickly and rightly solved, because behind it lie serious possibilities. I suggest that you keep on hand at all times a bottle of Lunney's White Pine and Spruce Expectant. I know of no better cough remedy could not know how many people have been cured by it. It is prompt, sure, safe, pleasant and thorough. Equally good for children or adults. I guarantee it; refund the money if the remedy fails. Price 25¢ and 50 cents.

$500,000 Fire in Wisconsin.

Ashland, Wis., November 22.—The Wisconsin Central Railroad dock was destroyed by fire this afternoon, the loss involved being about $525,000. In falling the dock carried with it a number of firemen and dockmen, and several lives were lost, just how many probably will not be known for several days. Several badly injured firemen were removed from the burning ruins, one of them with both legs broken.

In the next House of Representatives, there will be 208 Republicans and 178 Democrats. It is understood that all minor political distinctions have now disappeared from the House, every member arraying himself squarely with one or the other of the dominant parties.

The Populist party has passed out of existence as any considerable factor in the politics of the country. The Savannah News notes the fact that not a single one was elected to Congress, and after March 4th there will not be a Senator who has been a member of that party.

The Presidential bear hunt at Smelter, Miss., came to an end last Tuesday with the President ever getting a shot.

There are said to be more than eight million coconuts at Mobile, Ala., and the market has been so glutted as to bring about a material reduction in the price.

In Cass county, Texas, the cow-pen crop this year is reported to be great.

That many farmers will not gather the crop, believing that there will be no demand for them.

Miss Ida M. Snyder.

Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club. "If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctors' prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for."

"In consulting with my druggist he advised me to take Wine of Cardui and Dr. Ford's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

New Union Station in Atlanta.

Advices from Atlanta, Ga., report that plans are under way to build a new union passenger station at the intersection of Mitchell street and Madison avenue, on ground owned by the Central of Georgia and the Southern railways. Mr. H. M. Steele, Chief Engineer of the Central of Georgia, is to make the preliminary survey, assisted by the engineers of other railroads interested.

The proposed depot will have a train shed 750 feet long by 250 feet wide, with ten tracks, and it will be open at each end for trains to arrive or depart in either direction. The depot building, 200x400 feet, is to be five or more stories in height, and contain the waiting rooms, ticket offices, etc., besides offices for railroad officials.

The Atlanta Union Station Company is to be formed by the various railroads entering Atlanta for the purpose of constructing the new terminal. It is expected that work will begin about February 1, and that the new station will be completed within fifteen months thereafter.

IN SHADOW OF THE BLUE RIDGE.

Walhalla is Nestled at the Very Foot of Nature's Everlasting Monuments.

(J. T. E., in Charleston Sunday News.)

A little time may be profitably spent by every man in "looking backward" and recalling the joyous days of youth, and to the traveller, or wanderer, if you please, there is nothing more conducive to serious thought, nothing more wholesome and inspiring, than to return to the home of childhood and look with the eyes of maturer age upon the scenes which have long since become but a recollection.

After an absence of some fifteen years from the now prosperous and bustling little town of Walhalla, it is my privilege and good fortune to return for a brief visit and note the changes that have taken place in the last decade and a half. I note changes everywhere, and it is with a feeling of satisfaction and a sense of pride that I find these changes are all in the direction of progress.

A long stroll this afternoon gave me ample opportunity to observe some of the changes time has been working—changes in people, manners, customs, buildings, and even in the country itself—everything different from what it was when, as a boy, I "lived, moved, and had my being" in this section, blessed and favored to an unusual degree by the Creator. Yes, changes everywhere—except in the grand scenery presented by these deep-blue and everlasting hills, in whose inviting shadows I spent an hour communing with nature, recalling the past and tasting the bitter-sweetness of a varied reminiscence.

I remember the old town of fifteen years ago—busy in its way—but still little more than a sleepy village. With its one long, straight street, running almost directly east and west, its buildings scattered and built of wood, it did not present an appearance inviting to the capitalist or to the laborer. Time and fire have made great changes in this respect. The growth of the village to a town of 1,400 inhabitants has caused a spreading out for three or four blocks north and south of Main street, giving a good proportion to the town. Then, too, brick and mortar have taken the place of wood in the construction of business houses, and where, in my boyhood days, the business of the place was conducted in an indifferent manner and in rather shabby frame houses, to-day it is carried on in handsome and substantial brick structures by practical business men, who use approved and advanced methods in every department. There are, I believe, twenty-nine brick stores and buildings in the town, with a good prospect for others in the near future.

The citizens of fifteen years ago were just as good—doubtless better in some respects—as those of to-day; they were of that sturdy German mould, industrious, hard-working and economic, but not progressive. In their descendants are apparent to a marked degree these same qualities, and added to them is a spirit of progressiveness that promises well for the future of the place.

MODERN HOTEL NEEDED.

