HOG RAISING IN THE NEW SOUTH.

SOME VALUABLE DATA FROM THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The News and Courier has received from H. Benton, the assistant agriculturist of the United States department of agriculture, the following interesting paper relating to the raising of hogs in this section of the country:

During the past few months I have had the pleasure of visiting several Southern farmers who are making hog raising profitable. This valuable adjunct to the farm has been too much neglected. The hog should be one of the farmer's most profitable products, since he is capable of converting the waste from the dairy and stock pen and waste products of all kinds into pork, bacon or lard.

The practice of raising hogs on corn alone cannot result in much profit, certainly not until the yield per acre is greatly increased. It is known that Bermuda and Dallas grasses, (Paspalum dilatatum,) Japan clover, and on good land alfalfa, furnish excellent pasturage for hogs over a large portion of the South from May 1 to December 1, and will last for years. Rye, rape, crimson and bur clovers and turnips will furnish temporary grazing during the remainder of the season, if the hogs are changed from one pasture to another every few days. Over the greater portion of the South sorghum is the best plant to grow for supplementing any shortage that might occur in summer pasturage. The cowpea, peanut, mangold, citron, pumpkin, sweet potato, chufa and Jerusalem artichoke will furnish food from August 1 to May 1.

Take No Substitute.

B. O. Harris, Pendleton, S. C., states that it costs him only 3½ cents per pound, charging liberal rent for grazing land, to produce pork. His hogs are grazed on a pasture of Bermuda and Dallas grasses and Japan clover from May 1 to December 1. The hogs are fed on mangolds, turnips, citrons and rice meal in winter, while rich meal and skim milk supplement insufficient pasturage during summer. The food is cooked in winter. Mr. Harris never feeds corn to hogs because it is too expensive.

J. D. B. Harmon, Lexington, S. C., raises hogs successfully on chufas, cowpeas, sweet potatoes, rye and sorghum. He practices the following rotation: First year, chufas; second year, cowpeas, followed by rye; third year, either sweet potatoes or sorghum. Chufas are planted in May; hogs are turned in on them October 1, and if the supply of chufas is sufficient the hogs are allowed to remain until May 1 of the following year. The hogs in rooting for the chufas during wet weather in winter render the soil unsuitable for cultivated crops the next season. On land occupied by chufas, cowpeas are sown in June. The cowpeas are allowed to ripen, then hogs are turned on the field, and they eat the peas from the vines. The land is sown to rye in September and grazed during winter and early spring. When stalks begin to form the hogs are removed to give the rye a chance to ripen so that it will not sour the land when ploughed under. The rye is then turned under and the land planted in sorghum or sweet potatoes. Mr. Harmon feeds green sorghum from July 15 to about December 1. Potatoes are used in the field for his hogs from August to December 1. He digs all that the hogs cannot eat by December 1, and after the first frost, banks them and uses them for feed in winter.

It will be noticed that Mr. Harmon practices a good rotation and has ample food for his hogs from August 1 to May 1. With a good Bermuda pasture, planted to bar clover, and a field of alfalfa, his hogs could have the range of a good pasture the entire year.

E. C. Smith, Williston, S. C., raises hogs largely on cowpeas, peanuts, chufas and Jerusalem artichokes. Hogs are turned on cowpeas August 1 and allowed to remain until September 1. They are then turned into the peanut field and allowed to remain until November 1 to 15, at which time they are turned into the chufa and artichoke field, where they remain until April 1. The cowpea and peanut fields are rotated, but the "chokes" and chufas are planted on the same land year after year. He states that this method enables him to secure a good stand of chokes and chufas every year.

J. M. Moss, St. Matthew's, grows sorghum, cowpeas, peanuts and sweet potatoes for hogs and has an orchard of Hicks's ever-bearing mulberry trees. He considers that all these are profitable plants for hogs.

A Louisiana farmer sold pork to the value of $385 from two and one-quarter acres of alfalfa.

It is hoped that the above suggestions, supplemented by facts demonstrated by five practical men, will encourage hog raising in the South.

Bryan the Next Presidential Candidate.

Washington, June 11.—Former Senator James K. Jones, of Arkansas, two times chairman of the Democratic national committee, and one of the closest friends of William J. Bryan, called on the President to-day. Afterward he declared for Bryan's nomination by the Democracy for the presidency.

"I believe Bryan is the logical candidate for his party and my judgment is he will be the nominee and will make the race under the Democratic standard for the third time. If he makes the race I think he will be elected.

"I am inclined to doubt whether Bryan wants the nomination. Two races for the presidency ought to be enough to satisfy any man, but if the convention should nominate I do not think he would refuse to run. I believe he would stand for any other candidate who espouses the same principles he espouses."

Yellow Fever Again Makes Its Appearance.

A dispatch from New Orleans says: It is learned that three cases of yellow fever are now under quarantine at Ship Island, a United States quarantine station on the gulf, where they were taken three days ago. The news was given out by Dr. Iron, president of the State Board of Health, and did not arouse any alarm. Ship Island is about half way between Mobile, Ala., and the mouth of the Mississippi.

Troops Balk at Canned Beef.

London, June 14.—American canned beef was served for dinner to-day to the Royal Fusiliers, stationed at Parkhurst. They refused to eat it, and those who were able to do so bought meat elsewhere. The others went without their dinner.

There is indignant grumbling at this and some other regiments at receiving rations of this character after the disclosures of American packing house methods, especially as it is declared that some of the meat supplied has been rotten.

Smoot Must Vacate.

The Committee on Privileges and Elections of the United States Senate has reported to the Senate the result of its investigations in the Reed Smoot case, which has lasted for two years. The majority report covers thirty printed pages and goes carefully into all parts of the testimony, and finds that Smoot is not entitled to a seat in the Senate. The minority report, presented by Senator Foraker, holds that there is no just ground for expelling Smoot or finding him disqualified for holding office. When the report was presented Chairman Burroughs gave notice that he would call up, as soon as public business permits, a resolution declaring Smoot not entitled to his seat.

Another Chance for Rawlings Youths.

Macon, Ga., June 14.—The chance that Milton and Jesse Rawlings will be saved from the gallows has been greatly increased by the action of Judge Mitchell, of Lowndes Superior Court, in signing a bill of exceptions in an extraordinary motion for a new trial, which was filed by John R. Cooper, attorney for the defense. This throws the cases back to the State Supreme Court and Attorney Cooper says that he will be able to secure new trials for the two young men who are sentenced to die July 12th.

Attorney Cooper states that the bill of exceptions is founded upon unquestionably good grounds. Judge Mitchell did not hesitate to sign the bill.
