WALHALLA, S. C. : WEDNESDAY, DEC. 16. 1903.

Seneca's Pride-The Oconee Inn.

An event in which all Seneca wa interested was the opening of the new Oconee Inn on Saturday, December 5th, 1903. All day visitors entrances and passed down the long halls, exclaiming at every step upon the beauty and convenience of every arrangement. A brief description of what they saw will be interesting to Oconee's citizens : The outside view is of a quiet. substantial, handsome Roman building. There is nothing fancy nor House officially what it has been dosurperfluous, and yet there is nothing ing. lacking nor unfinished. It gives on as there is nothing that savors of effect.

The two entrances-commercial aud ladies'-are broad and roomy giving one the feeling of welcomand plenty. The main hall has a double arch about the middle which breaks the long, narrow effect which is so trying to one's nerves, and makes a pleasant rest for the eyes as they wander down this divide. The walls are tinted a lovely pea green, another comfort for the eyes of the traveler who is invariably weary.

The stairway is a work of art and carries out the whole general effect of the building by being broad strong and not tiresome. There are four turns, the landings being almost large enough for rooms, making a restful break in the climb.

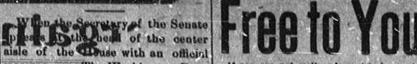

The Rev. Henry Clay Trumbull, The same double arch is in th second floor hall and one feels glad editor of the Sunday School Times, that everything pretty was not and known throughout the world as crammed down stairs. Mr. Cannon was still new at his job, and was taking lessons in the etijustte of the chair from his elbow man, as all new Speakers must do, the Senate's Secretary pushed through the double doors at the main entrance. One of the doorkeeper's assistants announced him formally, as usual : "Mr. Speaker! A message from the Senate," at the same time makng the customary profound bow.

"It is proper at this point for the Speaker to bow," whispered Mr. Cannon's elbow man.

"Bow ?" returned the Speaker in rebellious semi-tone, and adding flocked through the two spacious one of his famous expletives of four letters. "I wouldn't bow to the d-d OF THE TOWN OF WALHALLA. Senate, and I won't bow to its Sec retary."

Therefore, instead of bending gracefully, Mr. Cannon stood perfeetly upright, and he stands that way whenever the Senate deigns, in the fashion prescribed by hoary pre-cedents, to i. form him and the cotton next year. I am now hauling lumber to build him a house. Now, Mr. Boggs, when you have a 10 room house at your mills, how much rent would your operatives have to pay annually for it? Also how many differ-ent families would be compelled to live cooped up in the house at the same time, and how many different characters would be among them, paying rent for each room in the house separately? Mr. Boggs says: "If the mill men are not paying speculators' prices to day for cotton we will admit that we know noth-ing about it." Yes, I suppose they are paying a good price now, simply because they are obliged to pay for it if they get any, but the high price is no good to the farmer after the bulk of the cotton is in the hands of the speculators. This is just what I have been striking at. Mr. Boggs says: "Could not the mill men combine and wait until January to buy their cotton and thus force the price down, as you seem to think they have tried to do this fall, and hence rob the farmer of his honest rights?" Why, yes, Mr. Boggs; we have never doubted their ability to oppress the farmer. That is precisely what we were striking at. The mill men have furnished all the proof necossary in the past to convince any reasonable man of their capacity on that line. Now, Mr. Boggs, I think I was just line. Now, Mr. Boggs, I think I was just right in what I said about the cotton mill combination. They not only oppress the farmer, but I have been told that the farmer, but I have been told that some of them don't treat their opera-tives as they should be treated. I have f been informed that a certain mill presi-dent refused to pay the farmers ten cents dent refused to pay the farmers ten cents per pound for their cotton, which they had been digging out of the ground within sight of the mill, and the same week he bought enough cotton to run his mill a week from a party in South-west Georgia, paying eleven cents per pound and the freight. This looks un-reasonable, but my informant is one of the best citizens of our county, and I believe he is a stockholder in the mill. Oue man, who is a laborer in a mill, owned a house and lot of his own in sight of the mill, but he is not allowed to live in his own house. He is com-pelled to rent it out and live in a house owned by the mill company. How does

There are a wealth of bath rooms luxuriously fitted up. All arrangements are made for steam heat, but at present grates and stoves are being used.

The first supper in the new house was, as the rhyme says, "fit for any king." [And by way of parenthesis we will say that the first meal was served to Dr. W. R. Doyle, a patron of such long standing as to be almost a fixture, and which is quite an advertisement for the house to those who know something of his epicurean appetite.] The menu would be superfluous, so we will leave that to the imagination and the established reputation of the Oconee Inn.

This is the best equipped hotel in the upper portion of the State. The writer knows whereof he speaks, as the best hotels in the largest towns dren. of upper South Carolina.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ellison, the host and hostess of this hotel, are a fit couple to preside over such an establishment. Quiet and unassuming, courteous and attentive to their guests, they make one feel that one is in the house of sincerity, and even though a public inn it is touched with the sacredness of home, which revives a tired guest like the odor of a flower long forgotten.

It would not be fair to close without saying comething of the servants who are phenomenons in having hearts. They are always pleasant, and to call upon them for a favor seems to fill them with bliss. Long may they live and smile.

Begging your pardon, Mr. Devil. we will stop now by saying, hurrah for Oconee, for Oconee's Inn, and the young son and heir-Clarence Ellison, Junior ! A Cosmopolite. Seneca, S. C., December 12.

Aia, writes from Eldredge, the same state, as follows: "It is with the greatest pleasure that I rec-ommend Dr. Miles' Norvine and Heart Cure. I only wish that I could tell every sufferer how much good they have done me. Last winter I had a severe attack of La-Grippe, which left my heart in a very bad condition. I could not lie down for the smothering spells that would almost over-come me and the feeling of oppression around my heart. I had not been so that I could lie on my left side for a long time. I got your Heart Cure and took three bottles. I have no trouble now with my heart and can lie on my left side as well as my right. Formerly I had suffered for years with nerv-ous prostration. I had tried so many rem-edies that I had got clear out of heart of get-ting anything that would help me. The nerves of my heart were so affected that sometimes it would lose beats so it would wice of a lady friend that I tricd your Restor-ative Nervine. I felt better after the first ow doses and two bottles of Nervine and one of Heart Cure made me feel like a new person. My heart is all right and my nerv-ousness is all gone. I never fail to recom-mend it to others afflicted as I was." Aldermen of the Town of Walhalla, in council assembled, and by authority of the same:

If there happens to be an election on hand—municipal or otherwise—each operative is instructed how he must vote and a man is placed to watch him. If he fails to vote as he was ordered, he is at once discharged and ordered to get out of the mill company's "mansion" and hit the grit. For what? Not for insconduct or neglect of duty, but be cause he would not be intimidated and submit to be a slave. A gentleman told me that a few years ago he happened to camp in a mill town one night, and it was very cold next morning and a heavy frost was on the ground, and that before daylight he a could hear the little children—from eight to twelve years old—going to their work could hear the little children—from eight to twelve years old—going to their work in the mill, crying as they went, and some of them barefooted. Their old daddy would whip them to make them go to work, and he would sleep until sunrise, and then go out loafing, depend-ing on the children to support him.
