WALHALLA, S. C.:
WEDNESDAY, JAN. 7, 1903.

THE HIRED BURGLAR
"It's preposterous!"
"Idiotic!"
"Assinine!"
"But it's a fact, nevertheless," added the first speaker.

So it was. There had been an epidemic of petty burglaries in the town of Benton during the late fall. The articles stolen were of trifling value, never money, usually food, taken from barns and hen sheds, but the constant fear of possible midnight awakenings put the good people of the town into a state bordering upon panic. The unknown thief might grow more ambitious and more daring. He might invade their very houses. Whose house would be first selected as the object of his unwelcome attentions?

The burglar, or burglars—whoever they were—evidently were not professionals; at least, up to the present they had not ventured after bigger game. Nevertheless, the uncertainty of the thing made the nervous more nervous and introduced the hitherto uninitiated into the knowledge that they possessed nerves after all.

The board of selectmen, three worthy citizens, feeling the popular pulse, and realizing that election day would come in a few months, determined to take active steps to ferret out the despoiler of the town's barns and hen roosts. The step which, after mature deliberation, the select men decided to take was not as a unanimous vote of the triumvirate. Selectman Dorcas had raised a dissenting voice, accompanying it by a sarcastic allusion as to the sanity of his colleagues. Mr. Dorcas kept a general store. Among a host of other things, he sold revolvers and ammunition, the sale of which during the past two months had wonderfully increased; so that it is barely possible that he was giving a thought or two to his own interests as well as to those of the town of Benton.

The motion of Selectman North was: "Mr. Chairman, as the burglar we are all so interested in catching, seems, from evidence laid before our eyes—mine, at any rate—to be well acquainted with the barns and hen roosts of the town, and appears, therefore to be a resident, I move that we order all residents of the town—men, women and children—to prove where they were between the hours of 10 and 12 o'clock last Tuesday night, at which time, as we all know, occurred the last, or rather the latest, of these pestiferous burglaries."

Almost out of breath Mr. North had sat down to give place to Mr. Dorcas, who had jumped to his feet and cast a glance of withering scorn upon his colleague. But Mr. Swain, the chairman, cast the deciding vote, and the resolutions were carried.

As might be expected, the result of the special meeting of the board of selectmen was not received with unanimous favor by the people of Benton. The town was not very large, but it was large enough (what town isn't?) to contain more than one estimable citizen, who, for good and sufficient reasons, did not care to have his fellow townsmen—to say nothing of his wife—know where he had spent a certain hour of a certain night and what he had been engaged in. Of course, those fortunate citizens who chanced to have nothing to conceal did not see anything very preposterous, idiotic or assinine in the latest exhibition of acumen on the part of their chosen law-makers.

Deacon Thomas Snow, however, was not one of these; neither was his brother-in-law, Zenas White nor Amos Bristow. When Snow declared that the selectmen had acted in a preposterous manner his opinion was echoed, through the medium of varying epithets, by White and Bristow.

"Can we," demanded Snow, emphasizing the pronoun, "afford—"
"Dare," interpolated White.
"—dare to admit where we were and what we did last Tuesday night?"

The others groaned, and White said: "What would folks say?"
"What, indeed!"
"Let me think this thing out," said Snow.

Nobody objected, so Snow thought. "I don't believe such a monstrous order can be carried out; the people will rebel."

"If you do," put in Bristow, "our wives and others, for that very reason, will be more eager to find out what the authorities—confound 'em!—want to know than those idiots themselves."

"Right," agreed his companions, soberly and laconically.
"I have a plan by which we may be able to get out of this scrape," said Snow.
"What is it?"
"We must find the burglar. Once found it will not be necessary to force us or anybody else to tell what would get us into no end of trouble."

"It's a brilliant idea," commented Bristow, sarcastically. "How shall we catch that evasive gentleman?"
"Hanged if I know! If we don't find him—here's an amendment to the plan—we must get a substitute for him. Money will enable us to do so."

"There's more sense in that," said Bristow.
"So I think. There must be at least one man in town—perhaps two—who for a couple of hundred dollars would be willing to acknowledge himself a thief and serve a few months in prison if convicted."

"Burglary, especially in the night time, is a pretty serious offense," reminded White. "Still, the fellow never actually broke in anywhere."
"We can hire a good, smart lawyer to defend him and perhaps get him off," suggested Snow. "All we want is to prevent inquiry as to our whereabouts last Tuesday night."
"A lawyer," grumbled White; "more money!"
"Else more trouble," observed Bristow.