The old Biemann Hotel building, known all over the United States, is among a few of the old landmarks that have served their day and several generations and ought to have their epitaphs written. Mr. Beard, the manager of the house, now well known as the Walhalla Hotel, runs an excellent hostelry; the rooms are neat and clean, the table abundantly supplied with the best of everything; the host, his family and guests are congenial, but he is hampered by an antiquated building that ought to be replaced by a modern hotel.

The citizens, I judge from remarks made by some, are becoming alive to the great advantages to accrue to the town from a new and modern hotel, managed as well as the present one is, and will not delay much longer in the matter of securing it. The town owes it to herself to have a hotel that will be a standing advertisement, not alone by its excellence as regards the table, but as to outward appearance and modern conveniences as well. Men with large and generous hearts are often misjudged on account of a rough and unpolished appearance.

Hotels and men are quite closely associated, and while those acquainted with the qualities of the "heart" of the Walhalla Hotel can easily overlook the rough appearance of the building, there is nothing in its outward aspect to attract the stranger. In this connection it may be of interest to note that a portion of the present hotel building,

(a part of the dining room,) though apparently not different from the main body of the structure, is one of the log houses erected by the first settlers of the town over fifty years ago. Stripped of its weather boarding and paint, with its large and closely-fitting logs, this little piece of rough carpentry would call forth from the few remaining aged German citizens many interesting reminiscences of the hardships and ceaseless toil of those whose pluck and energy laid the foundation for one of the most prosperous towns of South Carolina.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH.

Tourists passing through this section of the Carolina mountains have seldom lost an opportunity to give graphic descriptions of the quaint little German town at the foot of the mountains. But the day for this sort of diversion is fast passing away, if indeed it is not already gone. Here and there one can find specimens of antiquity in architecture or meet and talk with one of the citizens of the town in its babyhood, but both are passing away—the one at the hands of the progressive young citizen, who has caught the spirit of the times and must push forward; the other under the gentle and mellowing influence of time. The pages of the book of the present are slowly being loosed from their binding and fled away among the records of the past—sacred records that will live through the years to come in the memories of those whose privilege it has been to read even but a few of their inspiring pages.

But enough of this! I will let "the dead past bury its dead" and note some of the things of the living present.

A MODEL SCHOOL BUILDING.

One of the marked steps forward in the recent erection and equipment of a handsome brick public school building at a cost of something over $8,000. This building is really a model and a fitting memorial of the age of progress. The plans must have been drawn by a master architect and carried out to the letter by the contractor. The result is one of the handsomest and most substantial school buildings in the State. It is situated on a spot that has been for years reserved as the site for an institution of learning. Newberry College stood on the same site during and for a short time after the war; later Alder College was founded and lived, flourished for a season and died in the same frame building used by Newberry College; still later the Walhalla High School had its day within the same walls and was kept going, with various degrees of success, until, in October, 1888, the building was destroyed by fire. Since then other schools have been taught in a smaller building on the same ground. The site is a grant to the town from the late D. Biemann so long as the property is used for educational purposes. The erection of the present substantial and almost fire-proof building secures the site to the town in perpetuity. Under the excellent management of a thoroughly earnest and progressive superintendent and an able corps of teachers the school gives great promise for the future.

MODERN PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

In public buildings also the town is quite fortunate. The new county jail is a credit to the town and every citizen of the county can well point with pride to their two modern public buildings, the court house and jail. Their new and clean appearance suggests to the stranger prosperity, and the air of prosperity inspires confidence. With all the improvements that have taken place within the last few years, and the constant work going on that direction at present, there is much to inspire confidence and attract attention to this ideal spot for health and happiness—this beautiful town of Walhalla, with her glorious past, her prosperous present, her bright and promising future. Long may she flourish, grow and extend her borders.

Delinquents Brought to Time.

A paper in Golden, Colorado, raked in many delinquents on the ground of this eloquent appeal: "You may approximate the stars in a nail keg, hang the ocean on a grapevine to dry, wipe the nose of a cyclone with a towel, cut off the tail end of a tornado for a keepsake, put the sky in the ground to soak, unbuckle the bellyband of eternity and open up the sun and moon as a health resort, but never be deluded with the idea that you can escape the other side of purgatory if you don't pay for your paper."

Walhalla, S. C., November 15.

White Girls as Waiters.

The Hotel Sumter now employs white help only. The negro cook, waiters and chambermaids were discharged to-day and at dinner the white help took charge of the several departments. Joseph G. Freoli, a French chef, has charge of the kitchen. He comes from New York, where he has been connected with the culinary departments of several of the largest and best known of the hotels of that city. Mrs. May Young, head waitress, has charge of the dining room and she is assisted by six young ladies who have had experience as waitresses in hotels. Two chambermaids complete the hotel force, all of whom were engaged in New York by Mr. Parilla this week while he was in that city, and when he returned last night they accompanied him. The employment of white help exclusively is a decided innovation in the South, except in the case of the winter tourists hotels, and it will be watched with great interest by all commercial hotel managers in this and adjacent States. If the experiment is satisfactory and successful at the Hotel Sumter it will not be long before a number of other hotels in this State will get rid of negro help and employ white girls as waiters.—Sumter Watchman, November 6.

