Negro Shot Down by the Husband.

Florence, August 25.—This morning about sunrise, W. L. Marshall shot and killed Lewis Gray, a negro, for the crime for which negroes are lynched.

Yesterday afternoon, while Mr. Marshall was away from his house, the negro, Gray, came to the house and made an indecent proposal to Mrs. Marshall. Before he could make any attempt to carry out his purpose he was frightened away by Mrs. Marshall's mother, who appeared from another room in the house when her daughter screamed. The negro fled.

Marshall, who was at work in the field, as soon as he reached home and learned the facts, secured his shotgun and started out on a hunt for the negro. He hunted the country over all night and about day-break went into the store of H. B. McCall to rest. While in the store Lewis Gray walked in, not knowing that Marshall was there. Marshall, without a word, fired and killed the negro instantly.

Marshall left the store, intending to come to Florence and surrender. He came to town, it is said, but did not give himself up and is still at large.

Marshall's home is on the plantation of J. S. McCall, near Effingham. His wife is a woman of about 27 years of age and her mother lives with them.

The negro was an itinerant barber, who was well known in that section, which is about ten miles from Florence town.