"Here comes a tramp," cried Snow, suddenly; "the very chap we want. A warm cell ought to be a welcome change from the cold barns and colder haystacks that he has probably had to put up with these cold nights. Let's sound him."

The trio were standing in the public square. The stranger drew near, a ragged, hungry looking fellow.
"Hello, my man!" hailed Snow; "don't go that way—it leads to the lock-up. Come here. How would you like to earn a couple of hundred dollars without working?"

The tramp opened his eyes in amazement. Snow was forced to repeat his question.
"Wot doin'?" asked the stranger.
"There's been a burglar doing no end of mischief in this town of late, and one of our friends is wrongfully suspected. Now, we want you to act as a substitute—a sort of voluntary scapegoat—to save the good name of our friend. If you will consent to go to the police station, give yourself up and admit you are the thief, we will make you a present of $200. Good pay; what do you say?"

The gentleman of the road smiled, pondered a minute or two, and then replied: "Make it t'ree hundred, gents; den I'm yer man. I might hafter go to prison for a year or two, you see."
"No such thing. We don't want to see you punished so severely. We'll hire a lawyer to defend you. He'll keep you from getting a severe sentence; that's what we'll pay him for. You may get off scot free."

"Lawyer be blowed! Say t'ree hundred or shut up!"
White, the penurious, nodded assent.
"All right," said Snow; "three hundred is it? Remember, you are the burglar who has been operating in town for the past two months. You needn't admit that, of course. You are simply the fellow that walked into old Brown's hen shed last Tuesday night—remember the date!—and took a couple of his hens."

"I won't forget it. Now wot about de bribe?"
"We'll pay you the money just as soon as you confess and are locked up."
"An' have de jail blokes take de boodle away from me? Nit!"
"Well, what? Will a check, post-dated do?"
"Naw. I want cash in advance. I'll send de money by mail to a feller I kin trust. Den I'll go and give myself up an' take my medicine. You gents can keep yer eyes on me all de time an' if I try to fool yer, yer can tell de police I confessed to bein' de thief de want."

So it came to pass that Luke Varnen, after disposing of the $300 contributed by Snow & Co., went to the police station and confessed that he was the much wanted thief. He had entered Mr. Brown's hen house on the previous Tuesday night and stolen some of that gentleman's hens. Varden's case was sent to a higher court; in due time he was put on trial, convicted, and sentenced to the penitentiary for eight months. More than one person in Benton breathed more freely.

One day early in the following summer, Deacon Snow, who had quite forgotten all about the burglar's substitute, he received a letter which caused him first to swear, then to laugh. He gave the missive to his brother-in-law. White read: "Mr. Thomas Snow and Friends: Gents—I desire to thank you again for the $300 you kindly gave me eight months ago for acting as a substitute for the Benton burglar. It may surprise you to hear that I was really the burglar you gents wanted to catch. When I met you I was on my way to the police station to give myself up, as I had got tired of my line of business and wanted to be sent away for the winter. The 300 plunk will work in handy for my summer vacation. Yours, with thanks, Luke Varden."

"So the hundred dollars I won at poker in Feffer's road house that Tuesday night went to that scoundrel of a tramp," ejaculated White.
"My net loss murmured Snow reminiscently, "was one hundred and fifty—one hundred to the substitute and fifty lost at poker. What will Bristow say? His net loss was one hundred and twenty-five."

Such being the case it is not very difficult to guess what Bristow said.
When John D. Rockefeller went down to his breakfast a morning or two ago he found lying beside his plate a plain envelope addressed to him. In this envelope was a check for $4,000,000, representing Mr. Rockefeller's share of the earnings of the Standard Oil Company for the three months last past. Having noted the size of the check, Mr. Rockefeller no doubt turned to his carefully weighed out meal of crackers and milk—he can eat nothing else. No doubt he would have willingly given the check for the ability to eat a square meal with the appetite and pleasure of the suburban country boy in patched trousers.

And save your health.
An Ossified Woman.
Rome, N. Y., December 30.—Miss Stella Ewing, one of the ossified women who for ten years have been living wonders to physicians and scientists, died to-day, aged 30 years. At an early age she was afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism, which physicians failed to relieve. At the age of 25 she lost the use of her limbs and eminent specialists said she was gradually turning to stone. During the last ten years of her life Miss Ewing was totally blind and unable to move a muscle. A sister, Mrs. Emma Ewing Palmer, is afflicted in the same manner.

