most expensive, the most bloody and the most prolonged of any in modern times the virile strength, energy and manhood of its people, hardened and seasoned by the severity of the conflict, were directed to material advancement. Every branch of human industry felt the impetus.

Standing upon the threshold of the new year is a fit position to take a short view of the past, to consider the present and to look to the future. The United States is now, beyond question, the most powerful nation on the globe. Its vast material interests are unparalleled in the history of nations.

So great has been the rapidity of the industrial development that the means of transportation have hardly kept pace, notwithstanding the increase in mileage from 94,000 miles in 1880 to 200,000 miles at present, and notwithstanding that by the use of heavy rails, powerful engines, strong bridges and capacious cars each engine is made to do seven times the duty required of one in 1870, and each freight car carries on an average of three times the freight then carried.

Meanwhile foreign commerce has grown to a magnitude challenging credulity, and its figures teach us to appreciate still more the greatness of the commercial, manufacturing and agricultural advancement of our country, and to emphasize the extraordinary development of human energy and human achievement that have taken place within a generation.

Board of Regents Makes Appeal.

The Board of Regents of the Hospital for the Insane held their annual meeting yesterday and prepared the report to the Legislature. One very important recommendation will be submitted to the General Assembly.

The hospital is taxed to its utmost and the board feels more than ever the necessity for economizing space. There are many patients cared for as patients who properly belong elsewhere. They are indeed wards of the State in their helplessness, but is this the place for them?

There are in the latter institution persons of depleted mentality, idiots, imbeciles and others as harmless, who could be cared for in the county homes and who should be in order to make room for those more deserving of the medical attention of the State Hospital.

The board endeavor to impress upon the General Assembly that the constitution makes it mandatory for each county to have a home for its dependents, and it is urged that the Legislature take some steps toward developing the several county institutions into places fit for the reception of harmless and helpless feeble minded persons.

These recommendations are in keeping with the policy of the superintendent, Dr. J. W. Babcock, whose administration has been most successful and most satisfactory. He is frequently placed in a very trying position. With the institution crowded, he is constantly besought to take "just one more," when sometimes that one should be taken care of by the county.

During the year now ending, one of the oldest and most useful members of the board has passed away—Mr. Anthony White, of Sumter. He has been succeeded by Dr. W. W. Ray, of Richland county. The term of Dr. B. W. Taylor, of Columbia, expires in the year at hand.

LIFE OF A COAL MINER.

Rev. John McDowell, who was once a coal miner, gives the following sketch of his life:

"I'm 12 years old, goin' on 13," said the boy to the boss of the breaker. He didn't look more than 10, and he was only 9, but the law said he must be 12 to get a job.

From the time he enters the breaker there is a rule of progress that is almost always followed. Once a breaker boy, the upward growth of boy to man, breaker boy to miner, the descent from manhood to old age, from miner to breaker boy; that is the rule.

It is not a hard life, but it is confining and irksome. Sitting on his uncomfortable seat, bending constantly over the passing stream of coal, his hands soon become cut and seared by the sharp pieces of slate and coal, while his finger nails are soon worn to the quick from contact with the iron chute.

The ambition of every breaker boy is to enter the mines and at the first opportunity he begins there as a door boy—never over 14 years of age and often under. The work of the door boy is not so laborious as that in the breaker, but is more monotonous. He must be on hand when the first trip of cars enters in the morning and remain until the last comes out at night.

It is an endless routine of dull plodding work from 9 years until death—a sort of voluntary life imprisonment. Few escape. Once they begin, they continue to live out their commonplace, low-levelled existence, knowing nothing better.

Just as the breaker boy wants to be a door boy, the door boy wants to be a driver. When the mules are kept in the mines, as they usually are, the driver boy must go down the shaft in time to clean and harness his mule, bring him to the foot of the shaft and hitch him to a trip of empty cars before 7 o'clock.

When the driver reaches the age of twenty he becomes either a runner or a laborer in the mines, or frequently the latter. The runner is the conductor who collects the loaded cars and directs the driver. The laborer is employed by the miner, subject to the approval of the superintendent, to load the cars with the coal which has been blasted by the miner.

There are 24,000 laborers in the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania, each one of whom is looking forward to becoming a miner in the technical sense of the word—that is, the employer of a laborer. To do this a laborer must have had two years' experience in practical mining and be able to pass an examination before the district board.

ing from twelve to fifteen tons of coal. The laborer's work is often made difficult by the water and rock which are found in large quantities in coal veins.

His dangers are many. He may be crushed to death at any time by the falling roof, burned to death by the exploding of gas, or blown to pieces by a premature blast. So dangerous is his work that he is debared from all ordinary life insurance. In no part of the country will you find so many crippled boys and broken-down men.

Hunter-Sheldon Wedding.

Newberry, December 29.—Editors Courier: One of the most eventful occasions of the season was solemnized at the home of Mr. Jacob B. Fellers on the evening of December 25th, just as the king of day had shed his last rays of glimmering light in the far east, and darkness was fast overspreading the myriad of inhabitants. To the beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, most skillfully rendered by Miss Annie May Bedenbaugh, the bridal party entered the handsome and beautifully decorated parlor, led by Rev. Williamson. First came Miss Beattie Wheeler, of Prosperity, and Dr. J. I. Bedenbaugh, of Augusta; Miss Jessie Glenn, of Anderson, and Mrs. W. H. Faden, of Newberry; Miss Ethel Payser and Mr. Wm. Glenn, of Anderson; Miss Minnie Fellers, of Prosperity; and Mr. Leslie Stribling, of Seneca; Miss Mary Sheldon and Prof. J. E. Hunter, of Clemson College. Then entered the bride and groom and Rev. Williamson, of Newberry, in most eloquent and impressive words, united Miss Veda Sheldon and Mr. G. F. Hunter in the holy bonds of wedlock.

Again the wedding march pealed forth in eloquent strains, when the bridal party repaired to the dining room, followed by the guests of the evening who had been so fortunate as to be present on this happy occasion. It was now when your eyes beheld a most lovely picture. Everything beautiful and attractive was on this heavily laden table and when we had finished our supper, we found these not only beautiful, but delicious. Everything that could tempt an appetite was to be found there. The bride and her attendants were in pure white, and the groom and groomsmen in full dress suits. I will not attempt to describe each dress, but suffice it to say all were lovely. The presents were numerous, beautiful and costly. The young couple have the best wishes of many friends for a life of joy and happiness. Guest.

Soda Water Men in Trouble.

The internal revenue laws of the United States provide that persons dealing in beverages containing alcohol shall procure a United States government internal revenue license before selling such beverages.

It is an endless routine of dull plodding work from 9 years until death—a sort of voluntary life imprisonment. Few escape. Once they begin, they continue to live out their commonplace, low-levelled existence, knowing nothing better.

When the internal revenue law of the United States provide that persons dealing in beverages containing alcohol shall procure a United States government internal revenue license before selling such beverages.

There was more trouble in store, however, for the druggists doing business in towns where there is a regular liquor license. These men discovered that if they were to take out a government license for the sale of liquor they would be obliged to turn around and take out a local license also, which would cost them anywhere from $500 to $1,500 per year, according to the license rates of the different places, and, in addition, would place them squarely upon a saloon basis, all for the sake of selling a few glasses of soda in the summer. It is understood that the manufacturers of the fruit juices sold at soda fountains will come to the rescue before the soda water seaborne arrives and place upon the market juices that contain not even a trace of alcohol.—Washington Post.