A Good Story Never Dies.

Twenty years ago Eli Perkins used to make his audiences scream with this Irish story—but other and better stories have taken its place:

Michael Donnan walked into the sick room of Patrick Kelley. Patrick lay there very pale, with eyes closed and we heard Michael exclaim:

"Howdy Moses, Pat, its murtherin' ill ye're lookin'! Fwot in the name av th' kraken's the matter?"

"Michael Donnan! an' is it yourself?"

"'Yes."

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold in its fifty-cent and one-dollar size by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size.

es. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Twins at the Age of Fifty Years.

The happiest man in Anderson county at the present writing is Mr. W. W. Moore, a well known citizen of the Piedmont section. Mr. Moore was married in 1876, just 26 years ago. He and his wife have lived happily together ever since, but no children had ever come to bless their home. Mr. Moore is on the shady side of the half century mark and his wife is in her fiftieth year. Mr. Moore had about made up his mind that the fate would be unkind to him and that he would remain childless; but it is a long lane that has no turning and last Thursday night Mrs. Moore presented her husband with twins, a boy and a girl. Both the mother and little ones are doing nicely and Mr. Moore himself is in good shape. These facts are given by people of that community and Mr. Moore himself was in the city yesterday. He is a brother-in-law of Mr. J. F. Clardy. Mr. Moore is naturally overjoyed on account of his great good fortune. "Anderson people are going ahead building cotton mills and trolley lines," he said while here yesterday, "but the Piedmont section of this county is not to be sneezed at. I wouldn't swap my fortunes for all the cotton mills and trolley lines in the country."—Anderson Mail, November 6.

Equal to a Bull Fight.

At the recent State Fair in Columbia one of the principal attractions was a football game between the Clemson College and the South Carolina College teams. The price of a seat to witness the game was fifty cents. After the game had gone on for some time a young lady on the stand asked her uncle, an elderly gentleman, if he was ready to go, and he said he was not quite ready. She then said if he was interested she would wait on him. He rejoined that it would save him a trip to Cuba or Mexico to see a bull fight. The game was enough like it to save the time and expense of the trip.—Abbeville Medium.

Jocasse Observations.

Jocasse, S. C., November 27.—Mr. W. M. Brown is having lumber dressed now to build his new storehouse. Lookout, Salem, he has already got best of the trade and when he gets his new storehouse built he will get it all.

The school at Jocasse is still under the control of Miss Annie Freeman. The patrons all like her for a school teacher, for she is making a good success of it.

Misses Rosa and Anna Crow and Messrs. R. A. Talley and Andrew Cash visited friends in Pickens county last Sunday.

Mr. J. T. Cash raised a pumpkin this year that weighs sixty pounds. Beat that, Mr. Corbin, if you can for the old time pumpkin.

Mr. H. M. Whitmore, of Piedmont, and his nephew, Dickson Whitmore, of Newry, were in our burg a few days ago visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. S. J. Crow went hunting the other night and caught three opossums and two coons. Hurrah for Mr. Crow and his little spotted fies.

Mr. W. M. Brown is off now on a trip hunting the man that has horses for sale.

There will be a Christmas tree at Mt. Carmel church, near Jocasse post office, on Christmas eve day. Everybody is invited to come with their presents ready. The managers will begin their work at 1 o'clock. The doors will be open at 6.30 p. m. Santa Claus.

Salem Items.

Salem, S. C., November 27.—Farmers are pretty well through gathering crops. Corn is turning out well.

Mr. R. F. Whitmore, who has been sick so long, is still confined to his room.

Mrs. Mary E. Holden is very sick at the home of Wm. Burgess, of Jocasse.

Mr. J. B. Alexander and wife have been sick. They are improving.

Mr. D. T. Madden's face is wreathed with smiles. Its ten-pound boy.

Mr. J. S. Cannon is smiling, too. Another girl at his house.

Mr. J. Barker has done a fine business with his gin in Salem this season.

Messrs. J. S. John and Elisha Holden passed here with a nice drove of 54 turkeys last week. They found ready sale for them at Newry.

Mr. Stiles Alexander, who accepted a situation on the Southern Railroad as flagman, has made his fortune and come home. He did not like it. His friends welcome him back.

Mr. J. L. Talley is on the sick list. Mr. R. A. Hudson and family have moved to Walhalla.

Messrs. James and Luther Crow, of North Carolina, expect soon to begin selling goods at Salem.

Three cheers for our little town! May all who are moving improve their condition.

A merry Thanksgiving to The Courier and all of its readers. Hard Times.