Knife in His Brain—Still Living.
Asheville, N. C., December 30.—With a knife in his brain for a week to the depth of one and five-eighths inches, Rufus Jones, of Balsam Mountain, here, still lives, with a chance for recovery.
In a fight last week with "Mont" Duncan he was struck above the left ear with a knife and the blade penetrated his skull and entered the brain. It broke and remained in the man's head until last night, when it was removed and the skull trepanned. The physicians say the man has a chance for recovery.

Deadly Grasp of Grip Prostrated Me.
Dr. Miles' Nervine Built Up My Shattered Nerves and Gave Me an Appetite.
Of the millions of people, who today suffer from nervous or heart weakness, a large percentage trace the cause directly to deadly LaGrippe. It is a germ disease, and makes a direct attack upon the nerves, putting an extra strain upon them, and, in some cases, at the lowest ebb, if LaGrippe has left you with a shattered nervous system, with loss of appetite, lack of energy, insomnia, frequent headaches and morbid tendencies, with Dr. Miles' Nervine. It will undo all that grip has done, bring back appetite, rest and restore the nerves to their normal activity. I want to write this testimonial for the benefit of those who have suffered from the dreaded disease—LaGrippe. I suffered severely from it, and nothing I tried seemed to benefit me in any way, shape or form (I suffered almost death) and finally my daughter recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine to me and I can truthfully say from the first day I felt better than in weeks. It gave me relief, built up my shattered nerves and gave me a splendid appetite. I cannot speak too highly of it and want to say, each and every word I can, that Dr. Miles' Nervine will undo all that grip has done, bring back appetite, rest and restore the nerves to their normal activity. Reflections for the New Year.
The year nineteen hundred and two has gone, and with it have gone all its opportunities, and things that were possible have been rendered impossible. Readful, has the past year been a successful one with you? Have you accomplished as much as you should? In other words, are you satisfied with the results of last year? Has the good you have done equalled the amount of air you have breathed, the water you have drunk, the food you have taken? If not, your life has not been a success, inasmuch as you have not produced a fair profit for the amount of Divine goodness and mercy bestowed upon you. In summing up the business of the old year, you have found yourself bankrupt.

The past year has been one of plenty, and every industry seems to be in a state of great prosperity. The crops have been better than for many years past. We have been wonderfully blessed by a merciful Heavenly Father who doeth all things well. If we had done our part as well and as faithfully as God has done His, the world could not contain the glorious results.

Have you made a failure in business? No doubt, some of you have had difficulties to contend with—difficulties which got the advantage of you. As I look around at the accomplishments of others, I cannot help lamenting the mistakes of my own life. But I am going to try to live more for my country, and take Gillilan's line for a motto: "O—live thy life for the living. As the dead have lived for you."

But it is not my purpose to dwell too much on the past. Let us turn to the new year and see if we can get a glimpse of what is in store for us. We are leaving the old year behind with its trials and difficulties, but that does not mean that we are leaving behind us all life's sorrow. The year we are just entering will doubtless bring an equal amount of trouble.

This is the time for making resolutions, both good and bad. These resolutions are very easy made, and would be as easy kept if we would just go about it in the right way.

To Save Cotton Crop.
Six hundred Texas cotton growers and scientific men met in Dallas the other day to discuss the boll weevil pest and take steps to check it. It was resolved to ask the legislature for an appropriation to help in the fight against the weevil, which is doing annually about $10,000,000 damage to the cotton crop, and to pass a bill for the protection of insectivorous birds. It was demonstrated by scientific men that the increase of insect damage to Texas was largely due to the slaughter of birds that formerly destroyed the insects.

Florida Frost Does No Harm.
Jacksonville, Fla., December 28.—The cool wave has done no material damage to any crops in Florida. While a temperature of from 27 to 30 degrees above zero was experienced at some sections on the west coast last night, frost warnings had been sent out in ample time and practically all the vegetable growers here made ample provision for their crops. The cold was not severe enough, nor was it of sufficient duration, to damage the citrus trees or the fruit.

Moody Will Contest.
Asheville, N. C., December 27.—Congressman Moody, Republican, has served notice on Congressman Gudgeon, Democrat, that he will contest Gudgeon's seat. Gudgeon asserts that Moody's charges about fraudulent voting on the part of Democrats are totally without foundation and is preparing to file his answer to the attack made upon him.

Horse Stolen Near Laurens.
Laurens, December 28.—Yesterday a white mare, medium size, red mane and legs, following the Layton Carnival, stole a horse from Dr. Westmorland's new made stable, near Laurens. The animal was taken to a livery man here for $35. He was last seen in Clinton at 9 o'clock last night.

Thinks Cleveland May Run.
Washington, December 27.—Gen. B. E. Tracy, member of the Senate, and Grover Cleveland may again be a candidate for the Presidency. In an interview Tracy said that the Democrats are still in a state of demoralization and that ex-President Cleveland has scarcely a capable leader.

THE APPLE ORCHARD.
There never has been a time when our great nurseries have been in better condition to supply patrons with the best varieties, absolutely free from disease, all growing freely.
The York Imperial,

It may be that you will not enter upon the duties of this year under the same condition that you began last year. Maybe some of your loved ones have passed away during the year. Many a sorrowing husband starts out upon the duties of 1903 without the gentle helpmate who has cheered and encouraged him for so many years. Many a poor woman looks out upon the bleak indifferent world and realizes the need of the strong arm of her husband, which has for so many years been the means of her support, but which is now numb in the clay. Her dear little ones are to be clothed, fed, educated—all by her own efforts. Many boys who read this will, perhaps, feel the need of that dear mother who has counselled them and kissed their cheeks on so many New Year's Days, and whom they have made so many promises been kept? If not, think of the matter seriously, and at this season of good resolutions resolve to live that noble life and to do those noble deeds for which she has so often prayed. The fact that this is your last New Year's Day without an animate one to greater zeal in carrying out her wishes. These thoughts should prompt us to always be kind to those we have with us, for

"When the flowers bloom again
Some of us may no longer;
Earthly prospects all are vain,
Change is written everywhere."
Margaret A. Richard's verse will be very appropriate here:

"Consider the dear ones
Residing with you,
Residing unto each
Full duty to do."
Life is a serious thing. It seems a very short time from New Year's Day to another. The years are passing rapidly by, and we should exert every nerve to do our part of the work of upbuilding the world. Time used to appear to me in a different light to what it does now. It seems only a few days since I was a little boy in knee breeches, but I am now thrown out into the world to "shift" for myself.

"There were days of my youth that I like to recall.
When I inhaled the gayest pleasure
And bliss;
And hereafter I'll count them the dearest
When I remember them over me each night
For a kiss."
In conclusion I will say, may the old Courier continue its course of prosperity and usefulness. Wish in all its readers a happy New Year, I am very truly,
Rhet Doyle.

Anthracite Commission Get Liberal Pay.
As arranged by a Congressional conference committee payment for services of members and clerks of the Anthracite Strike Commission seems to be fairly balanced. Commissioners not in Government employ—Messrs. Clark, Parker and Spaulding will get $4,000 a year and $15 per day for expenses, while those already on the Federal pay roll—Judge Gray, General Wilson and Commissioner Carroll—are to receive a stated extra allowance of $15 per day, and in addition $15 per day for expenses. Government clerks serving on the commission will receive an extra allowance of $12 per day, while other employees will be paid as the Commission may determine. Thus the letter of the law is observed and an ample outlet assured for the $50,000 appropriation designed for the use of the Commission in providing legally for such double payments all that is necessary is a distinct legislative authority for the appropriation, coupled with an explicit statement that it is designed to cover certain specified allowances.

Railroad Building for the Year.
Chicago, December 28.—According to the Railroad Gazette, railroad building in the United States for 1902 aggregated 6,026 miles, a total not exceeded in any year since 1887. Second track and electric and electric lines are not included. Oklahoma leads with 670 miles of new lines. General Wilson and Commissioner Carroll are to receive a stated extra allowance of $15 per day, and in addition $15 per day for expenses. Government clerks serving on the commission will receive an extra allowance of $12 per day, while other employees will be paid as the Commission may determine. Thus the letter of the law is observed and an ample outlet assured for the $50,000 appropriation designed for the use of the Commission in providing legally for such double payments all that is necessary is a distinct legislative authority for the appropriation, coupled with an explicit statement that it is designed to cover certain specified allowances.

Caleb Powers' Appeal.
Georgetown, Ky., December 28.—Ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers, who had two trials and now awaits in jail the verdict of the grand jury in the murder of the late Governor Campbell, has issued the following appeal to the public:
"I have recently had written a number of letters to different States asking for financial aid in my coming trial for alleged complicity in the Goebel murder. A portion of the press has through a misunderstanding of the facts, attempted to thwart my plan for raising the much needed money which to defend myself in contending a report that these letters were not genuine, because signed by different persons for me. It is true that all of the letters are genuine, and different persons, because it was impossible for one person to send them out in the limited time before my next trial. But all of the letters are genuine, and have been continuously in the jail of this State for nearly three years. My means are exhausted. The generosity of Kentucky is the only hope I have left. I am a former so-called trialer. In a few weeks I am again to be tried for my own part in the late Governor Campbell's murder. I am now in jail in the outside of Kentucky."

Inducements for Tourists.
To induce tourists from the East, North and West to visit Florida and other Southern resorts, each year the Southern Railway undertakes to do a little more than in previous years to make the resorts of Florida and the South more attractive to the people of the East, North and West and the trains that have ever been operated in the South.

A Southern Case for Roosevelt.
Jas. Atkinson, a negro of Rome, Ga., has sent a walking card, carved by himself, to President Roosevelt for a New Year's gift. On the card is a picture of a rather large one, are 103 images. Twelve of the images are of people and a number of them are negroes. These images begin at the top of the card and include George Washington, President Roosevelt, Queen Victoria, Mrs. Ida McMillan, wife of the late President, and Christ on the cross. There are 15 owls, 3 dogs and 6 houses on the card. The other images include a butterfly, honey bee, house fly, bear, ox, horse, monkey, chair, pot, ax, hand and balance, cannon, 7 small guns, ship, 4 flags, horn, 3 kings, book, knife, pen, dog, pig, shoe, book, turtle, giraffe, fish, rose, three links, insignia of Odd Fellows, chipmunk, sheep, hen, squirrel, Mexican badge, heart, star, moon, umbrella, 4 figures 0 letters, snake and rope. The images are well carved. How long Atkinson was engaged in carving cannot be known, but probably many months. He sent along the knife with which he did the work. An ordinary knife that would cost about 25 cents, Atkinson is an ex-slave and was born in Georgia.

Night Force for Pendleton Cotton Mill.
The Pendleton cotton mill, one of the oldest and most successful cotton mills in the State, is sharing in the general prosperity that is coming to all the other cotton mills, and the management has decided to put on a night force of hands. This will be done at once, and it is necessary by the increased demand for its products—which consists of yarn exclusively. No enlargement of the plant is contemplated at present.

Men and Women of All Ages, I CAN CURE YOU
The specialist is now indispensable. In all walks of life there is a demand for the man who can do one particular thing better than any one else, and such a man is one who has confined his endeavor to, and centered all of his energy and ability on the specialty he has chosen for his life's work.

DR. HATHAWAY
Recognized as the Leading and Most Successful Specialist in His line in the United States.

Stricture
My cure for this disease is gentle and painless, and often causes no detention from business or other duties. It involves no cutting or dangerous surgical operation. Improper treatment will result in serious injury. I've made special attention to this important branch of medicine. I have cured a special class of cases which the busy practitioner could never acquire. For more than twenty years I have devoted myself exclusively to the study and treatment of these diseases, and the fact that physicians recommend me to their patients is an evidence of my skill and ability in my special line. I give special counsel to physicians with obstinate and obscure cases.

Varicocele
This disease is the enlargement of veins of the scrotum, which fill with stagnant blood, causing a constant drain upon the vitality. It weakens the entire system and saps away all sexual strength. I cure it with the same safety and success as I do stricture. I will guarantee to cure your varicocele and all other ailments of the genital tract, and I will refund every cent of my fee if you are not cured. Write me for free booklet on Varicocele.

Blood Poison
This horrible disease is no longer incurable, and when I say that I can cure the most severe case I do so because I know just what my treatment has accomplished. If you have sores, pimples, blotches, eruptions, itching, or any other skin disease, or if you have any other ailment, I will guarantee to cure you. Write me for free booklet on Blood Poison.

Chronic Diseases
My specialty also includes all other chronic diseases, such as Rheumatism, Catarrh, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Gleet, Stricture, Gonorrhea, Leucorrhoea, etc., write me about your case. I have restored to health thousands of suffering women.

Home Treatment
I will refund everyone to consult me without charge, and will refund railroad fare one way to all who take my special form of treatment by which I have cured patients in every State in the Union and in foreign countries. Correspondence confidential.
